MEMORIAL DAY, 1914

(By C. M. JACKSON)

The vanguard's vanished in the mists from out our sight forever,
The army's crossed the pontoon bridge across Death's rolling river,
The rear guard only waits the call to join the grand divisions
In camp, for aye on glory's field beyond the ken of vision.

Where once the fallen soldier's blood the turf dyed crimson, gory,
The blushing rose now blossoms fair in radiant, perfumed glory;
Where once the charge, the fierce advance, while bugles shrill were ringing,
The birds awake the echoes sweet with music of their singing.

The cannon grim which once belched death o'er scenes of blood and battle
Is hushed, it's roar is heard no more; stilled is the rifle's rattle;
The bayonet is rusted deep, the sword lies 'round unheeded,
Save when some reminiscent eye recalls the time 'twas needed.

The few who're left, all dauntless, brave, as gallant now as ever,
God bless them all, these gray-haired "boys," and keep their mem'ry verdant,
May we their fame revere through time in love [illegible]

URALIZATION PUZZLE.

Imperial Government has itself in a rather embarrass- sition in connection with the ation bill. Notable Figures in Cabled News

INTRODUCTIONS.

This season will be notable in English court circles for the number of beautiful debutantes to be presented to Their Majesties. Among the most attractive of the debutantes to be accorded that honor is the Hon. Gwendeth Morgan, only daughter of Lord and Lady Tredegar, and one of the Kingdom's most charming buds. Another charming debutante of the spring is Miss Catherine Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Buchanan of Lavington Park, Petworth, who is also to be presented in court. Miss Buchanan is widely sought in London society, where her parents are social rulers.

London society is at present interested even more in sport than in society. The Countess of Aberdeen is quite a leader in the Scotch, English and Irish set seen at the races these days. She was a prominent figure in the Punchestown races recently. As wife of the Viceroy of Ireland she is much in the public eye.

One of the sensations recently in London has been Miss Elsie Mackay, a beautiful young actress who is now "Galatea's Understudy," having been honored by being chosen understudy to Mrs. Patrick Campbell. The high humor was conferred on her by Sir Herbert Tree himself. She is an Australian by birth, and a niece of that famed actress, Miss Letty Lind. Her rise in theaterdom has been rapid and wonderful.

DUCHESS IS NURSE; CARES FOR CHILD

Takes Charge of Infant Son, Despite Protest of Attendants.

BRUNSWICK, Germany, May 30.—Holding in contempt the pretensions of the professional nurses and ignoring their advice, the Duchess of Brunswick has taken practically the whole care of her infant son, who was nine weeks old last Wednesday.

At times the nurses have appealed to the attending physician, who merely remarks that allowances must be made in the case of the first baby. All her waking hours the duchess passes in sight of her treasure, who some day may be seated as king on the restored throne of Hanover.

The christening of the child on May 9 was the occasion of a grand reconciliation between the father, Prince Ernest, Duke of Brunswick, and the German crown prince, who quarreled over the duke's accession.

TAKES PART OF HUSBAND.

The Duchess of Brunswick, the daughter of Emperor William, took the part of her husband against her own brother in the dispute which arose when the Crown Prince insisted that Prince Ernest August of Cumberland should renounce formally all claim to the throne of Hanover before he ascended the throne of Brunswick.

The duke replied simply that he had already declared that he would not countenance any aggressive policy against Prussia, and this he considered enough.

The duchess then went to interview her father. She told the emperor that if her brother, the crown prince, had his way and humiliated the duke, her husband, she and the duke would leave Germany together and never return, as she considered it beneath the duke's dignity to make any more pledges.

The emperor supported his favorite child. The crown prince was invited to call upon the imperial chancellor to whom he had written protesting letters against Prince Ernest's accession, and Von Bethmann-Hollweg administered what is described as an "impressive lecture" on the duties of crown princes in relation to state affairs.

The German public adores the former Princess Victoria of Prussia and the crown prince's course made him very unpopular. It was largely owing to the discovery of his unpopularity, but partly to his desire to make up his quarrel with his sister, to whom he is greatly attached, that the crown prince announced his intention to accepting the invitation to the christening of her first born.

GRAND FAMILY GATHERING.

There was a grand family gathering at luncheon in that ancient romanesque castle of Henry the Lion and the ceremony was attended by most of the royal princes and princesses besides half a dozen of the reigning sovereigns of the German federation. All the royal houses of Europe were represented and a vast gathering of the nobility of many nations passed through the picturesque, medieval streets of Brunswick.

The sponsors for the infant were the emperor and empress, parents of the Duchess of Brunswick; the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, parents of the duke; Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary, Czar Nicholas II of Russia, the kings of England and Bavaria, and five other members of royal families.

This was probably the last important function of this years. The emperor will spend festival week in Wiesbaden as usual, but it is considered doubtful whether he will be in Berlin during "foreigners" week in the middle of June.

LONDON TAILORS SHOW MEN'S EVENING DRESS

LONDON, May 30.—Almost as much attention is given to men's dress nowadays as to women's. Recently a London tailor held a display of men's garments especially in connection with evening dress.

Once more the colored dress clothes made a spasmodic appearance. The attempt to get away from the somberness of the present mode in men's evening wear has been made again and again, but it has never yet succeeded, and the innovation is hardly likely ever to influence the west end drawing room.

The black evening suit has come to stay, because it is convenient and because it is a perfect background to the fancy dress that men will be as brilliant as their partners.

The English capital still remains the exemplar and guide for men's clothes. But a custom noticed in the Paris ballrooms just now threatens London. The young men are discarding gloves even when dancing.

GENTLEMAN;' WHAT MAY THIS BE?

Law on Matter Defines Him; for Practical Purposes Only.

LIVERPOOL, May 30. — An inquiry is being conducted here to determine the definition of a gentleman as contemplated by the workingmen's insurance act.

According to the reading of the act, anyone who earns more than $800 yearly and does no manual labor, is a gentleman. This definition, simple enough on its fact, has caused indefinite dispute in shipping circles, and the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association are trying to solve the question by the present inquiry, but it is likely that whatever the decision an appeal will be carried to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

A prominent labor union official declares that the definition creates undesirable class distinctions in the mercantile marine. Under the existing ruling on big ships, the captain, mate, second officer and everyone in the engineering room down to the sixth assistant are gentlemen under the act, but the line must be drawn at the seventh engineer. The steamship owners are arguing that the amount of food and lodging alloted to their officers must count in determining their status under the act. On smaller ships the question is more acute, for only manual workers are receiving benefits, so no matter how low their stipend the officers, who do not work with their hands, do not profit by the act. Therefore, the Gilbertian situation is created that if a man, though a manual worker, should by promotion, get another man to do his manual labor, he at once becomes a gentleman. The quartermaster by steering the ship already a gentleman, although he may mess with the rest of the officers.

The question is of such supreme importance, affecting as it does every British ship sailing from a home port that some of the most eminent lawyers in the kingdom have been retained to conduct the inquiry.

COSSACK WOMAN ACQUIRES HONOR

Mme. Kudasheva Wins Laurels as a Most Intrepid Horsewoman.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 30.—Mme. Kudasheva, a Cossack, is qualifying as the most intrepid, indomitable horsewoman in history.

About three years ago she rode all the way from Vladivostock across Manchuria, Siberia, and European Russia to St. Petersburg. She was presented to the czar and gave her horse, Mongolia, to the Czarevitch. In return the Czar sent her an Arabian horse, which named Krit, and on which she is now making an even more adventurous solitary journey.

In March of last year she left the Corean frontier of Russia and made her way across China and Mongolia into Turkestan. She has reached the Syr-Daria steppes, and in the town of Aulieata had a public reception at which she gave an interesting account of how she keeps her horse in condition.

Her principle is that if it takes eight pounds weight of food to keep it fit, she would begin by giving it, say, sixteen pounds, half in the morning and half at night. Next day it would have fifteen pounds, and so on until it only had one pound, when she would raise the diet to sixteen pounds.

Her experience with horses has been that they age more rapidly on a diet of oats and that the sweet under exertion. She prefers to use hay with some barley mixed in it. Occasionally she also gives vegetables, melons and even cheese or jam.

She always sleeps beside her horse, even in the same shed, when they are in inhabited places.

So far she has not encountered serious danger, but has had trouble at times, owing to the greed of people she wished to help her. They would ask as much as $5 to show her where there was a ford over a river.

Mrs. Kudasheva is to come up from Turkestan to Astrakhan through South and Central Russia to Petersburg, which she hopes to reach in September.

Imitators are springing up. Already two other Russian women have announced that they intend to at least equal her achievements.

PLAN GREAT TEMPLE FOR THE SPIRITUALISTS

BERLIN, May 30.—One of the most extraordinary buildings erected in modern times is now being built near Dornach, in Alsace. It is called the Temple of the Science of the Spirit and will be a mecca for every spiritualist in Europe. The temple should be completed by December, when formal opening ceremonies of great pomp are to be performed.

It owes its inception and construction to Rudolf Stiner, an Austrian occultist, who has at least 4000 followers. The cost of the building, which is of huge proportions, will be $600,000, which has been raised by subscriptions from spiritualists in many lands.

Symbolism and mysticism are the keynotes of the architectural design, for the greater of the two domes which surmount the building is said to represent the universe, and—since the numeral 7 represents "the unrolling of things in time"—it is supported on each side by seven great columns. These pillars are in the form of a pentagram and support bronze capitals representing the planets of sun, moon, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, and Venus. Each column is made symbolically of a different kind of wood, for the whole edifice is built of wood except the basements, which are of stone, constructed in the form of terraces.

TRAIN TO RUN AT 300 MILES AN HOUR

"Levitated" Transmission May Work a Great Revolution.

LONDON, May 30.—The "levitated" Bachelet, a model of which is now on exhibition in London, is designed for the transmission of letters and mail packages, in the carriage of which, it is suggested, a speed as high as 300 miles an hour might be attained.

Briefly, the novelty of the invention is that the train or vehicle is lifted into the air, clear of contact with the ground or rails—what may be shortly termed magnetic repulsion, and by magnetic attraction, is pulled forward when thus suspended in the air.

This action has been known as a scientific fact for a good many years.

A well-known demonstration of a copper ring held over an alternating current magnet, when the ring floats suspended in the air, is commonly associated with the name of Prof. Elihu Thomson, and what are known as Foucault and eddy currents, on which the repulsion depends, have long been familiar phenomena to the manufacturers of electrical apparatus, to whom they not seldom prove a serious nuisance.

But while M. Bachelet acknowledges that the fact of magnetic repulsion has been recognized, "no one," he claims, "appears to have thought it capable of being developed for application to commercial or industrial purposes." He has made exhaustive experiments with various metals, and found that aluminium, as pure as possible, was the best for "levitating" purposes.

The railway line consists of a pair of rails about thirty-five feet long, laid over a series of the coils or bobbins. The vehicle, weighing 45 pounds, consists of an iron car or tube fastened to an aluminum bed plate. The repulsive force acting on the aluminum lifts it instantaneously as soon as the circuit is closed, about half an inch into the air and holds it there.

PULLED BY MAGNETS.

But at intervals the track is spanned archwise by other electro magnets. The iron of the superstructure of the car responds so that the vehicle is immediately pulled toward them. The electro magnet, as the car reaches it, is automatically de-energized, and ceases to exert any influence on the vehicle, which passes on, being pulled forward by the next magnet beyond it. Thus it travels on, from one magnet to the next, the speed being in proportion to their number and strength.

The coils or bobbins in the roadway which lift the vehicle into the air are excited in groups by the moving vehicle, through brushes affixed to the aluminum bed plate and kept in contact with the live rail by springs, so that the vehicle carries its magnetic field with it, each group being energized as the car arrives at it and de-energized as the car leaves it.

One can test experimentally the immense difference which is made by the lifting of the car into the air and removing the retarding influence of the friction with the rails. When no current is on the vehicle requires an appreciable muscular effort to push it along the track. When it is lifted clear of contact with the rails a mere push of the finger suffices to send it on its aerial way.

Perhaps the first reflections of the practical engineer confronted with such an invention as that of M. Bachelet is that a model can be made to do anything. He remembers, for example, that mechanical flight was achieved with little models worked by a strand of twisted india rubber years before a full sized aeroplane had flown a yard, and he is therefore chary of arguing from the performances of models to the practicability of full-sized apparatus.

Assuming mechanical practicability, however, the great question that arises is that of cost, both of construction and of operation. A machine or process may work perfectly well, but yet may be so expensive that it cannot compete from the economical point of view with other processes which may perhaps look inferior mechanically; or, on the other hand, it may achieve a result which is unattainable by other means and for which it may therefore be worth while to pay at a high rate, though even here there is a limit to the expenditure people are willing to pay.

SPEED UNAPPROACHED.

In the case of the "flying train," the carriage of parcels and letters, and possibly of passengers, at a speed hitherto unapproached, is the attraction offered, and the question is whether, supposing all mechanical difficulties were overcome, the cost, which there are reasons for supposing would be high as compared with existing means of locomotion, would be worth incurring.

Some years ago a scheme for constructing a monorail line which was to convey people between Manchester and Liverpool at a speed of 100 miles an hour ran the gauntlet of parliament and of the criticisms of engineers of oposing lines, but that line has not been built, presumably because those who would have been able to find the necessary money did not think the cost worth while.

The claim made on behalf of the Bachelet system is that it eliminates the track friction inseparable from trains running on rails, and therefore the waste of power entailed by that friction. But does it? Does it not rather avoid one way of consuming power to consume it in another?

BARBER GAINS RENOWN AS ARTIST

England Agitated Over Threat to Abolish Ancient Town Meeting.

LONDON, May 30.—Among the [illegible] for the Royal Academy is Frank Cowley, a village barber. His picture is hung on the line, the ambition of every artist, and not "skied" or "cornered," as happens to the great majority of pictures.

Mr. Cowley took to painting before he began to shave the inhabitants of Hadlow, Kent, for a living, and his academy picture was painted in six hours.

"I worked on it," he said, "about eight years ago, and in two sittings, between 5 and 8 in the morning, had completed it."

The picture is a green and gray scheme, showing a smiling countryside, with a girl and two white goats standing near a tree. Five times previously Mr. Cowley has sent pictures to the academy. Thrice he has been rejected, while on the other two occasions he was among those whose work was "crowded out."

He is entirely self-taught and only recently took first lessons in technique. Barbering, he explains, is an annoyance.

"But I can't run the old trade down," he added, "for it has been a good friend to me. Barbering gave me a splendid opportunity of studying types of faces, which I used in my pictures. And, besids, I sold a good many to customers for a few shillings."

Cowley, who is still in his thirties, prefers to regard himself primarily as an animal painter. He has the use of a private zoo in Kent for his models.

ABOLISH TOWN MEETING.

The threat of the militant suffragettes to disturb the social season has led society leaders to take very strict precautions. Weddings in which people of political importance are interested are marked for attack and already several have been interrupted by women throwing leaflets from the galleries on to the wedding procession. These pranks, while they cause much annoyance to the wedding party, are easily stopped by the refusal of admittance to any but friends holding tickets.

The big political receptions given by the wives of the party leaders are not easy to protect from the attentions of the militants. Hundreds of invitations are issued and no hostess likes to ask her guests to present their tickets before allowed to enter her reception rooms. The result is that many uninvited persons attend, and among these the suffragettes intend to have their representatives, prepared to make the lives of cabinet ministers and others unbearable. Churches, too, it is feared, are being marked. Several old edifices in London have been specially insured against the risk of damage by suffragettes.

CHURCHMAN COMING.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, honorary secretary of the Free Church Council, and one of the nonconformist leaders in England, is to visit America on a three months' evangelical tour. He recently announced his retirement from the pastorate of Regent's Park chapel, where he has been with the exception of a short interval, since 1888. He is to be succeeded by Rev. F. C. Spurr, an Australian. Dr. Meyer has for years taken a very active part in both the religious and political life of the country, being a hard worker for social reform.

AMEER HOARDS GOLD; SAVES $8,000,000 YEAR

ST. PETERSBURG, May 30.—The largest private hoard in the world probably is that owned by the Ameer of Bokhara, the Russian vassal state in central Asia. According to the Turkeystanskiye Kraj, the Ameer possesses in his stronghold a vault 315 feet long, 45 feet wide, and 20 feet high, completely filled with gold bars and coined gold.

Some years ago, the Ameer had another vault built to hold his savings, and the new storehouse is now also almost full. There is at the Bokharan court an enormous cash book which has served for generations and in which all revenues and expenditures are supposed to be put down, but also for generations it has never been checked with the "cash in hand."

The Ameer's annual savings, it is calculated, amount to more than $8,000,000 a year. He is by traditional usage compelled to send every year a number of valuable "presents" to the Russian authorities at Samarkand and Tashkent. These presents consist of carpets, silks, and the like, which are immediately sold by the recipients to native traders, from whom the Ameer as regularly buys them back at fixed prices, to be stored up and to serve again as "presents" the following year.

BIG TENT WILL HOUSE WORSHIPPERS AT EVENT

CHRISTIANIA, May 30. — The thousands of Americans who are expected in Norway this summer to attend the celebration of the centenary of the Norwegian independence will not lack for spiritual guidance provided by their own countrymen while they are here.

An anonymous donor of Chicago has provided for the erection of a tent seating 5000 people in which evangelistic services will be held throughout the celebration. Dr. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Spurgeon's famous church, in London, will conduct the services for several weeks in June. Dr. Dixon is an American and he will be known to many of his auditors. He will preach twice daily, once with an interpretor for the benefit of the Norwegians, and once without. On his return to London Dr. Dixon expects to welcome a large number of Americans to the Tabernacle, where Dr. J. H. Jewett of New York will preach in July.

ATHLETIC TEST LIMIT NOW JUNE 30

Time for Tryouts Has Been Extended by Playground Department.

The time during which the boys of Oakland may take the athletic tests of the Oakland Playground department has been extended to June 30. This step was found necessary owing to the large number of young athletes who are clamoring for an opportunity to demonstrate their ability. The [illegible] grading according to their difficulty. The rules [illegible]

For the first three tests the official standards of the Playground and Recreation Association of America are used, the official badges of that association to be awarded for successful completion of the tests.

Test No 1—Running 4 time, standing broad jump, 5 feet 9 inches, 60-yard dash, 8 3-5 seconds

Test No. 2—Chinning 6 times; running broad jump, 6 feet 6 inches; 60-yard dash, 8 seconds, or 100-yard dash, 14 seconds

Test No 3—Chinning 9 times; running high jump, 4 feet 4 inches; 220-yard dash, 28 seconds

Test No 4—100-yard dash, 13 seconds, running broad jump, 16 feet chinning, 11 times, running high jump, 4 feet 6 inches; 440-yard dash, 65 seconds, 12-pound shot-put, 33 feet 880-yard run, 2 minutes, 15 seconds, or pole-vault, 9 feet, 6 inches.

HERE ARE RULES.

Other rules are

1—All entries must be registered by card system in the different playgrounds

2—No boy shall be awarded more than one badge in any one grade in the same year.

3—Supervisors shall regulate the time and rules for the trials.

4—There shall be one trial in chinning one in the dashes, 3 in jumps

5—Any winner selling or otherwise disposing of his badge shall be debarred from further participation in all contests.

Rule 6 does not apply in the case of the fourth and fifth tests, in which cases the offcial Oakland Playground badges will be awarded.

Flirtillion Club to Give Saturday Evening Benefit

Members of the Flirtillion Club of Oakland are arranging for an entertainment to be given at the Oakland New Century Settlement on Saturday evening, June 6.

The proceeds of the evening are to be devoted to the benefit of the band which the boys of the club are organizing. Among the numbers which will be enjoyed on the occasion of the entertainment will be a concert by a so-called "German Band" composed of five members of the club who are already accomplished bandsmen. Vocal and instrumental numbers by club members and their friends, together with a short minstrel program and a basketball game between the first and second teams of the club, will constitute the remainder of the program.

Diversity of activities marks the Flirtillion Club's life. Besides the band, upon which the boys are spending a great deal of time and effort, the Flirtillions have teams of basketball, baseball and football players. Swimmers, track men and gymnasts are included in the membership, and all the personnel, to a man, participate in hiking parties which are carried on throughout the spring and summer months. A drill team, uniforms for which are being procured at the present time, has appeared in some fine work. In addition, the club has been the host at a number of social affairs.

The gymnasium of the New Century Settlement, on Peralta street, is the headquarters of the club.

DIRECTORS ARE NAMED FOR SUMMER ATHLETICS

George E Dickie, superintendent of recreation, has announced that thirteen municipal playgrounds will be operated by his department during the summer vacation of the public schools, which will commence on June 10.

In order to provide efficient supervision for the additional recreation centers, the following transfers have been made from the eligible list to secure duty during the vacation period: O. A Sharpe, James Bequette, R M Scott, R A. Lee, Mildred Thomson, Florence Burrell, Laura Herron, Ruth Findlay.

The posts to be occupied by these appointees have not been decided upon as yet. The eligible list from which the appointments have been made is composed of applicants who have graduated from the University of California Summer School for Playground Workers, or who have had previous experience in Physical Education.

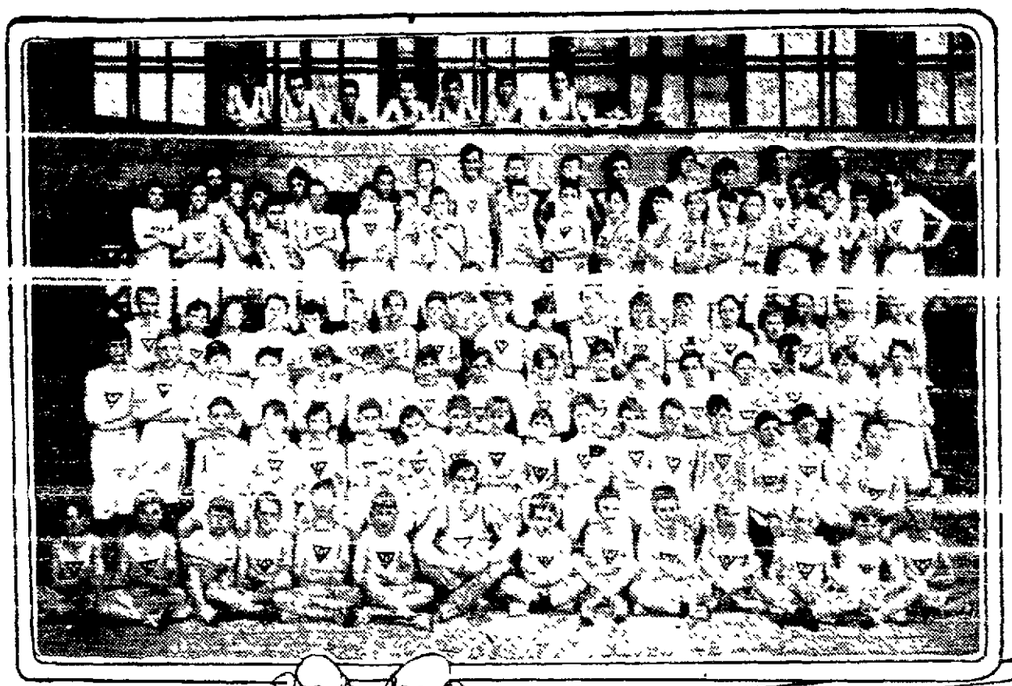
"HOME INDUSTRY" IN ATHLETICS FOR GIRLS

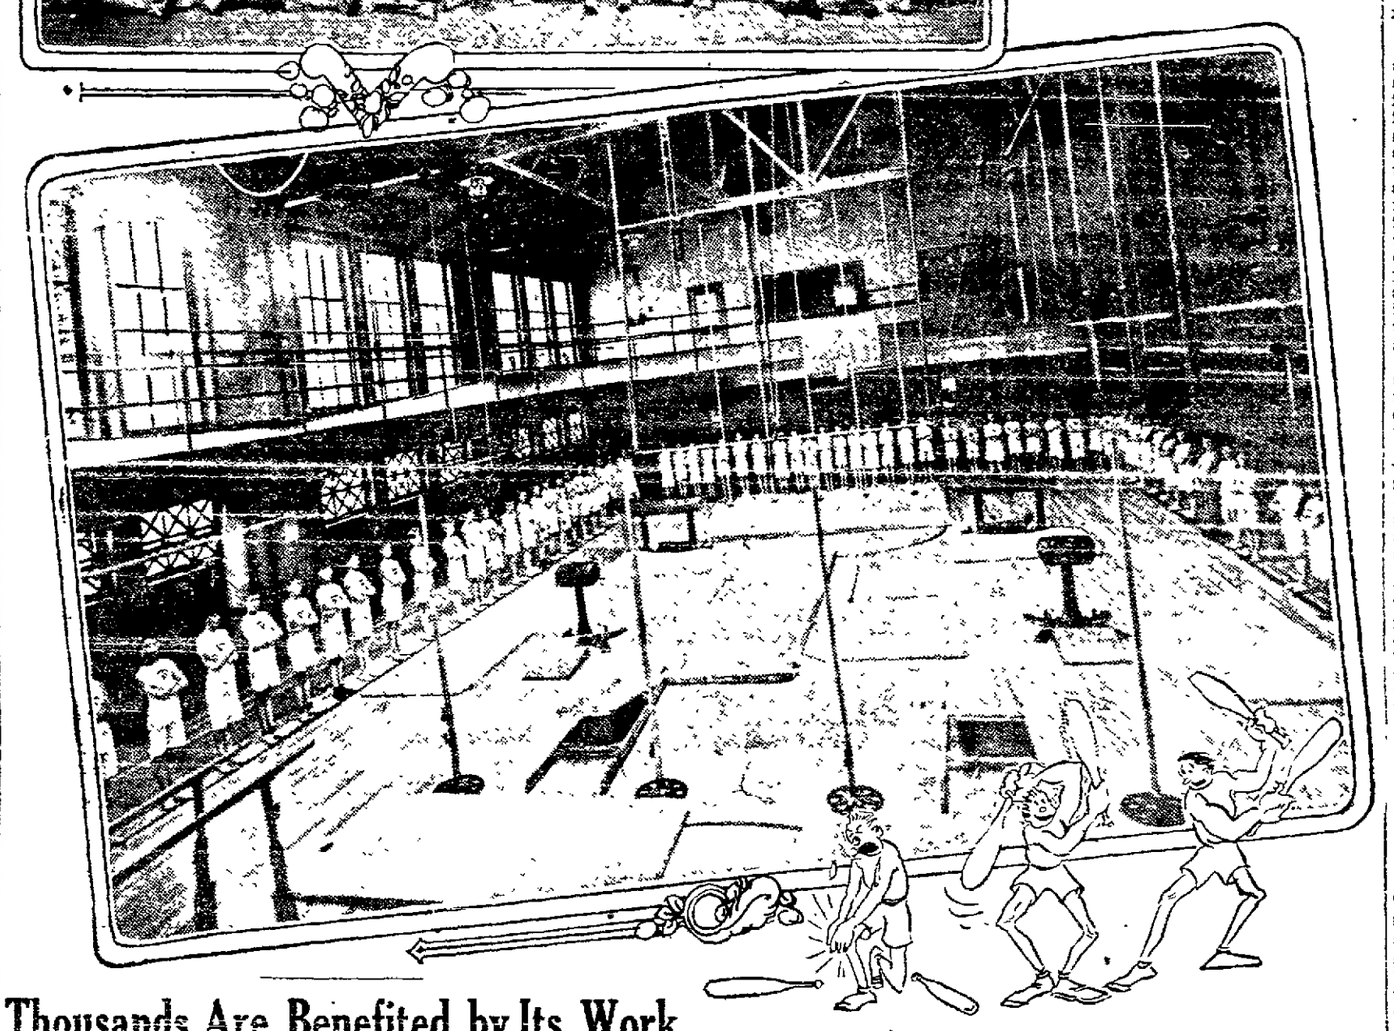
Healthful competition in athletic sports for girls without the disadvantage of travel from one playground to another is the object of the girls' athletic clubs which are now being formed. It is the endeavor to establish two or more of these clubs upon each playground of the city, thus securing [illegible] and competition in games and [illegible] enlivening the pursuit of physical culture.

Four clubs have been formed on Park Boulevard playground, and exciting leagues in basketball, baseball, [illegible] volley-ball and other sports are in contemplation.

The clubs are all under the direction of Miss Bassett, who was recently appointed to the supervisorship of the Fourth avenue recreation center.

Y. M. C. A. SERVES CITY'S YOUTH WELL





Thousands Are Benefited by Its Work

The value of an institution is not measured by the brick and mortar nor the impressiveness of its structure, though it may be an ornament to the city. The real worth must be estimated by the actual results and the influence it has on the lives of the citizens.

The accomplishments of the Oakland Young Men's Christian Association loom up strikingly and should impress the citizens of the value of the investment they made in this institution.

The annual report of the physical department, which has just completed its year's work, is very convincing. Though this department is called upon to meet the physical needs of the membership, its program has proven moral, educational and social. During the year 1726 men and 793 boys registered for privileges in the department. Eighty-two per cent of the men and 98 per cent of the boys took advantage of and used the department. These large percentages were the outcome of the efficiency of its activities, which had the power to draw and hold men to the work.

1432 ENROLLED.

There are at present 1432 actually enrolled in the department, out of 1728 who are entitled to privileges. With such a moving population as is found around the basement with men pouring in and out of the association, the stream which comes under the influence of the department cannot help but wield its influence upon the citizenship of Oakland. This work has called for the personal supervision by the directors of 1259 regular class sessions in gymnastics, basketball, boxing, wrestling, athletics and games, etc., together with 189 special sessions of the following character. THE TRIBUNE swimming campaign, when large groups of men and boys were taught to swim. Oakland Athletic Carnival 220 participants and 2000 spectators, ten-mile relay race, with 5000 spectators, Lake Merritt boys' relay race 108 participants; the Portola land and sea relay race from Sacramento to San Francisco, etc.

ORGANIZATIONS HELP.

Many institutions have been rendered help in the manner of directing their work or submitting acts on the program. The Oakland Church Athletic League of the Oakland Y. M. C. A. is an active organization which gives opportunity for the indulgence in clean athletics. The physical directors make the examination for the civil service board of all entrants to the police and fire departments. The playground department, high and grammar schools, lodges, settlements, Fred Finch Orphanage and numerous other organizations have solicited the help of the physical department and never once in the history of the department has help been refused. The educational function of the department is to train men in physical efficiency but it goes further to aid in the establishment of such by training large groups of young men in its leaders' corps to render voluntary service to organizations which cannot afford to pay for the services of specialists. A fine group of young men and boys ranging in age from fourteen years up, have come under the influence of the senior high school, intermediate and junior leaders' corps to be trained in moral, educational and physical efficiency.

TRAINING FOR POLICE.

The police department of our city has [illegible] for two years, and the citizens of Oakland are well aware of the fact that the Oakland police department is second to none in the state. The spirit of fellowship, the improvement in physical development, is largely due to the opportunity of the men to receive instruction in physical education. One hundred and eighty of this splendid body of men work under the direction of the Oakland Young Men's Christian Association physical department leadership.

One hundred and fifty men were trained in subjects pertaining to their welfare and ability to render true citizenship through the efficiency club, where such notable speakers as the Rev. Geo. W. White, Dr. A. S. Kelly, Dr. E. N. Ewer, Rev. Thomas A. Boyer, Probation Officer Christopher Ruess and John Feehter lectured on sexual and personal hygiene, city sanitation and sociology.

FOR INDIVIDUALS.

Six hundred and eighty-six men and boys received special medical advice and attention for physical defects. Eight hundred and seventy-three boys and 170 men were taught swimming. 1544 participated in the outings, such as camp, swimming, hikes, cross country run, baseball and other athletics.

The real evidence of this work will be seen in the products. The association athlete has proved himself by bringing home eight magnificent cups, laurels of events won. Twenty men in the organization proved themselves over the half-mile in the phenomenal average time of 2 minutes 10 2-5 seconds. Business men's senior and junior teams in athletics swimming, baseball, volley ball, water polo, etc., have proved themselves as headliners, their prowess and physique giving evidence of their training.

The institution's work is on the increase. Thirteen thousand more visits were paid to the building during the last year more than the previous year. A total of 79 881 visits were made, averaging over two hours. 3043 visitors inspecting the department. As this is only the report of one department surely it in itself is convincing enough to warrant the support of the Oakland citizens.

GIRLS' CLUB MEETS AT POPULAR PLAYGROUND

The second meeting of the Poplar Street Girls' Club was held at the new Poplar Street Playground at Thirty-second and Peralta streets Friday afternoon. Election of officers and a discussion of the activities to be engaged in occupied the attention of the charter members of the infant organization, who number fifteen at the present time.

Large attendances and activities in all branches of sports both among the boys and girls, have marked the first two weeks of the existence of the new recreation center. Baseball teams in all the divisions of the playground league have been formed, and in addition there is a league on the playground composed of several teams of smaller boys who attend the place.

SEQUOIA PLAYGROUND PROVING SUCCESSFUL

The playground at the Sequoia school, which is operated on Tuesday and Thursday mornings between the hours of nine and twelve, is proving to be a great success. The enthusiasm and spirit with which the children of the neighborhood enter into the different activities is one evidence of the value of the playfield while the teachers of the Sequoia school state that marked improvement in studies and discipline have followed the systematic athletic instruction. Marching drill, folk dances and games are taught, and take the place of class-room calisthenics, with the added advantage of bringing the children out of doors. Miss Stoops of the recreation department is now in charge of the work at the Sequoia school.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS IN CEREMONIAL SESSION

The Sequoia Campfire Girls of Mosswood Park held a ceremonial meeting on Wednesday, at which Miss Olga Smith was initiated into the degree of Woodgatherer. The Sequoia girls are planning a musical and social program for their next meeting, which is to be held next Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Lorraine Vandenberg, one of the popular members of the club.

HUMBOLDT RANCHER IN NEW CADILLAC

Henry F. Brizard, a rancher of Humboldt county, last week purchased a Cadillac touring car from Don Lee, Pacific coast distributor. Brizard, who has been for some time an enthusiastic motorist, faces the problem of obtaining a car which will not overheat in hill-climbing work, for to reach his home he must climb a twenty-mile grade. All cars he has used in the pass have proven [illegible] demand placed upon them. After tests covering a period of weeks Brizard decided [illegible] to stand up under the heavy strain and placed his order for the 1914 touring car.

Twelve Innings Settles a Fast and Exciting Contest

The first of a series of three final games to determine the playground championship of Oakland in the Midget division was played last Saturday at Bella Vista playground between the Bella Vista team, winner of the East of the Lake championship, and the De Fremery lads by the score of 4 to 3. The score at the close of the seventh inning was 0 to 0, neither team being able to put a man across the plate. Bella Vista made three runs in the eighth, while the De Fremery contingent could get but one. With a two-run lead for their opponents, things looked bad for the Westerners, but they managed to put across two runs and tied the score. There was no further score until the twelfth, when De Fremery bunched hits and worked a run over the plate. Bella Vista went out in one-two-three order in their portion of the inning and an exciting contest was over. The line-up of the winning team was as follows:

Following is the line-up of the intermediate team of De Fremery Park, which played a picked team from the grammar schools of Alameda yesterday at Lincoln Park, Alameda. This speedy aggregation stands high in the Playground league, and puts up a classy game at every appearance.

FINAL GAMES PLAYED IN PLAYGROUND LEAGUE

Final games are now being played in all divisions of the Playground baseball league. When these are concluded the second half of the season, known as the summer league, will be commenced June [illegible] the first of the summer league games will be played. The series will be finished before the re-opening of the public schools in the latter part of July. Inasmuch as there will be thirteen playgrounds in operation in the city during the summer, competition in the league is expected to be even more keen than in the Spring League, which is just finishing. Besides the summer baseball league the young athletes of Oakland are already preparing for a monster swimming meet which is to be held during the month of August under the auspices of the recreation department.

FINDS TWO APPENDICES.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Thomas Smart, aged 13, operated on for appendicitis, was discovered by physicians in St. Mary's hospital to have two perfectly developed appendices. The extra appendix branched off from the regular appendix.

Alumni Organize a New Dancing Club for Season

The alumni of the Washington school, at Sixty-second street and Shattuck avenue, met on Friday evening for the purpose of organizing an alumni Dancing Club. All former students of the school were invited to attend the session. A program of musical numbers was followed by a very enjoyable dance. A large gathering was in attendance at the function, and much enthusiasm manifested as to the club's future.

The Junior Nest of Bluebirds of Bushrod Park will hold a party at the playground next Wednesday afternoon, all of the little members of the club attending in the Bluebird costume.

The Senior Bluebirds held a very enjoyable Japanese party last Wednesday. Japanese costumes, kimonas and fans were the rule.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS HAVE CAMP SAVINGS BANK

A Camp Savings Bank has been opened in the Boys' Department of the Young Men's Christian Association. Deposits will be received from now until June 13, the date on which the campers will depart for their two weeks' outing, in amounts ranging from five cents up. The object of the bank is to help the boys save their spare change, thus making it easier for them to attend the camp. Each depositor will be given a pass card in which will be recorded the amounts deposited from time to time, and the total amount will be refunded to the depositors on June 17, or applied upon their camp account. The depositors in this bank do not obligate themselves to attend the camp. If they change their minds about going, the deposits will be refunded, but not until June 17. Many boys are taking advantage of this convenient way of saving money and are denying themselves candy, ice cream and street car rides in order to swell their accounts.

The Camp Director, T. S. Caldwell, states that under no circumstances will more than ninety-six boys be taken to camp this year. Preparations are being made to accommodate this number at the camp site near Pescadero. The boys are already signing up and reserving their places.

GOLDEN GATE FIELD WORK IS UNDER WAY

Superintendent Dickie of the Oakland recreation department has announced that bids are now being received for the [illegible] Gate playground, located at Sixty-second street and San Pablo avenue. Work on the site will be commenced in the near future, and it is planned to operate the playground some time during the present year. A large field house which will be used as a social center, will greatly increase the usefulness of the new institution. Athletic fields and gymnasium apparatus will also be provided.

AFTER VACATION IS REST

House Is Set on Hill; Hence, Building Pains

(By AUSTIN JEROME.)

Since Shaw and Chesterton made the paradox popular, the propounder of paradoxes has been considered clever and a wit. I am thinking seriously of establishing a reputation as a wit, for I have discovered a paradox. This is the way of it. I have but recently returned from a fortnight's vacation, and have not yet fully recovered from its effects. I was met on the street the other day by a friend, who inquired.

"How did you spend your vacation?"

ner as nearly Shavian or Chestertonian as I could assume, I sprung my paradox:

"I didn't spend it, I invested it."

There was my paradox, discovered and applied, but oh, at what awful cost.

A sentimental fondness for green fields and running brooks, coupled with the winning wiles of a 250-pound real estate agent, were responsible in the major part for the discovery of the paradox, for instead of going fishing, hunting, or lazying around some summer resort, the above considerations impelled me to buy a wooded lot and to build a house on it. So was my time of leisure invested, and not spent.

IN BUCOLIC STRAIN.

When I alighted from the electric at the little station in the hills which seemed to have no reason for existing, the weighty consideration hereinbefore mentioned was on hand to greet me. He greeted me effusively, and by name, having accomplished the feat possible only to real estate agents of remembering my cognomen from the time that I had ventured into his uptown office to make some timid inquiries as to country real estate. Then we walked over to the property, but it was not as easily done as said, for that walk included pounding the ties for a quarter mile, and then a long and breathless ascent up a 150 per cent grade.

At last we arrived at the lot he had selected as the one exactly suited to my tastes. It appeared to make no difference that the price was over twice that for the lots in which I had been interested—he was sure that it was just the lot for me, and at length, intoxicated by that new, strong wine of spring of which the poets sing, I also became convinced. So I signed a contract to pay seventy dollars down, and fifteen dollars a month, crossed his palm with gold, and then my troubles began. We descended the hill, and reached the railroad, when it occurred to me to inquire how I could get my lumber up to the lot. Then he explained that the best way to do would be to have it shipped by freight from Oakland. The freight he said came out daily at some time from 4.30 to 10 p. m. While it did not stop within two miles of tract, one could if one were watchful, lay in ambush until it appeared, flag the train, and have the cargo dumped at the foot of the hill.

THE REST IS EASY.

"How about getting it up the hill?" I inquired.

Well, there was only the trail up the hill, at present, he explained, and it was too steep for horses, so the only thing to do was to carry it up. I looked at the hill, and at the track, and the perspiration commenced to flow in anticipation. Ed hastened to explain that the ascent was only 400 feet, in an air line, and not much found little comfort in this. However, the fat was in the fire and the next day I became a builder.

Armed with an ax and a shovel, I started to make my house. It took half a day to run my boundaries.

The rest of the day I cut brush and cleared a space for the house.

The next day I nursed my poison oak.

The next day the lumber arrived.

Friday I carried two pieces of lumber up the hill.

Saturday I laid the foundation.

Sunday I imported some of my friends, and building operations were started.

The week had gone, and the investment had not progressed very fast. So on Monday I sailed right in, determined to produce results. Now from the time I was small, it has been a family fiction that I am not a good mechanic. Once I worked for a jobbing carpenter, and when I had consumed half a day and six panes of glass in trying to put in a small window, he came to the same conclusion.

WHAT HAPPENED NEXT.

"But they were all wrong, for on that Monday, I found myself. Four blood-blisters, a crushed thumb, and a hatchet cut on one hand made me feel like a thorough veteran carpenter. And I did get results. The floor was all laid before sunset, and in no cases were the cracks between the boards more than an inch wide. Of course, it was unfortunate that the hardware clerk had misinterpreted my order and given me thin finishing nails instead of the common kind, and I suppose that may really have had something to do with the floor warping as badly as it did, but, then, that was not my fault. By the end of the week, the affair commenced to look like a house. I had determined to provide for a great many windows and so I did. This makes the fact relatively unimportant that through a slight oversight, I had neglected to provide for a chimney. I can stick the thing out of one of the windows and I daresay that the effect will be rather novel.

My vacation is over now, and I am going to hire a carpenter to finish the house.

But my time was invested, anyhow.

GARFIELD GIRLS HAVE TWO ATHLETIC CLUBS

Two athletic clubs for girls have been organized at the Garfield school playground. The Senior organization consists of 20 girls between the ages of 13 and 15, while the Juniors comprise 15 lassies under 12 years in age. Competition between the club members has increased the number of activities and improved the spirit of play among the girls who attend the Garfield play center. Improvements now under way on the grounds will soon be completed, and their completion will enable the play center to provide for the recreational needs of a greater number of people. Miss Stoops is in charge of the work among the girls at Garfield.

PIGMIES OF MOSSWOOD LOSE LEAGUE CONTEST

A game in the Mosswood Tiny League played last Saturday resulted in a win for the Bantams over the Pigmies by the overwhelming score of 19 to 4. Maguire was the star of the winning aggregation, crossing the plate on five occasions and emptying a full house with a smashing three-bagger in the fourth inning. The lineups follows:

POPLAR STREET BANTAMS DEFEATED

The Bantam baseball team representing Mosswood defeated the Poplar street Bantams in a fast game at Mosswood park last Saturday. The score was 6 to 4, and Mosswood managed to be on the long end through the great pitching of Proctor, and the slashing attacks of the home team's batsmen on the offerings of Hilder Vice of the Poplar street contingent. Poole was the noblest willow-wielder of them all, scoring one run and being responsible for the scoring of three of his team mates. Coogan, left-fielder, and Sheehan, third-baseman for the losers, were to stars of their side. The teams lined up as follows:

OUTDOOR PLATFORM TO BE ERECTED

An outdoor dancing platform may soon be established at Mosswood Park, according to the plans of the Board of Playground Directors, who at their last meeting instructed Superintendent Dickie to secure plans and estimates for the erection of such a platform. The size of the floor is to be about forty by seventy-five feet. The structure will be partially walled and roofed, and will be used for social and folk-dancing, gymnastic, dramatics and music.

The demand for entertainments such as will be accommodated by the new structure has been great. In many cases, entertainments have been arranged through the playground attendants, and have been presented in the schoolhouses of the city. Plans are now under way for the formation of a band, an orchestra, and a dramatic club at Mosswood Park.

MOSSWOOD PARK IS ATTRACTIVE IN EVENING

Keeping Mosswood Park Playground open evenings continues to attract great throngs of people who seek this charming recreation center in the evening to obtain relaxation from the toil of the day. Nightly attendances have run as high as one thousand, and all the facilities of the park are in constant use. The lighting system has been found to be adequate in most cases, and the dark spots are being rapidly picked out and provided for. During the week, an additional [illegible] will be installed over the boys' gymnasium apparatus.

MAYOR IS LASHED IN COURT BY ACCUSED

EGG HARBOR, N. J., May 30.—That the local city fathers are having their own troubles was demonstrated again here this afternoon, when Adolph Goller was placed on trial on a charge of running a poolroom without a license.

Taking the stand, Goller gave the councilmen present, who had signed the warrant against him, a raking over the coals, saying that there was nothing too low for them to undertake.

He said that his arrest was caused by personal grudge, and when Mayor Mueller ordered an officer present to place him under arrest Goller challenged the mayor, saying:

"You have never been mayor; your wife is mayor."

Fisticuffs were then indulged in and City Marshal Snell had to draw his blackjack to restore order.

Goller finally was fined but appealed the case under $300 bond. The councilmen and mayor then swore out another warrant against him on a charge of blackmail, and he was placed under $2000 bail for the grand jury.

WEDS MAN WHO OWES HER 5-YEAR BOARD BILL

SEATTLE, May 30.—Augusta J. Lamb was granted a divorce by Judge King Dykeman from Herbert Lamb, who, the wife told the court, owed her a five-year board bill when she married him on September 27, 1911, and deserted her three months later.

It was charged that Lamb quit work as soon as he was wed, and that Mrs. Lamb bought him a new suit of clothes and got him a job on a San Francisco boat.

When he arrived at San Francisco said Mrs. Lamb, Herbert sent word for her to get a divorce, that he was not coming back.

The husband told the court that there had been much drinking and carousing about the house after the marriage. He told the court that he was now a janitor on a steamboat.

UNEQUIVOCAL REPLY.

In the early days of Arizona an elderly and pompous chief justice was presiding at the trial of a celebrated murder case. An aged negro had been ruthlessly killed and the only eye witness to the murder was a very small negro boy. When he was called to give his testimony the lawyer for the defense objected on the [illegible] know the nature of an oath and in examining him asked:

"What [illegible] happen to you, if you told a lie?"

"De debbil 'ud git me!" the boy replied.

"Yes, and I'd get you," sternly said the chief justice.

"Dat's jus' what I said!" answered the boy.—National Monthly.

MACDONOUGH

"The House of Bondage" is drawing large houses at the Macdonough Theater where it is being shown daily afternoon and twice nightly. The story is adapted from the novel by the same name by Reginald W. Kaufman.

One of the most vivid pictures ever thrown on the screen, "The Drug Terror" will be shown at the Macdonough Theater for six nights and matinees commencing tomorrow (Monday.) The matinees will start at 3 p. m. and two performances will be given in the evening at 7 p. m., the other at 8:30.

"The Drug Terror," the damnation of a million souls is the only original drug picture in the world and has been endorsed by the Medical Review of Reviews." It shows how shipping clerks in drug stores contract the habit while handling the boxes consigned for shipping. It shows the wife of a drug fiend finding out the awful truth of her husband's strange actions, gives a vivid picture of scenes too often enacted in our public parks, the drug fiend injecting the poison into his wrist or snuffing "snow," as it is called, into his nostrils.

Coming to the Macdonough Theater on Monday night, June 8, for two weeks only, are Willard Mack and Marjorie Rambeau, direct from a highly successful engagement at the Alcazar Theater in San Francisco. Miss Rambeau was for a season one of the most popular leading lady that ever appeared in Oakland.

ORPHEUM.

A diving scene set in elaborate and idyllic style, wherein a brookiet flows among the hills, emptying into a pond, is the dealiner this week at the Twelfth street playhouse, with Odiva "The Water Queen" in diving and swimming exploits. She is a graceful little woman, who first learned the aquatic acts among the pearl divers of Samoa. She has, in addition to her work, a school of trained Pacific sea lions that she puts through a series of astonishing feats. The stage setting, electric effects and other accessories make the act very interesting.

Lillian Shaw, one of the most distinctive comediennes in vaudeville today, comes to the Orpheum this week, with a brand new lot of dialect ballads of the Italian-American. She opens her act with a Hebrew character portrayal and song.

A beautiful art study forms one of the numbers this week which will prove one of the most interesting acts presented by the management for some time. Madam De Serris and her company reproduce famous sculpture and paintings in her "tableaux vivants," and the illusions are marvelous. The choice of subjects is varied, ranging from the artistic temperament of the nude to the "Gleaners" (Millet) and "The Angelus" and "The Two Brothers" (Jazet.) In the reproductions, not a detail has been overlooked, every thing from the buttons of the period to the accessories in paintings depicting Greek war helmets and other properties.

A soprano and tenor team in the persons of Miss Dietrich and Horace Wright will offer a number of happy combinations of operatic and popular melodies. Their singing is well known in America. They were with Fritzi Scheff during one season.

The Aerial Lloyds will give an exhibition of casting. The feats accomplished by these men are daring in the extreme.

The athletic turn of the bill this week is in the hands of the Belleclair Brothers, considered the foremost among American athletes. They began their theatrical tour some three years ago, and since that time have gained international reputation.

The Kelli Duo, the well-known and always welcome accordian artists will return this week.

COLUMBIA

"The Senorita" is the picturesque and appropriate title of Dillon and King's new musical entertainment to be presented at the Columbia Theater, commencing with the matinee today.

Southern California, close to the Mexican border is the locale of the comedians' latest and most pretentious offering. In the forthcoming production the producers have provided an altogether new playground for those jolly characters, Mike and Ike. In "The Senorita" the action concerns the merry-making of a Spanish colony at their hacienda where several interesting and amusing characters are introduced.

In the Columbia's newest production Mike and Ike part company for the first time in many months. Mike will become Miss Mary Ellen Dooley for one week only, which means that Ben T. Dillon, that sterling impersonator of Irish characters, will assume a feminine part in the new comedy. As Mary Ellen Dooley, Ben T. Dillon will doubtless emulate the success he achieved in a similar impersonation at the Columbia over a year ago.

The story provides for many ludicrous scenes between Mary Ellen and her affinity, Ike Leschinski. The pair are involved in several complications that are extremely laughable. The plot also contains many scenes in which the other characters are afforded excellent opportunities for fun-making.

Another new face will be noticeable in the ranks of the Columbia players this week. George Spaulding, a well-known comedian and producer, will make his first Oakland appearance in the important role of Valejo.

Producer Ben Dillon and his capable assistant, Jack Hayward, have arranged a most attractive musical program for the entertainment of Columbia patrons.

PANTAGES

Patrons of the Pantages theater in Oakland may look forward to a most entertaining bill of vaudeville in the new program of eight acts to be presented for the week starting Sunday afternoon.

Two players well established in the good graces of the Oakland public will make their first appearance at the Pantages. They are Landers Stevens and Georgie Cooper, accompanied by a large supporting cast and who will present here for the first time, Walter Montague's latest playlet, "The New Chief of Police."

Patrons of the Pantages may also look forward to a riot of laughter when Fields and Lewis, well known Eastern star comedians, present their farce "The Misery of a Hansom Cab."

One of the novelties will be Torcat and Flor D'Alia, who will present a troupe of trained roosters. The act is the only one of its kind in vaudeville.

Another feature will be the Luigi Piccaro troupe of whirlwind acrobats and builders of pyramids; the Sisters Gerhardt, who have exceptional voices and dress in stunning fashion; a mystery act presented by the Halkings; Tracey, Goertz and Tracy, singers and instrumentalists, and Keystone first run comedy motion pictures.

IDORA PARK

For the two big concerts to be given by the Thaviu band at Idora park this afternoon and tonight exceptionally interesting programs have been announced and big crowds are anticipated.

Seldom in the history of any amusement park in the United States has so great an attraction as the big Thaviu band given free nightly concerts for a season. The Thaviu band will be at Idora park only a few weeks longer, and music lovers are taking advantage of the opportunity given them to hear popular and classical music rendered as it should be rendered by a band of skillful musicians under the direction of an exceptionally capable and magnetic leader.

Thaviu is a band director of dynamic personality. It is a pleasure not only to listen to the band when he is wielding the baton, but to watch the nervous little Russian whipping his men up to the stirring fortissimo passages, or taming the entire band to a miracle of a melodious whisper in the pianissimo. Thaviu works with his hands and head and body, and even on occasions stamps with his feet, or does a little dance step to insure the perfect rhythm and to show his delight if the music is just right.

Included in the band concerts are operatic selections sung by the troupe of grand opera stars in the Thaviu aggregation. Of the singers, Madame Emilia Leovalli, heard here in grand opera with the Lambardi company several seasons ago, has proved the prime favorite. Madame Leovalli has a voice of rare beauty and of fine richness and quality. The concerts are given free in the canopied amphitheater.

Creation, the great photo drama prepared as a non-sectarian and scientific epitome of the belief of mankind as to its genesis, will be given in the Idora park theater, opening tomorrow. Large crowds are expected to attend, as the moving picture presentation of the prehistoric life of mankind and of this earth is one of the most spectacular films ever produced.

OAKLAND PHOTO

Rivaling in the stateliness of its background the best of the European productions, "The Port of Missing Men," the five-part Famous Players master-piece, the feature of the today-to-Wednesday program at the popular Oakland Photo theater, will have unusual attractiveness for picture-goers. As knowledge of the identity of the great estate appearing in this production will have interest, it may be said that it is the Georgian Court, the Lakewood home of George Gould. Access to the grounds and premises is said to have been gained through the firendship subsisting between the star of the play and the owner of the magnificent estate. Matching the picturesqueness of the mansion, its spacious grounds and groves, and its long tree-lined approach are the elaborate interiors. It is most truly a finely staged photo play.

Arnold Daly, one of the foremost stars of the modern stage, famed as an exponent of the "intellectual" motion pictures in "The Port of Missing Men," that popular story of foreign intrigue and romantic adventure by the famous novelist, Meredith Nicholson. Mr. Daly's subtle delineation of character and his delicate artistry have earned him a host of admirers throughout the world. Those who remember his polished and precise portrayal of Napoleon in Bernard Shaw's "Man of Destiny," will quickly recognize his special fitness for the role of John Armitage, the clever and daring subject of a mythical kingdom, who comes to the United States and becomes imbued with the spirit of American democracy and who later outwits the spies of his country's enemies, does great service for the empire and yet remains loyal to his adopted country, America, also showing himself no unskilled adept at the art of love-making.

The story is one of intrigue for the recognition of an heir to a throne of a mythical kingdom. There are excellent situations, especially in the last part, where the action is accelerated.

ALCAZAR

The farewell week of Willard Mack and Marjorie Rambeau at the Alcazar Theater will be ushered in tomorrow night. It will be a divided week. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, a revival of Willard Macks' sensational play, "So Much For So Much," which scored such a triumph on the occasion of its first production here a few weeks ago, will be made by request. Beginning with the Thursday matinee a splendid production, for the first time in San Francisco, of Willard Mack's new play, "Their Market Value," will be offered.

It tells a big human story with the wonderful Mack force of characterization that is so compelling. Mack and Miss Rambeau will appear in the two leading roles and they will be supported by the cream of the Alcazar players. Following their engagement at the Alcazar they will play a brief season at the Macdonough Theater in Oakland, beginning Monday night, June 8, in "So Much For So Much."

TON OF FLOUR CAUSES PARCEL POST TROUBLE

KEMMERER, Wyo., May 30.—Charles Bird, the Opal-Pinedale mail contractor reports mail conditions at Opal getting more serious as the open weather approaches.

Sunday there arrived there a ton of flour bound for Bondurant, and encased only in the light sacks used for local delivery. Some of this flour is already broken open, and it will be hard to handle.

About 5000 pounds of mail is now stored there which is going out slowly, the stage being able to only take about 1500 pounds daily.

The roads have been bad, and with the increase in the parcel post business there will be much for the contractor to do up to the last day of June, when he says he will quit his job.

IN Alameda County LODGE-ROOMS

Last Saturday evening, Oakland Rebekah Lodge No. 16 held its regular weekly session. Noble Grand Arabella Eaton presided. Three candidates were elected to membership by transfer, followed by the nomination of officers for the ensuing term. Secretary Clara Noble read a report of the Rebekah State Assembly, which met in Santa Cruz May 12 to 16 inclusive. By motion of lodge letters of condolence were sent to Sister Sophia Hood and Sister Elmore. Under good of order, speeches were made by Sister Ethel P. Foster and Sister Elsie Spencer, both of Asbit Invidia, and Brother de Barrows, who has recently returned from the Panama canal. The officers drilled preparatory to initiation.

Last Monday evening Brooklyn Rebekah Lodge No. 12 held its regular weekly session. Noble Grand Fannie K. Renshaw presided. Nomination of officers was held. Remarks were made by Sister Straube of Golden Link and Sister Bickell of No. 16. Lodge closed and whist was enjoyed.

Last Tuesday evening Absit Invidia Rebekah Lodge No. 11 held its regular weekly session. Noble Grand Arabella Eaton presided. The deputy retired and introduced the Warden of the Assembly, Sister Page Desda Ritter, and Mary E. Donoho, Secretary of the Assembly, who were given seats of honor. One applicant for membership by transfer and one by card was presented and a committee appointed on the same. Four candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Rebekah degree and as the team returned after initiation, each carried a bouquet of flowers and gave a flower to one of the newly elected Warden of the Assembly, Sister Page Desda Ritter. Ethel P. Foster, the Past Mistress, recited an original poem. Sister Foster, chairman of the delegates, read the minutes of the twenty-fourth session of the Rebekah State Assembly and called on Sister Carl to report on the Gilroy orphans' home, and also called upon Sister Elsie Spencer to assist. Three sisters gave their reports in a very impressive manner. The noble grand appointed Sister Etta T. Wilson chairman of the committee for the month of June.

FORESTERS.

Companion Court Oakland, No. 790, will hold a boost meeting in June. The High Chief Ranger, J. P. Murphy of San Francisco, will be present. The committee on entertainment has arranged a strawberry social for that evening.

PYTHIAN SISTERS.

Tuesday evening Calanthe Temple tendered a reception to the delegates who recently returned from the Grand Temple session held at Sacramento May 19-21. The reports given by the delegates show the order to be in a prosperous condition both in numbers and financially.

Visitors were present from Contra Costa Temple of Richmond, Purity Temple of Los Angeles, Olympic Temple of Grass Valley, California Temple of Sacramento, and from the jurisdiction of Illinois.

After the speeches on the good of the order, refreshments were served under the supervision of P. C. Dana. Sisters Smith, Jones, Nelson and Ardeleanu. The semi-annual election of officers will occur at the next meeting. The second meeting will be devoted to whist and the third to initiation.

RELIEF CORPS.

Tuesday afternoon Lyon Corps held a short business session. Mrs. Florence Flieler presided. Following the session the annual memorial services were held for deceased members. The late Lena Drais and Mrs. Margaret Le Blanc. The chaplain, Mrs. Kate Renshaw, conducted the services. Eulogies were spoken in behalf of the deceased members by Mrs. Helen Luther and Mrs. Mary Veirs. The members were assisted by the Misses Velma and Dorris Scoville, Pearl Waterman, Josephine Hartman, Thelma Williams, Helen McDonald and Bernice Borchert. The recitation given by Bernice Borchet was rendered in a very fitting manner. Visiting comrades and friends were present also. The F. C. & L. club will resume operations on next Tuesday, and a large attendance is expected as there is work to be done.

FRATERNAL BROTHERHOOD.

Maple Leaf Lodge No. 366, of the Fraternal Brotherhood, met last Monday night. President H. A. Luttrell in the chair. Two applications were balloted on and elected to become members. After the business meeting a social was enjoyed. Dancing was the pastime. The music was furnished by Mrs. Rogers and Miss O'Brien.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS.

Cherokee Council No. 137, Degree of Pocahontas, Improved Order of Redmen, held its regular weekly meeting Tuesday evening in East Oakland. Pocahontas Cara Mora Hill presided. After a short business meeting and nomination of officer, members and friends adjourned to the prettily decorated banquet hall and enjoyed refreshments prepared by the committee in honor of the first anniversary of the council. Toasts and remarks were made during the evening by the different officers and members.

Cherokee drill team will take part in the competition of teams to be given in San Francisco.

Laruka Council No. 46, Degree of Pocahontas of the Improved Order of Redmen, met Monday evening. Sister Williams held the tomahawk during the burning of the council fire. Three candidates were initiated by the team of Cherokee Council. After the initiation the members donated prizes for a whist party to be given at their next meeting. The members will visit to Cherokee council next month to enjoy whist.

MACCABEES.

The regular review of Oakland Tent No. 17 was held Monday evening, May 25. Following the regular order of business there was a dance. The semi-annual election of officers will take place at the next meeting.

Oakland Hive No. 14 met Thursday evening at the Maccabee Temple, Eleventh and Clay streets, Lady Commander Mabel Myers presiding. Lady Black, chairman on Committee of Cantata, reported the affair a financial success. The following were invited to serve on committee for "Mothers' Day," which will be held in the near future at Maccabee Temple: Ladies Black, Allison, Kipke, Smilee, Waterhouse and Bell. The visiting committee made a report of their visits. Ladies Webb, Hazelback and Millan were appointed on the visiting committee. The sewing bee will meet at Lady Maddern's home, 2010 Seventh avenue. Members and guards initiation will be held.

RELIEF CORPS.

Last Sunday morning Mrs. Brinkerhoff, patriotic instructor of Annomattox Corps, presented a flag to the Seventeenth Street Methodist Sunday school. The infant class marched with flags. Mrs. Daul, daughter of a veteran, sang the new Decoration song and Miss Hyde, a granddaughter of a veteran, was organist. Comrade Brinkerhoff, chaplain of the post, gave the address. The superintendent, L. H. Elliot, received the flag in the name of the Sunday school. Closing remarks were made by the pastor, J. H. Wipsar. At 11 o'clock the post and corps attended services at the Union street Presbyterian church. In the evening the post and corps attended the Memorial song service at the First Presbyterian church, Twenty-sixth and Broadway. Thursday afternoon the corps held Memorial services for those members who died during the year. Mrs. Daul and Miss Hyde sang the hymns.

UNITED ARTISANS.

United Artisans, Golden Gate Assembly, held a short business meeting last Monday evening. Supreme Instructor Sister Watt left for Salem, Oregon. She will visit there for a few days before going to Portland to attend the Rose carnival. Mrs. Watt will remain in the north during the summer. She will visit the assemblies in that section, and will return to California in the winter. Two candidates were given the obligation. The members of the assembly presented Sister Watt with a token as a memento of their esteem. At 9 o'clock the doors were opened and many visitors took part in the social hour. Dancing was the pastime.

LADIES OF G. A. R.

Colonel John B. Wyman Circle No. 22 met for a regular business session last Tuesday afternoon. Considerable routine business was disposed of. One comrade made application for membership and was escorted to the altar and obligated.

Memorial services were held during the afternoon for departed sisters and comrades who died during the past year. There was a large attendance. Several visitors were present. The sewing bee will meet at the home of Mrs. Josephine E. Gearhard, 83 Echo avenue, from 10 o'clock until 4 o'clock.

BRIDEGROOM IS 84, BRIDE 82.

[illegible] May 30.—[illegible] a wedding celebrated in the Confederate Home near Little Rock, the combined ages of the bride, the bridegroom and the officiating minister were 261 years. The bridegroom is W. L. Griffing, aged 84 years, a veteran of the war between the states, and the bride is Mrs. Jane Griffith, a veteran's widow, aged 82. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Benjamin Franklin Garrett, 96 years old.

SHOT FIRES CLOTHING.

FREEPORT, Ill., May 30.—Lying on a cot in the hospital, Agnes Schoonhoven, aged 17, dangerously wounded, told of a struggle for life which she had with a burglar, who she claims shot her. The girl, left alone in her home, ran screaming into the street with her clothing ablaze from the powder flash. Carl Smith, a neighbor, threw his coat around her, smothering the flames. The police are investigating.

AROUND THE LIBRARY TABLE BY MOLLIE E. CONNERS

"THE AMAZING ARGENTINE" is the name of an important new book of the day. The book is pro-British, by a British author, John Foster Fraser, and comes from the British house of Cassell & Company, through Funk & Wagnalls, their American representatives. While we may not altogether agree with the author's point of view, especially when he refers to President Wilson, the book is important, as giving us the work of a thoughtful author, who has made a careful study of South American conditions. The point of view is specially interesting now that A. B. C mediation is to the foreground in the public mind.

"The manner in which the United States got possession of territory in Central America in order to construct the Panama canal rankles in the minds of Argentines, as it does in the minds of most other South Americans. Bitter though the feeling is between rival South American States they are at one in their resentment of United States patronage," and the author further states:

"Occasionally United States ministers of high position travel south, and beat the pan-American drum. They are received politely, but there is chilliness in the [illegible]—or they [illegible] surmise—do not trust the United States. I think I am well within the facts when I state that there is an agreement between Argentina, Brazil and Chili—known as the A. B. C combination—to take common action if there is any step south of the Panama isthmus savoring of aggression on the part of the United States.

"Both in Argentina and Brazil, when I conversed with public men, I was given clearly to understand how deep seated is this dislike of the United States. There is annoyance at the manner in which President Woodrow Wilson has lectured the Latin republics of America [illegible] ing concessions to European syndicates for the development of their countries. President Wilson laid it down that the growth of foreign interests in these republics was unwholesome, because they were sure to influence the political life; therefore, he said, it was the duty of the United States to assist in emancipating them from such subordination.

"This was a considerable extension of the Monroe doctrine. The much-preached creed that the United States will not tolerate any other power acquiring territory in the western hemisphere had been expanded to mean that the United States is going to use its influence to free the Latin republics from being under obligation to European countries which have given their millions of gold toward making these republics commercially prosperous which, so far as financial assistance from the United States counts, would have remained practically undeveloped."

CONDITIONS AMAZING.

Conditions in the Argentine are amazing, the book deserves its name. And it may be that the difficulty with Mexico, and the mediation of the A. B. C. combination will give us a better understanding of that great territory lying to the south of us, and of the Latin peoples who are our neighbors on the South American continent. The point of view of an Englishman, while it does not bring complimentary pictures of American diplomacy, has yet its educational value.

CONQUEST OF THE TROPICS.

"Conquest of the Tropics" (Doubleday, Page & Company), by Frederick Upham Adams, is the story of the development of a big business, "The United Fruit Company." It is the first of a series of volumes planned to describe big businesses, and it is wonderfully far reaching in its results. The book has for its initial sentence a quotation from one of President Wilson's addresses:

"I am not jealous of the size of any business. I am not jealous of any progress or growth no matter how huge the result was, indeed obtained by the processes of wholesome development, which are the processes of efficiency, of economy, of intelligence and of invention."

The author has given to the literary and business world a most admirable book. While the motif of the story is "The Modest but Mighty Banana," that is only a part of most absorbing story. One learns to know as never before such tropical countries as Guatemala, the coast of South America, Panama, the Sugar Bowl of Cuba.

The descriptions are wonderfully picturesque, and they seem to be written without much effort. There is a spontaneity about them that is most charming.

The story of the "United Fruit Company" is a story of the peaceful and honorable conquest of a portion of the American tropics, and the fruit company has scored best in its planting of the banana in various tropical countries.

One learns a lot about "the mighty banana." In the first place it does not grow wild. It has to be cultivated.

"The natives of the tropics do not permit a banana to ripen on its stem, for the good and sufficient reason that such a banana is hardly fit to eat. As a rule tropical fruits are [illegible] by the natives and allowed to ripen artificially. Therefore do not continue to think you are getting the worst of it because the bananas which you eat at home come here green. Nature knows how to grow bananas, man had to learn how to ripen them. Tropical nature left to herself creates foodless jungles and miasmic swamps. The banana of commerce is one of man's proud triumphs over nature."

There is an absorbingly interesting account of the difficulties of reclaiming the jungle and planting banana palms, and a graphic account is given of the methods employed in bringing bananas from far away Cuba or Costa Rica to New York or to New Orleans.

The food values are also given in a most fascinating fashion. One has now the results of 20 years of creative work, and it gives one an inspiring history of human endurance, effort and achievement.

But aside from all that the book is a charming volume of travel. There is a great spirit of comradeship that seizes upon one and promptly carries one off to Cuba, to Jamaica, to Costa Rica. Nothing that William Black ever gave to the world of color pictures of the Hebrides, is any more effective than these charming studies of lovely scenery in the tropical West Indies.

Over and over again, wonderfully charming color studies are revealed. In a little place in Panama for instance, is a colorful bit of scenery.

EXPOSITION OF VEGETATION.

"All about us is a veritable exposition of tropical vegetation. Surrounding the buildings are scores of forms of palms, some of them dwarfed, others towering to the blue before the fronds burst into the gorgeous plums of the royal palm. High up in Ceiba trees cling festoons of orchids, absorbing from the air the beauties of its stars and the tints of its rainbows. But what's the use? When no man can paint, much less describe a single lily, what chance is there to compose in words a single strain in the divine scenic harmony of this gem of the tropics?"

"Orchids flaming from a lace work of Spanish moss."

One would love to quote extensively from the many delightful descriptions that lend a rare charm to the book. They have a true poetic quality, and many people will be led thereby to take midsummer trips to the "sanitary tropics." For is it not proven to us that it is far cooler on the tropical coast lines than in the heart of the Middle West?

In the east there are many comparisons being made between the cost of apples and bananas.

"There is no secret about the low cost of bananas. They are produced and handled on an enormous scale by companies which put them on the market without the intervention of middlemen, who extort large commissions. These companies have learned that there is more money for them in selling a huge total of product at a low net profit than there is in extracting a high profit from small sales at prices prohibited to the average consumer.

"When those in the apple industry learn this lesson there will be more orchards, less apples rotting on the ground, and more prosperity and happiness for all concerned. Consider the banana."

There is a good deal of humor in many of the descriptions and in the joy of the repeal of the tariff on bananas — the spirit of poetry writes:

"You may tax the silk stockings from Paris,
Or the hat from the street of peace,
Or the jewels the women folk carry
From the land of the aureate fleece;
Or the smoky old Scotch from Glengarry,
Or the braid that was made in Milan,
But the President's sure
You will injure the poor
If you tax the nutritious banan'!"

One last word as to when to eat one's banana. The yellow banana is not ripe, and is one-fifth starch. When the skin begins to shrink and darken the banana is ripe, and is one-fifth sugar, and that is the time to eat it.

"The illustrations are exceedingly beautiful, and this initial volume is so successful, that readers of it will look eagerly forward to the appearance of the next number of the series.

"THE INTERVENING LADY."

"The Intervening Lady," by Edgar Jepson of the Bobbs-Merrill company, [illegible] the bright writers for these publishers has an interesting word to say of the new book and its author:

"Do you recall Pollyooly, that delightful little auburn haired tot whom Edgar Jepson introduced a year or so ago? You do? Well, we're really not surprised, for Pollyooly's the kind of a character it's hard to forget.

"And can't you remember what a pleasure it was to follow 'The Terrible Twins' through their schemes and plots [illegible] Mr. Jepson introduced them to American readers—Erebus and the Terror, he called them, who engineered their mother's selection of a second husband with the skill of the proverbial old gods on Olympus."

"Yes? Well, that's not surprising, either! 'The Terrible Twins' were quite as entertaining in their way as the lovable little 'Pollyooly.'

"Now Edgar Jepson presents another inimitable personage, the Lady Noggs, niece of the prime minister of England and herself a figure at the court of Cupid in the realm of love and courtship. She's 'The Intervening Lady'—just the type you would fall for if you were a man and the kind you would tell all of your troubles to and confide your secrets in if you were a woman.

"For 'The Intervening Lady' is one little charmer—some girl. You will enjoy her company, we are sure."

The new book has been compared to a little wild flower, bright, colorful, refreshing—looking out at one from a background of much more solid fiction. "The Intervening Lady" is a story in two parts, and the author has undertaken a very difficult task. The story of a child life is always interesting; it is original, unusual for every child life is unique, and different from every other in the world.

But to carry that life on is a very difficult problem. Dickens succeeded in David Copperfield and Thackeray carried the life of Pendennis successfully on. But many writers fail in sustained effort, and the author of "The Intervening Lady" set himself a difficult task, because he made her thoroughly charming in her childhood.

"The Intervening Lady" is the Lady Felicia of the English aristocracy. She is a very beautiful little girl when the story opens, and she is a very rich little girl, with an income of $50,000 a year, and she has a lot of common sense, and fate's great good gift of humor. And they call her "Lady Noggs" and that is not her name at all, and sometimes they call her just "Noggs" for short.

And the career of "Noggs" as a child is wonderfully interesting and one cannot help believing that Lady Noggs was sketched from real life.

She is very adventurous and she loves to climb fences, and to tease disagreeable people, and to manage other people's affairs. That is why she is named "The Intervening Lady."

And then we come to book two, in which we find Lady Noggs grown up, but with the same penchant for intervening, and settling other people's affairs, and she does it all in her own unique way, and in a fashion that is most amusing. It is a story of "high life." Lady Noggs belongs to the English aristocracy, and she has a delightful old uncle who is a prime minister. There is a touch of romance in the story, too, the young artist is charming. The atmosphere of the book is bright, and Noggs is so very refreshing that one cannot do better than to spend a long summer afternoon with her on a shady porch. She is the most entertaining young person that has stepped out of the world of fiction in many days.

BOOK OF ESSAYS.

"A Stepdaughter of the Prairies" (Macmillan), by Margaret Lynn is a book of charming essays, many of which have appeared in the pages of the Atlantic Monthly. They give very vivid pictures of prairie life, and those given from the child's point of view are very charming.

There is a specially delightful essay "A Prairie Caravansary," and the youngness of spirit one finds in it, is most alluring.

"When one came home from school one went to the kitchen door, because when one appeared in the front of the house—if one were a little girl—with dinnerpail on arm and hair ribbon off and straight hair flying and apron mussed and hat hanging by its elastic, they did not look approving. For after the manner of children we gave distinct remoteness to the older generation by calling them, collectively, They.

"Defined extensively, They included our parents, who both belonged and did not belong, an intermittent grandparent or two, some floating uncles and aunts, the teacher when she boarded with us, all grown up visitors who stayed over a week at once, any preachers at the place, however brief their visit, and anyone else who might be regarded as embodying mature opinion."

The author was herself the dear little girl of these stories, and we sympathize with her when she names her calf Zenobia-Joan of Arc-Victoria, because she only had one calf.

"For a while we named animals after relatives and acquaintances, but that custom led several times to embarrassing [illegible] when tempting [illegible] for recognition."

We in California can truly sympathize with those prairie children when they were patronized by their eastern visitors. Much have Californians suffered in that line themselves. The children had it all outlined in this fashion:

"On the one hand was the God-given superiority, modestly but inevitably expressed of the comer from beyond the Alleghanies—coupled with this was the vanity bred of contact with street cars, and ice cream sodas, and electric lights and fine companies.

"We found it hard to interest our visitors with our meager resources, even though we could ride our ponies like wild Indians.

"We were not very good hosts, and who would want to give up the long afternoons when we lay stretched on the grass under a box elder tree, two reading from one book which neither could wait for, with elbow to elbow and shoulder to shoulder, and no word betwen us but, 'Ready to turn?' Who could give up reading like this even for company?"

But the children had their "innings." When they were finally taken to the city, they expressed little or no surprise, everything was just as they thought it would be only the people wer all in a hurry, "and anyhow fancy showing off a pathetic little park to children brought up on the prairies!"

"If there was any one thing which distinguished prairie life, it was that no one talked much about money. Such talk was simply not there at all. I suppose there must have been a current of consideration running along under the more important matters of life. Certainly there were some things we could have and some we could not. But who wanted luxury, anyway? We did not know what the relative financial standing of our visitors was—or even of our neighbors, for that matter, although we guessed that some were poor and others were not."

And the last chapter contains a most wonderful description of the prairie, stretching far away under the golden light of the September sun. It is a wonderfully colorful description—one with wide horizons.—and it is a privilege to have seen the prairies under the guidance of so clever an author. It is a fine interpretation that she gives us.

The human element in the many chapters is delightful,—and the book is a contribution to the best literature of the day.

CASTLE ON DANCING.

Vernon Castle, co-author with Mrs. Castle of "Modern Dancing," is a graduate of the School of Engineering, Birmingham University, and came to this country with the intention of following his profession of electrical engineer. Instead he took the advice of his brother-in-law, George Grossmith, and acted in several musical comedies, after which he began to teach dancing two years ago.

STORM CENTER OF YEAR.

The book which was the great storm center of the year was Ellen Glasgow's "Virginia." About it raged the public with much fury, differing opinions. Glascow does not now stand alone—with her is Oppenheim, who practically takes her view point in his latest book, "Idle Wives." Miss Glasgow has been called upon to explain many things in her book.—and to give her opinion in many other things as well.

"The hardest traditions to shake are those relating to women," says Ellen Glasgow. "When woman herself has [illegible] man's ideal of her that she has cheerfully defied both her soul and her body after the model he put before her, one can hardly demand of a man novelist that he should write of her as she is and not as he desires her to be. Ages of false thinking about her on the part of others have bred in woman the dangerous habit of false thinking about herself, and she has denied her own humanity so long and so earnestly that she has come at last almost to believe in the truth of her denial.

"Because it has pleased man to imagine that woman is passive and hates change, no English writer of fiction before George Meredith—or I may say, instead, before Mr. Hardy—ever dared to recognize that she is and always has been in her heart at least the adventurous sex."

MOST POPULAR NOVELIST.

In the literary gossip of the day one reads:

"One of the big circulating libraries of London reports that the most popular novelist among its subscribers is Mrs. Florence Barclay, with Miss Marie Corelli a good second. Who expected a rating for Mrs. Humphrey Ward, or Lucas Malet, or Arnold Bennett, or H. G. Wells? That is where the test of real popularity is made, in a big circulating library. Mrs. Barclay writes highly moral stories. Among them are "The Rosary," and "The Broken Halo." Her last book was entitled, "East of the Shadows." She is a clergyman's wife, and she has no clubs. She lives quietly at a country vicarage in Hertfortshire, and every now and then writes a book that circulates in the hundreds of thousands. The critics do not bother about [illegible] and the best [illegible] critics. She knows how to tell a story, and she finds stories to tell."

MOLLIE E. CONNERS.

RAT ENTERS ROOM; POLICEMEN FLEE

Large Gray Rodent Sends the Coppers Scurrying Like So Many Women.

CHICAGO, May 30.—"Oh, rats!" growled Lieutenant John McMahon in response to an excuse for a slight delinquency in duty offered by one of fifty policemen drawn up in line for today's roll call in the central detail station.

"Oh, rats!" said the lieutenant again, by way of accenting his contempt for the patrolman's inefficiency.

"Rats!"

This time it was re-echoed in yells and roars by a dozen officers in chorus. [illegible] ing and pounding the floor with their clubs.

"Rats!" shouted the rest of the policemen and the military rows of roll call broke up like a federal (Mexican) skirmish under a rebel fire.

The squadroom was a madhouse. It seemed to Lieutenant McMahon until he [illegible] ing under the dreadnought shoes of his gallant men. In spite of the volleys of heel thuds and the occasional cry of a man with a tender corn, the rat succeeded in retreating into a room where Sergeant John Anderson, a first class detective, was instructing a bunch of second class sergeants. As rat catchers they all proved themselves third class.

The rat escaped to its bandit lair and the work of setting furniture to rights and recovering breath delayed roll call fifteen minutes.

BURGLAR RETURNS LOOT.

DUCHESS JUNCTION, N. Y., May 30.—Miss Ruby Bentley is again in possession of her diamond engagement ring, given her by Walter Shipman, as a result of a troubled conscience forcing the burglar who stole it to give it up. Miss Bentley found a package on her doorstep with a note reading: "I could not bear to keep these things any longer. I would return the money, too, if I hadn't spent it. I won't steal any more."

FISH CAN'T CLIMB A DAM.

RENO, Nev., May 30.—Thousands of dead fish line the banks of the Truckee river below Derby dam, as a result of battering themselves to death in efforts to get over the dam. Photographs of the dead fish have been taken and forwarded to Washington, where appeals have been sent by hundreds of sportsmen asking for a fish ladder ever since the construction of the Derby dam. Most of the dead fish are quewe, a very large fish resembling the sucker, but many of them are said to be large salmon from Pyramid lake.

SOCIETY

"OUGHT a rich hostess to entertain elaborately, giving her friends the best time possible, and putting her money into circulation; or ought she to entertain in simple fashion so that her friends may return her social favors?"

This is a many-sided question and one that affords an answer from many viewpoints. Now, of course, there are some hostesses who make a play for simple living and who tell us that they do not like to hurt the feelings of their less fortunate friends—"less fortunate," of course, from a money point of view. A recent writer has a word for the rich woman when he says:

"The rich do not annoy us with their display of wealth; they irritate us only when we are not allowed to participate in these displays. To practice the fine art of simple living a woman must be herself; she must not pretend to be poor. If she does she certainly ceases to be simple, and she fails to be elegant. Only the simple can be elegant, if they have the price. I think it is plain that what we call simplicity in the wealthy is often the height of vulgar ostentation. The simplicity of the rich ought to be the exercise of the gift of magnificence. A really rich woman ought to be magnificent."

Now, therefore, it behooves the rich woman of today to entertain in a manner befitting her station in life. Otherwise her friends are tremendously disappointed. What is the use of going to her house if you only find there what you have in your own home? If rich hostesses could only hear such comments as "stingy old thing," or "mean little miser," they would realize that their heavy pose for simplicity was not bringing the desired results.

One expects lavish entertainment when the hostess can afford it. It gives work to people who need it; it takes money out of the bank and puts it in circulation, and it gives the friends of the hostess a good time. No one believes that when a hostess appears to be economical that she means to be simple. The world has a right to conclude that for the most part she is either selfish or stingy. A hostess should be prepared to give her friends of her best. One expects of a bridge hostess lovely prizes, and the hostess certainly does not expect a like return from women who can not afford it.

Of course, a rich woman, if she is not "a well bred lady," is often very patronizing. But there are ways of meeting that situation. A perfectly true story is going the rounds of the rich woman who offered to buy back a prize which a poorer guest had won. The prize was a lamp and she offered to give the guest the amount which she herself had paid for it. But the bill came to her with what the prize had meant to the woman who won it. It meant the money, plus the skill in bridge, plus the time and trouble she had taken with her wit and cleverness, to entertain very stupid guests, and to lend eclat to what was a heavy afternoon. It was the hostess who told the story, and she said herself that she was "game"—"she knew a lesson when she saw it."

For, of course, the giving is not all on our side. If a hostess gives of her abundant wealth, a guest sometimes gives of her abounding personality, of her wit, of her cleverness, often of her sympathy, and of her rare generous good heart. The personal equation is not always set at its full value, and the rich hostess sometimes thinks that she is the more generous. But that rarely happens. Let her try to give away all she can, without fear of being misunderstood. One expects of the rich generous giving; else why are they rich? And their guests certainly do not expect to go to their homes and to find there only what they have left in their own houses. The finest entertainments in the world are none too good for one's friends, and this gift ought to be expressive of a friendly generosity extended in a spirit of good comradeship.

And the rich hostess need not be afraid that she is setting a bad example, for that can rarely happen in these days when women are bravely thinking for themselves and establishing a standard of independence which is making for right living.

We all love to entertain; let it be commensurate with "that station to which God has been pleased to call us."

ECONOMY AND THAT OTHER EXTREME.

Apropos of economy—or of extravagance—whichever viewpoint one chooses to take—a word of advice comes to women from Greater New York, in which lies the center of our American sisters' fashions. For a wise woman tells her of the Far West that:

"All women have learned that too many gowns are not only a nuisance but an extravagance. And none but the most thoughtless rich woman is careless about spending money. In truth, many of them could give lessons in wisdom to the woman who has a limited income a year to pay all bills.

"One of the richest dressmakers in New York said that if she depended on the women in society and high-sounding names for her income she would still be on a side street; that her income comes from the out-of-town women who come to New York to buy a few smart gowns and did not know the relative prices of gowns or when to economize. She also had to be more careful with the woman who lived in the circle where smart dressing was uniform, because women of that set compared every detail with what the cheaper shops offered and refused anything that was duplicated elsewhere. All of which is to say that the fashionably-dressed women lead in the way in careful choosing of clothes and elimination of that which is unnecessary."

Mrs. McAdoo (Eleanor Wilson) ought to be commended for the very good example she set in choosing the gowns which made up her trousseau. She had just enough to carry her comfortably through the summer, but not a large trousseau that would be out of style by autumn.

DAINTY GOWNS SEEN AT MRS. STOW'S TEA.

Among the daintiest gowns of the week were those seen across the bay at the tea which Mrs. Sherman Stow of Santa Barbara gave at the Fairmont for her two daughters, Mrs. Edward Bruce and Mrs. Kate Stow Ealand. Mrs. Bruce was formerly Peggy Stow, called by her friends "Pretty Peggy Stow," and she has many old-time school friends on this side of the bay, as she is a graduate of the Head school at Berkeley.

The hostess and her guests of honor have been lately in New York, and their gowns were lovely. Mrs. Stow's afternoon gown was of ecru net and black satin. The lower part of the skirt was of black satin and the peplum was of hand-embroidered net. Her black hat was trimmed with tiny bunches of flowers, and lavender orchids at the corsage lent an additional touch of color.

Mrs. Bruce wore a very striking gown of emerald green and her black hat was trimmed with pink roses.

Mrs. Ealand was in dark blue taffeta, with one of those pancake hats which one reads so much about and which one so very seldom sees.

Among the guests who looked exceedingly well at the tea were Mrs. Jack Johnston (Bernice Landers), Mrs. Hewitt Davenport, Mrs. John J. Valentine, Mrs. George S. Towne, Mrs. A. A. Moore, Miss Eleanor Davenport, Miss Margaret Moore.

One of the most daintily gowned of the Burlingame girls is charming Miss Kathleen Finnegan, who used formerly to live in Oakland and who had many friends in what used to be the fashionable section of Oakland—the Lakeside district. Miss Finnegan is wearing a handsome gown of dark blue, with a little fore-and-aft hat of bronze green leaves with pale pink roses.

Among the best gowned girls on our side of the bay is pretty Ernestine McNear, whose gowns always set off her dainty, Dresden-like type of beauty.

Mrs. Joseph R. Knowland is among the most perfectly gowned women whom one meets in the social world, and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Knowland, has lovely gowns as well. Her coming-out gown in Washington was the most attractive of any worn by the debutantes of the winter.

Mrs. William Plummer entertained at a delightful luncheon this week for Miss Doris Wilshire, and among the stunning gowns worn at the luncheon were those of Miss Harriet Stone, Miss Marian Stone and Miss Helen Hinckley.

Mrs. Mark Requa, who returned from New York and London on Wednesday, has some very dainty gowns, and at the Hotel Oakland this week one finds Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Worden. They are usually at the Fairmont, but are spending some days at the Oakland. Mrs. Worden was beautifully gowned at a dinner which she gave at the Oakland this week.

Mrs. Havens looks like a quaint picture in a gown of black taffeta, all beruffled, as is the style of today, and far and away one of the very prettiest of the spring gowns is the really exquisite effect in blue worn by Mrs. George Hammer. The jacket is very stylish, indeed, along unusual lines and beautifully embroidered.

Miss Matilda Brown is very stunning these days in a gown of black taffeta, the skirt all ruffled and the coat lighted with rose-colored velvet. A flat hat trimmed with lilies of the valley completes the costume.

Beautiful Mrs. William Miller Graham, who was in San Francisco last week, was considered to be the best gowned woman across the bay. She won social recognition abroad very easily and she is as well known in Paris and London as she is in San Francisco. She has costumes "galore," each complete to the tip of a tiny shoe, and very few women of the smart set have such wonderfully colorful costumes. Mrs. Graham was greatly entertained in San Francisco during the past week and her costumes were greatly discussed in the heart of smart set affairs.

DOLCE FAR NIENTE DANCES ATTRACTIVE.

Some of the loveliest gowns seen across the bay have been worn at the dances of the Dolce Far Niente Club, which have been held at the Cliff House. The leading spirits in the dances have been Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Crane, who are leaving for New York this week. They leave with regrets from many people, for Mrs. Crane has danced her way into many hearts with her fairy like manners, with her sweet personality and her high ideals of the art of dancing. She brought a message to our doors and we were quick to receive it and we are very grateful to Mrs. Crane for Thursday evening was immensely picturesque. There was a committee on dancing consisting of Mrs. William E. Dargie, Mrs. H. C. Capwell, Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Burr of New York and James Wood and C. O. Berger, also of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Burnham, who were taken on this night of the host as the guests of the Harold Havens, won the cup given by the Douglas Cranes for the best hesitation dancers.

Ernest Wiltsee gave a cup as a tango prize, which was won by Mrs. Frederick Spencer Palmer and Grattan Phillips. The second prize winners were Mrs. John Black and James Kelleher and Mrs. E. A. Worwick and Mr. Dinsmore.

The members of the Dolce Far Niente Club have regarded their dances as highly successful and even though the Douglas Cranes will be gone they hope the dances may continue throughout the summer.

TASTEFUL DRESSING AT OAKLAND AFFAIRS.

Dainty gowns have been much in evidence in Oakland this week, for two delightful afternoons were given by members of the younger sets. Miss Leila Ewing entertained in her home on Vernon Heights, making her guests of honor her sister, Mrs. Joseph Hunt, who is one of the popular brides of the spring, and two pretty brides-elect, Miss Gertrude Adams and Miss Pearl Cawston. Among the lovely gowns of the afternoon were those worn by Mrs. Tyler Henshaw, Mrs. Carroll Ewing, Miss Pauline Adams, Miss Cleo Posey, Miss Elsie Posey, Miss Mabel Ish, Miss Florence Wheeler, Miss Lilla Lovell, Miss Phyllis Lovell, Miss Jean Kennedy, Miss Helen Van Slyke, Miss Etta Schrock, Miss Helen Downey, Miss Marjory Coogan, Miss Helen Coogan, Miss Henshaw.

Miss Anita Crellin entertained at her home in Jackson street on Friday in honor of Miss Gardiner, Miss Wiseman and Miss Edith Harmon. And among the very pretty gowns worn at this bridge party were those of Mrs. Harold Havens, Mrs. Wallace Payne, Mrs. Herbert Erskine (Lovie Holland), Mrs. Morgan Nicholls, Miss Bina Moseley, Miss Margaret Moseley, Miss Helen Bannan, Miss Leila Kenny, Miss Lois Voswinkle, Miss Mildred Porter and the Misses Mitchell.

The Arthur Crellins are going away soon to their home in the Santa Cruz mountains. The Misses Anita and Katherine Crellin are both in the university and they always entertain during the summer many of their college friends.

JOHNSON COMES BACK AT HIS CRITICS.

When Owen Johnson wrote "The Salamander" he said he was prepared for all sorts of criticism. It is quite safe to say—in ordinary parlance—"he got what he was looking for." Or, as it is the other way, "What was coming to him."

He is back at his critics in a way that challenges the attention of larger cities, for in a widely quoted interview he says:

"There is an element of feminism that is truly noble—ready to take on greater responsibilities. There is another profoundly agnostic element that seems to go its way without check.

"What is alarming in this element is that it has not yet reached its full

Tango, and the Complexion

The strenuous exercise of the Tango has the effect of improving the general health and so naturally helps to improve complexions. It has also forced most women to discard face powders because they rub off too readily and fill the pores, making healthy skin-breathing impossible.

If pore-clogging powder were discarded for a plain spurmax lotion, there would be more beautiful complexions and rough, blotchy, unlovely skins would rarely be seen. This lotion is easily prepared at home—just get from your druggist 4 ounces spurmax and dissolve in either ½ pint hot water or witch hazel, and add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This lotion is fine for hot days as it will not spot nor streak and one application lasts an entire day, relieving that shiny, oily appearance. This lotion blends so nicely with the skin that it cannot be detected, and it lends an exquisite charm to the daintiest complexion.

development. Types of these women such as the 'Salamander' types I have been drawing—you will pardon a reference to my book—are, after all, composite types. Their instinct is conservative still, no matter what wild desires may actuate them. The question is, what will come when their children have gone into the world two generations removed from all their own restraint?

"And I might mention, in this connection, it is not only that the average Broadway supper restaurant is as thick with 'salamanders' as the decorations of that famous chateau at Blois, where the guide keeps chanting in your ears relations of the wonder-and her privilege as a means of escape from the boredom of not having anything to do and of not believing in anything."

All of which leads one to wonder about the salamander of today. Does she exist across the bay—and are we all unwittingly gazing often on this new creature, this new development of the later social life? But we can go our way with much serenity, for after all, no one has yet seen the "Salamander" in Oakland!

OAKLANDERS SPEND HAPPY DAYS ABROAD.

One reads in the foreign advices that Berlin's spring time glories are at their zenith and American visitors are arriving in increasing numbers in automobiles.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Schilling, Miss Elsa Schilling and Miss Beatrice Simpson, all of this city, who are abroad, arrived in Berlin last week. They are traveling in their own touring car and are guests at the Hotel Kaisernoh. They made a side trip last week into the picturesque Spreewald country, near Berlin.

They are planning to visit the fa- [illegible] and then Carlsbad Bad Nauheim and Martenbad.

From Berlin also comes news of former San Francisco people, for one reads:

A pretty German-American wedding was celebrated in Berlin Thursday, when Miss Bertha Marcuse of San Francisco became the bride of a young Berlin architect, Adolf Wollenberg. The wedding was attended only by the immediate friends. It took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Morris Marcuse, in the Schiller-Strasse, Charlottenburg.

Edmund Stillman Kelley, the American composer, whose new symphony was played with success at Saxe-Altenburg recently, is being much entertained in German artistic circles. He will be the chief guest at the reception of the American Woman's Club of Berlin next week.

Edgar Kelley, who has many friends in Oakland, has certainly made a great success abroad, one all the more notable since he tried for fame in the heart of the musical center of conservative Berlin.

CALIFORNIANS AMONG THOSE PRESENT AT OPERA.

The Paris opera season has been a great success, and among those present at all the performances were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Crocker and Miss Ethel Crocker, the latter one of the most promising of Jean de Reszke's pupils in Paris. One reads of the great success of the Peruvian Countess Eleanora de Cisneros, who took the role of Ulrica on account of the illness of the contralto, Mme. Birat. She appeared without a rehearsal, scored a big success and will remain for the rest of the performances.

Mme. de Cisneros is very stunning and exceedingly handsome, and her husband is a rich count who travels

WEDDING LAST EVENING.

Last evening at the Twenty-fifth Avenue Adventist church, Miss Anita Virginia Graves became the bride of Oscar Lee Brauer in the presence of a large number of guests. The decorations were in shades of pink and the bride's attendants, Mrs. Thomas L. Hynes, as matron of honor, and Miss Velma Holmes, maid of honor, wore gowns of pale pink chiffon and carried shower bouquets of pink sweet peas. The groomsmen were [illegible] and the bride wore a gown of soft white satin combined with lace, and a tulle veil fastened in her hair with sprays of orange blossoms. She bouquet was a shower of white sweet peas.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Graves, in Bona street. After a wedding journey the young couple will return to make their home in Berkeley. Mrs. Brauer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Graves of Oakland and since the announcement of her engagement a few weeks ago, has been entertained at many informal affairs.

CHURCH, SENT BY PARCEL POST, ONLY ONE OF KIND

WENONA, Md., May 30.—When the Methodist church of this town, which recently burned is rebuilt it will be one of the unique structures of the world, for it will be constructed of brick of all kinds sizes and colors.

The brick for the building will be contributed by public men throughout the United States. President Woodrow Wilson and his cabinet officers will be among the first to put stamps on bricks and mail them to the Methodist church, Wenona, Somerset County, Md.

For a long time the congregation did not know how to rebuild their edifice, as it took years of effort to construct the first one, a wooden structure from which no insurance was realized when it burned. Someone suggested the parcel post idea, and it was adopted with enthusiasm.

Madame Ise'bell's Beauty Lesson

LESSON IX—PART V.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Mabel C. F.—The rough condition of your skin may be due to sunburn or to an improper habit of washing your face. Most soaps in common use roughen the skin. For the moment, until your face is better, use no soap at all, but instead a good cleansing cream or cold cream. [illegible] that has been wasned. Then rub a little massage cream into the skin and let it stay on during the night. Bathe the face in the morning in very cold water. Before powdering, rub in a little cold cream. In this way the skin is kept always lubricated and the rough condition will disappear.

Mrs. F. G. S.—I do not think you are at all extravagant, and I certainly think you make the most of your modest dress allowance. You say you make your wash gowns yourself. If they are cut and hang [illegible] be afraid to make a woolen gown. The one-piece gowns so much worn now present no more difficulties made up in woolen than in cotton goods. Be sure you get a good pattern. Why not invest in a long coat this winter instead of a tailored suit?

Lottie.—The yellow condition of the whites of the eyes comes from a disordered stomach or sluggish liver. To my mind it is a most unfortunate defect in a woman's looks and you should correct it at once. Change your diet. You are probably eating too much sugar and starch. Avoid hot bread and eat plentifully of fruit and green salads. Every other morning before breakfast take the juice of half a lemon in a cup of hot water. Eat occasionally a raw onion, well salted.

Mrs. G. F. C.—At near 50, my dear friend, it is not strange that the hair should begin to turn gray. Do not think of dyeing it; it means expense and constant trouble. Keep your scalp free from dandruff, brush the hair and massage the scalp every night; if you keep your hair in good condition the graying locks will not be unattractive.

CRIPPLED PEDDLER BECOMES CROESUS

Unable to Walk, He Acquires Land; Sudden Fortune Rewards Thrift.

CLEVELAND, Okla., May 30.—Persons who traveled on railroad trains in the pioneer days of Oklahoma recall Jimmie Booher, who rode from station to station selling lead pencils and shoestrings. He was not in the employment of a news company, but was permitted aboard trains because railroad patrons liked him and because of his physical infirmities.

Booher was an optimist, morning, noon and night. He could cure an average case of "blues" in a minute. Men bought some of his sunshine when they bought his lead pencils and his shoestrings.

But Jimmie Booher had endured misfortunes that would have broken most men. He was born at Odessa, Mo. When he was a child his hands and limbs became twisted and bent until he was unable to walk. His father died and his mother married a second time. The new father brought his own children into the family.

ON HIS KNEES TO SCHOOL.

Jimmie Booher felt he was in the way, and determined to support himself. He was unable to walk. On his hands and knees he crawled to the district school. The stones and thorns cut his hands and knees until they bled. The boy made knees from tomato cans. In time he got crutches and learned to use them.

Jimmie Booher never lost hope, and every day he grew more confident that he would win, somewhere and somehow.

When Pawnee county was opened to homesteaders Booher came to Oklahoma and settled on a 160-acre claim, four miles southeast of Cleveland. He was miserably poor, and unable to perform manual labor. But he was not daunted.

THEN CAME AN OIL GUSHER.

With his earnings from the sale of lead pencils, etc., he was able to hire neighbors to put his land into cultivation, a little at a time. When he got a patent on his land he borrowed enough money to plant alfalfa, which he gradually increased to seventy-five acres. In one season his net profits from alfalfa amounted to $3500.

Fortune was getting ready, however, to do bigger things for Jimmie Booher. Oil was found, and Jimmie Booher's farm was in the heart of the pool. His royalties were $1500 a day at the start, and for a long period he got $700 a day.

Nobody knows how much Jimmie Booher is worth, but his fortune is close to $300,000. He owns several good farms, all in a high state of cultivation. He married happily when he made his stake. His summers are spent in Colorado. His wealth has not changed his views of life in the slightest degree. He is kind and generous to the unlucky, just as he was before he got riches.

"Money is a useful commodity, but it takes other things to make men happy," said Jimmy Booher. "Just ordinary, every day friendships and the right way of looking at the world can't be beat."

MUSICAL GIRL THIEF SINGS; SLEEPER WAKES

PITTSBURG, May 30.—Love of music prevented a young woman from escaping with jewelry and money she had gathered [illegible] in the home of William Crick, 2405 Butler street, late yesterday. She could not restrain herself from an outburst of song when a piano in the next house started a popular rag as she was wrapping up her loot.

MAN DIES OF WORRY BLACK HAND CAUSED

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—John H. Holmes grand keeper of records and seals of the Knights of Pythias, and known to secret society officials throughout America, died after worrying for two months over Black Hand letters which he had received at intervals of a few days. His wife is in a dying condition, and physicians said today she probably would not live a week.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

A musical event of interest was the recital given by Miss Mary Bradley at the Berkeley Piano Club last Thursday evening. Miss Bradley, who is a pupil of Miss Elizabeth Simpson, played with much sympathy and a brilliant technique that combined to delightful results in the works she interpreted. She was assisted by Miss Goldie Hulen, contralto, and Robert Rourke, violinist. Mrs. Ronald Street was the accompanist. The following program was given:

PROGRAM OF ETUDES.

The Beethoven Piano club met last Mrs. Lillian S. Shannon's residence, in Oakland. The club had a very original program, consisting entirely of etudes, rendered under the direction of Roscoe Warren Lucy. Mr. Lucy gave an address on the subject of Etudes, their classification and analyses. Those present voted the meeting and program the most interesting yet given by the club. The following members took part in it: Miss Mabel Button, Miss Marguerette Griffin, Miss Mary and Miss Louise Jurges. Miss Hilda Mitchell, Miss Beatrice Sherwood and Miss Aileen Murphy.

RECITAL BY CHILDREN.

A group of talented children gave a recital at Starr King Hall Thursday evening, that was above the average of juvenile efforts. They were pupils of Miss Eva Garcia, and were assisted by one or two grown-ups, including Mrs. George H. Short, contralto, and H. Arthur Garcia, violinist. The young participants in the program were: Joe Holloway, Carmen Stolp, Helen Seaborg, Marion Stewart, Marion Shaw, Marcella Adams, Adeline Barnard, Gertrude Norton, Rodney Pantages and Harry Cheaten.

Patronesses of the concert were: Mrs. Frederick Stolp, Mrs. Alexander Pantages, Mrs. William Brady, Mrs. C. W. Callaghan and Mrs. Bertha Levy. Over fifty invitations were issued.

RARE QUINTET GIVEN.

At the final meeting for the season of the Pacific Musical Club at the St. Francis last Wednesday evening, a quintet composed of Ford, Weiss, Evans, de Gomez and E. M. Hecht played for the first time in America a quintet for flute, two violins, viola and cello, by Jan Brandts-Buys, a Hollander, born in 1868. Mr. Hecht first heard the work when he was rehearsing with the Concertverein Quartet of Munich. It is notable, apart from its quality, for the fact that it is a sacred piece. The composer has in mind the story of the Nativity and each of the four movements is headed by a quotation from the Scriptures. The first movement is a shepherd's pastorale. In the second movement the dominant feeling is one of expectancy and the coming of the Angel of the Lord is suggested. In the third movement is the advent of the Wise Men and a chorale by the string quartet tells of the worshipping of the Child in the manger. Last comes the note of rejoicing. The performance [illegible] was most enthusiastically received.

WINS HONORS AT RECITAL.

Among those who won honors at the musicale given Thursday evening, May 21, at Kohler & Chase Hall, by the pupils of Mrs. Laura M. Prentiss, was Miss Edwina A. Henderson, a young vocalist and pianist of great promise. Her numbers included Quando me'n vo soleta—La Boheme (Fucinni), and The Little Gray Dove (Saar), and a piano selection, Kamennoi—Ostrow—Op. 10, No. 22 (Rubenstein). Other numbers in the [illegible] minuet in G (one piano, six hands), (Newton), Miss Lulu L. McMains, Miss Harriet E. McMains and Elzy W. McMains; Shepherds All and Maidens Fair, Op. 16, (Nevin), Miss Mary E. Lennon; A Shepherd's Tale, Opp 16, (Nevin), Miss Ruth M. Lennon; Poppyland, Op. 42, No. 5, (Grogman), Miss Elene M. Murphy; Waltz in A Flat (Gurlitt), Miss Mildred M. Goose; Peasant's Frolic (Gurlitt), Miss Ardine M. Goose; L'Avalanche, Op. 45, No. 2, (Heller), Miss Ruth D. TO FORM ORCHESTRA.

The concert given at the Hotel Oakland Tuesday evening for the benefit of the music school of the Oakland Social Settlement was an artistic and financial success that won many compliments for Mrs. Luella Wagor-Coplin, under whose direction it was given, and netted several hundred dollars for the school. It is interesting to know that the greater part of the money will go toward the purchase of a cello, flute and violins, for the use of children of the settlement. It is the intention to form an orchestra and the boys and girls are eagerly awaiting the opportunity to compete for membership. In the Hart Side Settlement of New York, there are a juvenile orchestra and a senior orchestra for grown-ups, that have become the keenest interest of the poorer neighborhoods, and these are precedents that the Oakland Settlement will follow.

TO PLAY AT EXPOSITION.

Miss Elsie Larsen, a pupil of Miss Mary Pasmore, won the prize for violin playing at the Junior Exposition held last week in San Francisco, and has been selected to play at the Panama-Pacific exposition among the younger musicians of California. Miss Larsen and her teacher are being cordially congratulated on the honor as there were many competitors.

TO GIVE CONCERT.

An interesting entertainment which promises to be most successful will be given at Starr King Hall on [illegible] evening next, by a group of talented musicians, including Mrs. Alma Hukill Brooks, mezzo soprano; Miss Louise M. Hollinsworth, soprano; and Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, soprano.

Mrs. Brooks was formerly leading soprano at Grace Methodist Church in San Francisco, and her appearance on Friday evening marks her return to music work in public after an interval of several years. Mrs. Hollinsworth possesses a beautiful voice of rare quality, and Mrs. MacDonald is also well known in music circles. Miss Elsie McMath is to be the accompanist. Supplementing the musical program will be a monologue by Mrs. Anna Schultz Fesler, and some character songs by little Royal Brooks and Helen Louise MacDonald.

BULLDOG RESCUES CANINE PLAYMATE

Old Ted Drowning When Buck Swims Out for Him in Time.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 30.—Buck, a beautiful well bred bulldog belonging to John O'Halloran, and Ted, the equally high born bulldog and pet of Ed Estes, have been playmates for several years, but were of the "scrappy" order of pals and would fight with or without provocation. Buck's owner had taken the two pets down to the river and Buck, being well trained, was sent out into the stream to retrieve sticks. Ted had never been in the water, but finally O'Halloran "sicked" him upon Buck while the latter was out about forty feet from shore.

With a yelp of glee Ted plunged into the water and soon the two dogs were mauling each other around.

Buck came ashore with the trophy of the chase, but Ted apparently was out of wind and could not swim, being well along in years and considerably overfed. He began floundering and went under. He came up again with the current carrying him further away from land. His distress was apparent, as he went under a second and third time, and he set up a pitiful series of whines and yelps.

O'Halloran was about to throw off his coat and swim out and get the drowning dog when a friend of his

"Send Buck after him."

Quick as a flash O'Halloran shouted:

"Buck, go get Ted. Go on, get him."

"At the word of command the dog gave one look at his master and barking sharply a couple of times, leaped into the water and in a few seconds was alongside the strangling Ted. Seizing Ted's ear in his teeth. Buck struck out for shore and dragged him onto the beach [illegible] ed. Ted lay there for a minute, then got up, shook the water off his coat and scampered about as if nothing had happened. Since the incident the two have shown the first real friendly attachment for each other they have exhibited in all the years they have romped together.

SHERIFF ESTOPS SUNDAY BASEBALL

Billy Sunday's Convert Halts New York State League Games.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 30.—Following orders issued by Sheriff Kniffen, every game of baseball scheduled to be played in Luzerne county, including the Wilkes-Barre-Troy, New York State League game, at Boulevard Park, was called off. The ban has been placed on Sunday baseball throughout the county, and not a game will be permitted by the sheriff this summer. Sheriff Kniffen hit the Billy Sunday sawdust trail when the evangelist conducted a campaign in this city a year ago.

Today the sheriff made a tour of the county with his deputies and where teams were found to be playing the members were threatened with arrest, with the result that a few games started were called off.

Secretary William H. Kessler of the Barons, was called to the telephone by Kniffen at 10 o'clock this morning and informed that the Wilkes-Barre Troy game would not be permitted. Secretary Kessler immediately called off the game and agreed not to make any effort to play as long as the sheriff's orders stand.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS WHAT OF WORLD IS DOING

SAVING THE CHILD; REFORMS OF TODAY

Cry of the Youth Is Answered by Many Changes

BEING just to the children, by affording them every opportunity to become good men and women, is the laudable enterprise on which the great cities of today are working, with increasing success as knowledge of the needs of the young intending to relieve childhood of its dangers, and making the lot of youth more bearable. Reform begins often with the parents; here the work of parents' clubs begins. Reform beginning with playgrounds, fresh air crusades, legislation protecting the youth of the nation, and furnishing them healthful recreation comes next—and here the work is far from ended; in fact, it has only been well begun.

There are many words of condemnation to be said concerning parents who give way to the expression of ill-temper, but surely this is the most serious; that their dealings crush out the sense of justice in the children.

The sense of justice is what makes a man fit to be with his fellows. He will give them what is due. He will also know what is due himself, and how to exact it. Justice is the great principle of the social and business world. Surely no one would train a child so that he would lose that sense. Yet the child that is punished in a fit of parental ill-temper knows unerringly that he is the prey of an unreasonable stronger power, says the Mother's Magazine. He is punished because he has infringed on his parents' comfort or convenience at an inopportune moment. If he had done the same thing when the parent was feeling good-natured the chances are that he would not have been punished at all. What kind of a foundation has he for understanding the moral laws? Is it any wonder that his ideas of right and wrong are hazy? Nor is this all. He becomes a mean truckler to the irrational power over him, taking advantage of good-natured periods, and "lying low" in the times of stormy ill-temper. He is acquiring the habit of ill-temper and lack of self-control from the example before him, and he is certain to grow into a disobedient, unattractive child.

One form of legislation directed especially toward the child is that now in preparation in Chicago tending to limit the sale of revolvers. Shocking accidents, in which children recently met death, caused a wave of sentiment that is bringing about this reform. The Record-Herald, commenting on the Chicago plan, says:

By all means let the mayor gather in the professional thugs and let the judges soak 'em. It is a pity that they cannot be made to lie in soak for the rest of their natural lives instead of being turned loose from time to time to prey on the community. But if they were all rounded up the shooting would not stop. The 14-year-old boy who shot himself the other day was not a thug, neither was another child who was shot not long ago by one of his companions.

The continuing danger lies in the ready revolver. Make it harder for everybody to buy firearms. Make it harder for anybody to sell firearms. Soak the thug, but soak the pawnbroker also. And soak the cheap and nasty campaign by which it is hoped to divert attention from the paramount issue.

FRESH AIR CRUSADE.

The fresh-air crusade is not known in California, but in the East it has become a big factor in the work of those seeking the welfare of the child. Where crowded tenements are, there this reform is most strongly urged.

A vigorous endorsement of the move appeared in a city where the problem has not yet been forced, and is therefore of even more interest than one where conditions are immediately to be seen. This was in the Spokane Spokesman Review, which, considering the plan, said:

In the spring the tired man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of tonics. The first heats of spring or early summer after a wearying winter of withstanding the strain of cold and the debilitating effects of furnace heat and stuffy rooms bring on that tired feeling that we otherwise know as spring fever. In April or May, according to the forwardness or the backwardness of the season, the use of the patent medicines miscalled tonics flourishes.

Fortunately, however, the employment of these medical concoctions has ceased to be as prevalent as it was a generation ago. Our grandmother had some excuse for doctoring her family in spring, for medical science had not made much general progress among the people, but there is next to no excuse for doing so now. If she was a farmer's wife her simples or herbs were safe and helpful things to take, but not so much may be confidently affirmed of Doctor Skull-and-Bones' patent. This generally consists of the old lady's "yarbs" from which she brewed her tonic, but to this harmless base have been added a generous dosage of pure alcohol and probably a dash of poisonous strychnine. The trusting dweller in city tents hies him to the nearest corner drugstore and buys this compound without knowing whether it is a cure or a killer.

[illegible] becoming modified. People have largely learned, and more people are daily learning, that boon nature provides the real medicine for spring fever or the tired feeling. Great draughts of fresh air and swinging walks leafy groves and a plunge in outdoor pool or indoor cold bath are the genuine invigorators. The chase of the elusive tennis ball over a hard court or of the springy golf ball over a turfed links is the best of all tonics. Throw physic to the dogs—I'll none

SANITARY ENGINEERS.

[illegible], too, brings argument to the work of the sanitary engineer, whose operations are so closely allied with the movement in life, say experts, and the [illegible] for better sanitation in great cities, [illegible] conveniently demanded, is bringing [illegible] health and safety nearly to the little [illegible] who are rapidly becoming the nation's backbone. It has removed one of the dangers of being a baby.

Sanitation, which professor Whipple of the School of Sanitation defines as "all arts which make for clean environment," is weaving together selected branches of many sciences to create the new science and art of public health. Universities are founding chairs of sanitary engineering. Students in training to become health officials are taught not only departments of medicine, but parts of engineering. Sanitarians investigate all animals that may harbor and thus spread germs of disease as well as study microbes and bacteria. They still analyze samples of water, but they also examine streams and the sources of pollution of water.

Old theories in regard to sewer gas, ventilation, the smell and cleanness of indoor air, the purification of drinking water and the disposal of sewage are overhauled and readjusted to the new knowledge. Other branches of sanitation are developing, and new ideas replacing old ones. Street cleaning, refuse and garbage, housing and factories are other problems for which sanitary engineering seeks effective and economical solutions.

But the supreme problem at the heart of all hygienic problems is "to discriminate between the necessary and the merely advantageous, between activities that save many lives and those which for the same expenditure save but few, between those which make for health and those which make for comfort." These many matters cost much money, and communities must adjust their sanitary expenditures according to their public revenues.

The most interesting and perhaps the most significant fact announced by Dr. Whipple is that sanitary science calls for broader men—men of education, force and imagination. A new sort of health official is required. He is evolving into a biological and vital engineer. Enforcement of hygienic codes and sanitary regulations is sorely wanted. Public officials and private citizens alike, in this expert's judgment, are woefully at fault. America lags behind Europe in handling public utilities, whether these be street cleaning or power transmission or tlephones or sewage works. What is needed is "a man instead of a voter at the handle of the broom" and individual pride in the cleanness of our homes and cities.

CARTOON COMMENTARIES

PUBLIC WORKS AND BENEFITS TO CITIES

While Oakland is again planning an election, to ascertain whether or not the city is to complete its auditorium, other cities are watching with an interest not disassociated with their own plans. Hardly a city in the United States today is not, in one form or another, planning municipal improvements. Oakland and the bay cities, in planning a water district and a fight for municipal ownership, again has a claim to fame among other cities in the land that cannot be gainsaid, for other cities, too, are planning moves of this kind. Municipal ownership, long demanded by the people, is becoming more and more recognized as desirable. Now that it is coming, many who formerly urged it are now opposing it and this, too, does not apply solely to Oakland. Witness the Spokane situation, as set forth in the following editorial in the Spokesman-Review:

Municipal ownership should not be viewed as a bogoblin to be feared and shunned as a thing of evil. Nor should it be made a political fetish, to be placed upon a shrine and bowed down before in blind adoration.

In some cases it has proved a complete success. In others a partial success. In some instances it has turned out to be a sorry failure. Probably in the majority of places where it is on trial local opinion is still sharply divided.

IMPROVED SERVICE.

In some cases it has improved the service and lowered charges. In others it has lowered charges, but given inferior service. And in some instances it has not lowered rates and has given the people worse service, and increased, too, their burden of taxes.

The subject has been studied at great length in the United States and Europe. A few years ago a large and distinguished commission, composed of representatives of all interests, was sent abroad by the American Civic Federation to make a first-hand study of municipal [illegible] Europe. Although its report was published in a large volume, it is difficult to draw any definite conclusion from its findings. Frequently in reporting on the public service of a given city the commissioners divided and put in sharply conflicting reports. On one point only were the investigators united and this fact is of significance and value—that no definite rule could be laid down on the subject; that each case should be considered in all the local bearings, and weighed in connection with the service and the rates already given by private interests.

MUST SOLVE PROBLEM.

Spokane must work out this problem for itself, weighing first all the local phases, and then taking cognizance of results in other cities where the conditions are similar. In this essential work of study and observation a thoroughly representative committee of 100, or perhaps a smaller number, could render the city valuable service that would be appreciated by the great body of our citizens who have not the leisure or opportunity to conduct independent inquiry. No doubt the five city commissioners, wishing to reach the very best solution for the people, would take extraordinary care in the selection of the proposed committee, having keenly in mind the importance of choosing men and women of broad grasp of the city's needs and [illegible] devotion to its sturdy growth and enduring welfare.

Public improvements, undoubtedly, mean much to a city. In fact, they spell the city's entire success as a city, according to experts and this argument, alone, is the mainstay of those favoring them. With this plea as a groundwork those favoring bond issues for big projects go ahead and build upon it a superstructure of fact that leads one far into the science of city-planning.

The number of persons who go to the city parks week days and Sundays shows the importance and the wisdom of paying close attention to this feature of city affairs.

Money expended on recreation grounds for adults and playgrounds for the children is not money wasted. It is an investment that yields a profit every day in the year. The coupons that are clipped from the park investment are healthier and happier grown-ups and vigorous and contended children. Father and mother feel better all week after a day or an evening of relaxation in [illegible] broader notions of life. They get acquainted with the birds, animals and trees. They get closer to nature and her finer teachings.

A day in the woods and on the grass where are to be found shade and bird song, dispels much of the artificial notion of life and puts one back in tune physically and mentally.

Another argument applying particularly to the auditorium is the value of building to a city, and the value gained when a city is able to point with pride to a record of extensive construction. Seattle, when last month it could point to a great increase in its structural work, demonstrated this far and wide by spending large sums in circulating the fact. The Seattle Times voices the pride of the city in its achievement as follows:

VALUE OF BUILDING.

Seattle, among seventy-one American cities, has a place on the April "honor roll" for building. While the entire country showed a decrease for the month, this city forges to the front with a gain of 46 per cent.

Likewise Seattle shows an increase for the first four months of the year. Its gain is 7 per cent, while the loss for the entire country is 5 per cent.

Portland continues on the toboggan, with a loss of 15 per cent for April. San Francisco, notwithstanding the fair, lost 46 per cent, and Los Angeles went backward 62 per cent. Following are the totals for April:

Seattle	$1,227,930	$ 840,595
Portland	796,560	2,887,855
San Francisco	1,767,674	3,152,620
Los Angeles	1,898,304	5,047,065

No matter what is happening in other communities, the signs are undeniable that Seattle is going forward steadily, responding to a most substantial and healthy stimulus.

TRIBUTES TO NORDICA, THE GREAT SINGER

The career of one who perhaps was America's sweetest singer, and who, through her world-wide fame, brought fame to her country, has closed with the death of Mme. Lillian Nordica. Her life was an example to aspiring young singers; her death a sad blow to the world of music.

A sincere tribute to the late singer was paid in the New York Sun, which, shortly after her death, said:

[illegible] career of the American singer

Lillian Nordica ought to encourage young aspirants for lyric honors. No observer of the development of her artistic powers ever failed to discern the fact that she lacked that peculiar gift called temperament. There were no lightning flashes of inspiration, no divine moments of inexplicable exaltation in Nordica's art. What she achieved she did by sheer force of indomitable resolution, unceasing study and fine intelligence. Despite obstacles she became one of the famous body of "international singers."

That a great career is open to one [illegible] together with a serviceable voice, was triumphantly demonstrated by Miss Nordica. Her voice was never a perfect instrument, and particularly at the medium and upper registers, there was always weakness. But brains got the victory. The singer mounted to the highest rank in several widely different styles. She was one of the best Aidas ever known to the stage. Her Leonora in "Il Trovatore" and Selika in "L'Africaine" have not been excelled. Her Marguerite had qualities of great beauty. Her Valentine in "Les Huguenots" was a model.

GREAT SUCCESSES.

She sang also with great finish of style and authority in oratorio. But without doubt the summit of her ambition as an artist was attained on November 27, 1895, when at the Metropolitan she sang Isolde for the first time. In that same performance of "Tristan und Isolde" Jean de Reszke King Mark for the first time on any stage. Kaschmann and Maria Brema were the other two principals in that memorable performance, and the great Seidl conducted.

Mme. Nordica afterward sang all the Brunnhildes, and was one of the representatives of Kundry in "Parsifal." But Isolde remained her dearest love in the Wagnerian realm. In that role she made her farewell appearance on the Metropolitan Opera House stage on December 8, 1909. She afterward sung the role in Boston and later in Paris. But that was her last appearance in opera here.

Her memory should be warmly cherished. She was a great and devoted artist.

The St. Louis Times adds another spray of laurel to the wreaths on Nordica's bier in the following:

We do not know how the tombs of grand opera singers are graved, when the romantic careers of the singers are brought to their close. Perhaps the names known to the footlights are cut into the marble; possibly the simple home names are recalled and used in the end.

CAREER STANDS ALONE.

But whether it is Lillian Nordica or Lillie Norton who comes back to the United States so that she may sleep at home, when the long ocean voyage is over, the career of this American woman will stand alone for its ascent among the starry heights of romance.

Born in New Bedford, Me., under the North Star; died in Java, under the Southern Cross.

There isn't a capital in the civilized world where she hasn't appeared as a singer of foremost merit. Some of her greatest successes came to her in Paris; she participated in a great musical [illegible] Garden; for more than a decade few names meant more on the longer roster of Metropolitan opera stars than hers. Her fame goes back to the big days when Calve, Melba, the De Reszkes, Plancon and others were grouped together. In independent concert tours she has girdled the earth time and again.

Her life might well have been longer, it could scarcely have been completer.

DOWN MARS, UP CUPID; "PRUNING BOARD" RESULT

Captain Harry Howland, army officer, bon viant and clubman, has gone up before an army retiring board, and may soon be in "civs" clothes. A slight trouble with his ankle makes the prescribed practice marches quite out of the question for him, and so he has decided to retire and be appointed aide-de-camp to General Eleanor Martin, who intends to head his campaign in search of an heiress. General Eleanor several times has almost provided the dashing Harry with a suitable wife, but always, at the last minute something has gone wrong. Some time ago, one of our most attractive heiresses had been almost hooked on Harry's line, when a titled man from the East released her. Then a fair maid from Menlo occupied all his thoughts, but an equally dashing navy man stepped in. But Harry has never been accused of having a faint heart, so he still has a chance of winning [illegible]

NURSES STRIKE.

CLEVELAND, May 30.—Almost the entire staff of nurses of St. Clair hospital went on strike recently. Strife between two factions of doctors and nurses in the institution culminated in the dismissal of eight staff doctors and the walkout was one of protest. Thirty patients were transferred to other institutions.

WAR OF BENEFIT TO HUMAN KIND? MEXICO BRINGS QUERY

Situation in South Cause of Argument by Mediators and Others; Answer Is Veiled

MAY WAR, destroyer of mankind, be of service to the human race? This is the question which is answered in the only two ways by which Uncle Sam and Huerta may not grapple, and in the meantime General Funston is holding target practice and operative drills near the field which may soon be wet with gore.

The Mexican situation, should it bring war, it is declared by some, will bring a war for the sake of humanity. Arguers against this declare that no war is of [illegible] almost any price, as a result. The officials of the country are in the meantime between two fires, with Huerta on the south taunting them to action. The answer? They haven't it yet.

The New York Sun, commenting on the probability of a fight in Mexico, says:

WAR OF SERVICE.

In President Wilson's finely phrased tribute to the dead of Vera Cruz there is one paragraph which stands forth with almost startling distinctness.

"We have gone down to Mexico to serve mankind if we can find out the way. We do not want to fight the Mexicans. We want to serve the Mexicans if we can, because we know how we would like to be free and how we would like to be served if there were friends standing by ready to serve us. A war of aggression is not a war in which it is a proud thing to die, but a war of service is a thing in which it is a proud thing to die."

This declaration is of high importance, because it is the first public attempt on the part of the Commander in Chief of the Army and the Navy of the United States to define and justify the purpose of the military operations which he is at present conducting in foreign territory.

So it is war, after all! Not a war of aggression upon Mexico, not a war of conquest, not even a war of intervention for the protection of American life and property in Mexico, but a war of altruism, of friendly service to mankind, undertaken in an experimental and exploratory way by the Administration in order to ascertain what we can do, by the expenditure of the revenues of the United States and the lives of our soldiers and sailors, to make the people of Mexico free and happy and grateful to us.

The explanation is welcome, and we are not now going to discuss the constitutional power of the Executive to embark the country in such a war in order that he may find the best way to serve the nation attacked by our battleships and troops.

But what does President Wilson mean when he declares over the dead bodies of those mourned Americans that it would not have been just as proud and quite as glorious a thing for them to have died as they did, doing their duty behind the flag, if that flag had been ordered by a blundering Executive into a war of criminal aggression?

WASTE OF WAR.

The Goldfield Tribune, taking the other side of the argument, cites the wastefulness of war in the following:

American Consul Marion Letcher, located at Chihuahua, Mexico, recently issued a report in which he estimates the American-owned property in Mexico at $1,057,770,000. The property owned by the Mexicans themselves is placed at $793,197,242, and that which is owned by British subjects, who rank second to Americans in Mexican holdings, is put at $321,302,000. Another authority places the British holdings at a much higher figure, saying they amounted to $780,525,000 on December 31, 1913. The discrepancy is not accounted for. The figures contained in Consul Letcher's report were based upon tables prepared by William H. Seamon, formerly a mining engineer of Chihuahua, who compiled his estimates from government and state reports, directories, La Mexiquo, the Mexican year-book and all the most reliable sources available.

Dr. James Douglas, who is one of the highest mining authorities in the [illegible] the mining situation in Mexico than probably anyone else, estimated that although her about 1500 of 1700 mines are under foreign control, of which Americans control 57 per cent. Mexico leads the world in the production of silver, is second only to the United States in copper, and comes fifth in gold and lead. Americans are said to hold in their hands about three-fifths of the Mexican copper output and almost all of the lead.

French residents of Mexico have recently been trying to arouse European investors to take action in their own interests, and in a document which they have issued claim that the French investments in the country amount to over $1,000,000,000. Mr. Seamon's report, however, allows France only $143,446,000. French holdings are heaviest in national bonds, in back stock, where they hold almost as much as the Mexicans, and [illegible] nations, and in mines. But their entire investment is quite insignificant in comparison with the enormous amount of American and British money that has been put into railroads and mines.

Of these great American investments most have already suffered very heavily on account of the series of revolutions and the national prejudice engendered by them. The Southern Pacific has been unable to complete or operate the lines on which it has already spent some $40,000,000, the Mexican & Northwestern had just completed a new line when the tie-up came, and the National Railways has been reduced to the point where its earnings were almost annihilated and interest on its bonds had to be paid by the issue of additional securities. Mining interests have also suffered very heavily, in fact, the only American mine owners who seem to have been able to keep on working at something like the former rate are those who have made a policy of employing as few Americans as possible, and making the peons their friends, allies and employes. In fact, the losses already suffered have been heaviest, on the whole, in exactly the fields in which Americans are most heavily interested. How the investments of various nations will be affected by possible future military operations is, of course, a matter of conjecture.

AFTER HUERTA, WHAT?

But when all is said and done, what will have been done? If Huerta is dethroned without bloodshed, then what? There is a question that perhaps needs consideration. The Seattle Times asks it, and, pointing to the complications that the future may bring in this regard, says:

While mediation drags its slow length along the [illegible] lines of diplomacy, the press of the United States is increasingly demanding an answer to the above question.

Every report that the dictator is losing ground, that he is menaced by plots, that Zapata is hammering at the gates of Mexico City, that Villa is advancing southward—serves to give added point to the query.

Who is the man designed to take the place of the stubborn Huerta, who so long has defied the combined forces of internal revolution and American financial pressure?

The question has been asked in Congress, and has met with no answer. Senator Lodge, Senator Jones and other Republicans have expressed it in various forms—and have received no answer.

Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island introduced a resolution along this line—and it was tabled. The Senate, probably advisedly, decided that such a resolution was inadvisable at the present stage of this country's relations with Huerta.

But silence does not answer, nor does such a sphinx-like attitude satisfy those who are looking ahead to something more tangible than continued procrastination.

Recent clashes between Villa and Carranza have considerably lowered the prestige of the latter. He played the wrong card in virtually ordering the United States out of Vera Cruz without first consulting his fighting chief.

Previously, he had been garrulously prominent in all negotiations. He had frequently rebuffed the American State Department. He had arrogated to himself authority which now does not appear to have been based on the one thing that Mexico recognizes—force.

Is Carranza—at best, a doubtful factor—to seize the reins of government? If so, will he be a pale shadow ruler, bowing to Villa's commands, or will he break with the latter and thus precipitate another revolution?

Or, again, will some other man, as yet unknown, powerful, far-seeing and dominating, arise to assume control and prove for revolution-rent Mexico another Porfirio Diaz?

Such a man may be awaiting the magic touch of opportunity—but he is not in the public's eye at the present moment.

All these conjectures, of course, presuppose that this government will not take further steps. If it does, the answer to the question is readily apparent. It runs in this wise: After Huerta—Uncle Sam and peace!

THIS IS ANSWER OF DR. SMITH, FEMALE

Woman suffrage, where already practiced, has done at least one thing, and that is increased the fund of anecdote possessed by those who hang around politicians and election booths. It is said that few women know how to answer questions. At the recent single-standard registration in Chicago, Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, one of the enthusiasts, gave her age as 75 years. The election clerk then asked, "Are you married?" "Sir, I am a grandmother," answered Dr. Smith. The election clerk cogitated a moment; then thought he would take a chance and fill in the blank according to his own conjectures.—Wasp.

HEN GIVES IT UP AND BUCKET FINISHES JOB

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—A tin bucket in Kirkwood got on the job and hatched a chicken after a hen had abdicated. Seven eggs of a setting which had failed to hatch were taken from under a hen at the home of George F. Engel at 7 p. m. and placed in a bucket in the yard. They remained there until 5:30 p. m. the [illegible] old son, George, in running through the yard, stumbled over the bucket. He heard a faint chirp and upon examination the eggs found one of them was "pipped."

Mrs. Engle wrapped the egg in a cloth and placed it in the oven of the kitchen range. When she opened the oven door an hour later a baby chicken was there.

YOUR FEET NEED EXTRA CARE IN SUMMER

[Copyright: 1914: By Lillian Russell.]

AT all seasons we are made to suffer for abuse and neglect of our feet, but at no time are we made to feel such extreme discomfort as during the warm weather. A "painful consciousness" of the indignities we have heaped upon our "trustiest servants" is with us at every step.

Fortunately, however, there is a balm for almost every foot ill after the cause has been located. But first of all the cause of your foot troubles must be located, then the balm applied. One of the worst offenders, you may be surprised to know, is nothing more or less than lack of cleanliness. Lack of cleanliness can produce more actual physical pain than all the other causes of foot troubles combined. Although the feet come more nearly in touch with the dust and dirt of the street than other parts of the body, they are rarely bathed more frequently. Then too the pores on the soles of the feet are large and the activity of the muscles causes free perspiration.

Your feet should be bathed twice every day—morning and evening. In warm weather three times a day is not too often. Fresh stockings should be put on every day. Extreme cleanliness must be the watchword, then, to avoid the unpleasantness consequent upon excessive perspiration. There is no excuse for this annoyance, because at a small cost you may obtain powders or prescriptions that will cure. One of the best things I can recommend for the trouble is one gram of permanganate of potash and one ounce of distilled water applied with soft gauze after you have bathed your feet and dried them well. The following powder, it is said, is used in the German army by soldiers suffering from excessive sweating of the feet: Salicylic acid, two scruples; starch, one-half ounce; powdered talcum, two and one-half ounces. Another dusting powder that may be used consists of one ounce of zinc oxide and four ounces of powdered starch. In mild cases of perspiration of the feet boric acid or talcum powder may be used, dusting the powder over the feet night and morning.

When you are bathing your feet you want to bear in mind that you relax all the muscles and blood vessels and for that reason you must not subject your feet to great changes of temperature. Otherwise you will disturb the circulation, which causes a number of foot troubles, chief of which is chilblains.

* *

A splendid "tonic bath" for tired and aching feet may be given by adding to the foot bath of hot water one ounce of green soap (surgeon's soap). Dip your feet up and down in the water until the water becomes tepid. Then rinse your feet with hot water until free from soap. Dry carefully. In drying your feet be sure to dry thoroughly in between the toes. You know it is the moisture between the toes that causes soft corns. A foot bath that I have found to be invaluable is so simple that few people will use it. It is simply cold water and salt. Nothing can compare with it for easing and hardening the feet.

Chiropody has proved such a blessing in relieving the feet when there is trouble more serious than just discomfort, but you must beware of going to an ignorant practitioner. Carelessness in cleansing the instruments or lack of knowledge of the cause of the trouble has led to blood poisoning and even amputation. Seek a good reliable chiropodist. There are any number of experts, so that it is most decidedly not worth your while taking the risk of treating your corns yourself with instruments that perhaps are not sterilized. You run the greatest kind of danger of cutting into the flesh and setting up blood poisoning by the entrance of germs into the wounds unless you sterilize your instruments by boiling for five minutes.

* *

Sometimes it is possible to remove with just the finger nail a callous or corn after the foot bath has rendered it soft and easy to remove. Be sure in such cases that your hands are well scrubbed so that there will be no possibility of infection should it bleed.

Callouses of the sole and heel are often painful and sometimes actually cripple the sufferer. Frequent bathing and rubbing often suffice to keep these formations from being troublesome. A smooth piece of pumice stone may be used to shave off the thickened skin. Before applying either of these remedies it is well to rub the spot with cold cream.

There are two varieties of corns—hard and soft corns. The soft corns come between the toes. If you have a soft corn you may protect it by placing a bit of cotton sprinkled with alum between the toes. Unless you insert the absorbent cotton to prevent the toes from rubbing together a second corn will appear on the opposing surface of the adjoining toe. Sulphate of copper applied to a soft corn is an effective remedy. The corn should be relieved from all pressure. For this purpose the perforated corn plasters may be used, or a disk of white kid or chamois with a hole in the center.

* *

Ingrowing toenails cause an immense amount of foot misery. Improper footwear and improper methods of cutting the nails are the reasons for this ailment. If you cut your nail too short or wear a shoe that is too short or too narrow you will force the skin of the toe over the nail so that it necessarily happens that by the further growth of the nail the flesh of the toe is pushed still further over until a point is reached where inflammation is set up.

Cut the nails squarely across. Do not trim them so close as to destroy the spongy substance below the nail. This substance is a special guard to prevent them from growing into the quick. If there is a tendency for the flesh to grow over the nail push the flesh back from the nail and fasten it in this position with a strip of oxide of zinc plaster. Under the nail edge insert a gauze packing. You should keep the nails of your feet as dainty as those of your hands.

Bunions are the result of great pressure and friction on the joint—most frequently the large one of the great toe. If not attended to this inflammation may even lead to a destruction of the bone, for which a surgical operation is necessary. First the joint must be relieved of all pressure. A shoe large enough for comfort must replace the tight one that started the trouble. A remedy cannot be effective if you continue to wear shoes that distort. A stocking that is too short is as bad for your feet as a short shoe.

* *

A young dancer I know who had been wearing shoes that were too narrow had thrown her large toe over against the next one in a deformed way. By putting cotton between the large toe and the next toe, within six months she had her foot in normal condition again. At night she massages the toe back in place. It requires persistence to do this every night, but regularity is the only thing that counts in an attempt to repair damage like his.

A most helpful measure for you if you are suffering from flat foot is the tiptoe exercise. Spring to the toes, then rhythmically drop to ordinary standing position. Nothing so relieves feet strained from standing as springing to tiptoe. Practice this with feet bare when possible.

If the circulation in your feet is not in good order practice this foot and ankle exercise: Stretch toes down to the extreme limit, then work the feet up and down vigorously several times. Again, shake them from the ankles as you do the hand from the wrist in devitalizing it.

Remember your feet deserve better treatment than almost any other part of your body.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

E. W.: The epsom salts solution should be a thin paste. I am sending you the rolling exercises and the dietary for reducing flesh. Massage each night the epsom salts solution heavily into the fleshy parts you wish to reduce and in the morning wash it off. The average loss of weight is two pounds a week.

* *

MARY W. B.: Buttermilk is a mild bleach for freckles, but if they are deep this bleach probably will not be strong enough. I shall send you the formula for a bleach for freckles if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. C. W. L.: I am sorry, but I cannot send you a formula for making soap. Castile soap usually agrees with all skins. Use any pure white soap. Highly perfumed or colored soaps are likely to irritate the skin.

Nations of World to Race for Trade Through the Canal

American Shippers and European Exporters to Be Benefited Most

(By S. OLNEY HOUGH.)
Editor of the American Reporter.

GEOGRAPHIES will have to be reviewed when steamship routes via the Panama Canal are finally determined. Some new names, or names strange at least to the ordinary citizen, are likely to come into prominence. Where is Tahiti? What is Samoa? Of what interest to the world are Curacao, St. Thomas, Barbados and Trinidad? These are all points that may to the canal.

"What is the use of trying to describe dreamland?" asked the Earl and Doctor in "South Sea Bubbles," which yet retains its charm after more than forty years of repeated editions. The Earl was speaking of Tahiti. Turn to a map of the Pacific and find the little group known as the Society Island, of which Tahiti is chief with Papeete as its capital. Draw a line from Panama through Tahiti to Sydney, Australia, and see how nearly straight it seems. Draw another line from San Francisco to Auckland, and again you have almost a direct course through Tahiti.

HUB OF THE SEA.

From Japan to the west coast of South America, a route growing in tonnage, and once more Tahiti seems a natural port of call. Thus reason the French whose possessions the Society Islands are, and the Chamber of Deputies in Paris has been and it is supposed still is seriously considering the development of the port of Papeete as a coaling station on the new Pacific routes.

Its charms have been enthusiastically described by occasional travelers. The dolce far niente life of the tropical Pacific islands has peculiar attractions and many a visitor after a stay of a month or two has dragged himself away as reluctantly as did the Earl and the Doctor, who in a few scratches of the pen, draw a speaking sketch of South Sea life.

"The chief occupation of the natives is gambling. When a man has lost his whole fortune, probably some $5 or $6, he simply goes up into the mountain and brings down a load or two of fruit with which he begins life afresh."

ALSO CALL PORT.

This inevitably reminds one of Samoa and Robert Louis Stevenson's life there. Samoa, "the loviest island in the world," with Apia as its principal town, as another, and, the Germans (this time) claim, a natural port of call and coaling station on steamship routes between San Francisco, Hawaii, the Panama Canal and New Zealand and Australia. For many years past either the Samoan or the Fiji Islands were ports of call for lines running from San Francisco to Auckland and Sydney and the agreeable break in the long voyage was always welcomed by passengers.

Now comes the Canal, and Samoa under its new German proprietors looks forward to vastly increased commerce. [illegible] appropriations of from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 to develop Apia harbor. By the way, any one interested in diplomacy will find enlightenment as to German manners and methods, if not edification, in reading the story of the old tripartite protectorate of the Samoan Islands under England, Germany and the United States.

TRADES PASSED AWAY.

[illegible] in his "American Diplomatic Question" gives a lively picture of the clashes in authority, the bumptiousness of the Germans and the ultimate bargain by which Germany obtained sole control, trading the Tonga and some of the Solomon Islands to England in return for her share in Samoa, and giving the United States what may some time be developed into a wonderful naval base, the beautiful harbor of Pago-Pago, of immense strategic importance.

England will be a rival in the South Pacific of France and Germany, for the British Fiji Islands, long in youthful minds a synonym for cannibalism, are also conveniently situated for a coaling station on the Panama-Australian route.

On the eastern side, a single glance at the map shows one pre-eminent portal to the Caribbean for ships proceeding from western Europe to the Canal. At the top of the long chain of the Windward and Leeward Islands, roughly separating the Caribbean from the Atlantic, lies the Danish island of St. Thomas, for which the United States has on more than one occasion been a prospective purchaser. Once our own Senate turned down the proposal; more than once it was turned down in the Danish parliament.

FAMED IN HISTORY.

St. Thomas, famous, if for nothing more, as the boyhood of Alexander Hamilton, has for many years been rusticating; her merchants have closed out their business or dozed off into indifference as the island's commerce has dwindled. But now St. Thomas is likely to become the principal, probably the only port of call on the voyage from Europe to Panama, and the coal business at least will probably see a boom for which preparations in the way of new docks, etc., are being made.

Away to the south of the Caribbean, lying only a few miles off the Venezuelan coast, is the Dutch island of Curacao. Here, too, preparations are under way for improved coaling facilities, although Curacao may be over-estimating the importance of the role she will play after the readjustment of ocean routes. What lines that will patronize the Canal are likely to call at Curacao it seems difficult to imagine.

PROSPECT DIMMER.

The island lies too close to the Canal to make calls for coal a necessity. It is on the route of only those ships that traverse the Canal en route from the Pacific to the eastern coast of South America, that is, to the Guinas, Brazil and the River Plate, and this commerce certainly does not for the immediate present at least, promise to be large or important.

Moreover, such ships as the enterprising Japanese, for instance, may dispatch via the Canal to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Ayres will find only two or three days' further steaming from Colon probably better facilities as well as a more convenient stopping point at either Trinidad or Barbados, both British colonies.

Barbados hopes for all sorts of things, in a dreamy and rather indefinite sort of way, per ago, but the hope is shattered by an active resentment against the neighboring colony of Trinidad, which in late years has abstracted and absorbed a large part of the old prestige of the "ever loyal" island, as the ultra-British Barbadians delight in calling themselves.

It is hard to fancy any European lines deliberately going out of their courses for the sake of calls at either Barbados or Trinidad on the way to the Canal, unless it be some subsidized line, like the Royal Mail, eager to foster colonial development. The coaling business of Barbados has been important since the very advent of steamships on the high seas. But now the development of oil fields in Trinidad brings a new factor into the shipping problem.

COST OF FUEL.

Cost of fuel may be a determining factor in the mapping out of the new navigation routes that are to follow the opening of the Canal. When the Panama route was first projected, indeed, up to the past year or two, fuel for ocean steamships meant coal, and all authorities agreed that, for ports lying anywhere near the dividing line that measures an approximately equal distance from European ports via either the Suez or the Panama routes, the decision of vessel owners would largely be influenced by the respective costs of coal at Port Said and Colon or Balboa.

Professor Emory R. Johnson and other students of conditions and prospects as affected by the Panama waterway figured in great detail just now much coal vessels of different classes from the principal ports on the American and European coasts of the Atlantic would need going to or coming from ports of destination, and the respective actual and probable cost of coal for such ships on each of the two routes. It was believed that American coal of superior quality could and would be landed and sold at one of the termini of our Canal at sufficiently attractive rates to induce patronage of the Panama route in cases where choice of routes might otherwise be a toss-up.

SHIPS LACKING FUNNELS.

Meanwhile, the oil-burning steamships and even the internal combustion marine engine have become established factors in shipping, and the day is at hand when supplies of fuel oil are going to be of equal importance with stocks of bunker coal. We see in New York harbor occasionally queer-looking German boats; without funnels. They have come across the Atlantic without a pound of coal, with a few thousand gallons of petroleum in their tanks, moved by internal combustion motors with which the Danes were the first to experiment in an important way on long-distance voyages, sending out the first vessels thus engined on the long trip from Copenhagen to Bangkok, Siam.

Oil is today being used by some of the navies of the world, an increasingly large number of cargo ships of all nations are being refitted for burning oil in place of coal, and the London Times of only two or three weeks ago chronicled at some length the launching of the first of a number of new oil-burning ships that are today under construction in British yards.

[illegible] well situated to offer petroleum to the merchant and war navies of the world at favorable prices. We have in the United States our Texas and California fields, from which oil can quickly be delivered in any desired quantities and at low rates. Everybody of late has become familiar with the importance of the rich Mexican oil fields, which lie still nearer to Panama. The recent efforts of Lord Cowdray to obtain great concessions in Ecuador, Colombia and Costa Rica have attracted attention to those countries as potential suppliers of oil to the world, and particularly to the canal.

OIL AND PANAMA.

Possibilities for the remunerative development of oil fields in Venezuela have been promising enough to warrant the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars in preliminary surveys and investigations there by both American and British interests. A year ago there were said to be seventy-five American engineers looking over the oil countries lying a few miles back from Maracaibo, Venezuela; some of them at the risk of their lives in the country of the still uncivilized and savage Indians.

Indications favor the Panama route, then, in view of the increasing use of oil by ocean steamships. Suez must obtain oil from the Russian fields back of Batoum, on the Black Sea, or from Burma and Borneo or Japan, if not from the United States. Self-evidently, it is Panama that will have the advantage in supplies as well as in the price of oil fuel.

Incidentally, it should be noted that a good grade of American coal will, it is expected, be supplied at from $1 to $1.25 a ton less at Panama than the Said. To offset this, however, it must be remembered that Welsh and American coals require a little different cost of Welsh coal averages at Port handling in order to get the best results, and that firemen and stokers accustomed to the Welsh coal express their disapproval of the American in no uncertain terms.

HOME BENEFITS.

The question often asked, what country is to benefit most in a commercial way from the building of the Canal? can be answered in only one way. It is our own country, the United States, that will receive the greatest benefit.

While it is true the greater part of the shipping of the world is British owned, or, at least, sails under the British flag, and that undoubtedly the great majority of the ships that traverse the Panama Canal will be of British register, yet, so far as commercial development goes, it is we who will profit most largely from the increase in the trade between our Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts, and from the promotion of wider export markets for the manufacturers and producers of our Pacific slope, as well as the further development of foreign trade for the older industrial communities of our eastern states.

Direct shipments of lumber from Pacific Coast States to Europe will be immensely facilitated, the trade in fresh fruits, particularly Washington and Oregon apples, as well as business in frozen salmon, canned salmon and canned fruits in general will undoubtedly be largely promoted by steamers that will ply direct between Puget Sound Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego to England, France and Germany. It is probable, too, that our Pacific coast will benefit, by a largely increased immigration from Europe in direct steamers, obviating the long transcontinental railway journey.

SHIPS BEING LAID.

Speculation as to how other countries will benefit from the Canal, in fact, as to what measures other nations are expecting to take to secure advantages from the Canal is pure guesswork and opinions are of little value. Some enthusiastically patriotic Americans upbraid their government and fellow citizens for an assumed indifference to the opportunities the Canal is going to offer us.

We are called to account because there is no apparent evidence of eagerness to build scores of new ships, while it is declared other nations have thousands of tons of vessels already in process of [illegible] a considerable number of steamers have already been built and are now afloat and in service, built by such concerns as the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company and W. R. Grace & Co., essentially for lines that will traverse the Canal.

As to the rest, it is undoubtedly true that our shippers will for the most part continue their recent practice of chartering vessels flying foreign flags, or of actually owning such vessels, although continuing their foreign registers, for the Panama Canal route, as well as for other foreign services.

This policy is dictated solely by ordinary business considerations of dollars and cents. Under the regulations promulgated by our Congress, it still remains much cheaper for an American shipper to sail vessels which he has bought and owns under other flags than under the Star-Spangled Banner. Upward of 2,000,000 tons of such so-called foreign shipping is today actually owned and controlled by American citizens, but, in any case, the flag that a vessel flies has absolutely no influence on the commerce of this or any other country. Adequate service and reasonable freight rates are the sole considerations that influence business.

WHO KNOWS?

Most of the rumors as to how Germany, France, England and other countries expect to increase their shipping for service via Panama are mere gossip and guess work. It is probable that German lines will be extended and a number of new services established, in accordance with the progressive policy of these steamship companies. But those best informed are the very ones who will acknowledge that no definite plans are yet known, no new routes actually determined upon. The director of the Hamburg-American line has announced that his company will probably run a line from New York to Valparaiso via the Canal, and the same company has already established a service from China and Japan to Honolulu. Puget Sound, Portland and San Francisco, in view of the anticipated industrial boom on the Pacific slope.

The Kosmos line, which now plies between northern Europe and our Pacific coast by way of the Straits of Magellan and the west coast ports of South and Central America, will, it is expected, establish a service from Europe to Honolulu through the Canal. Nobody knows as yet what, if anything, the North German Lloyd expects to do in the way of new services.

Occasional French steamers will undoubtedly be seen on the Canal, but French commerce in the Pacific has almost [illegible] probably be established via Panama to Valparaiso and our own ports on that coast.

It is expected that Japan will certainly take advantage of the Panama route to extend her subsidized steamship routes. An emissary of one of the Japanese companies, press dispatches have reported, has already made arrangements for a New Orleans terminal, but, on the other hand, a Japanese cabinet official reports that not yet decided which one of the three Japanese shipping companies shall receive the government subsidy.

BRITAIN BUSY.

British plans are as yet unformed, but will probably relate chiefly to the commerce and development of Western Canada. Vancouver is one of the ports which, with our own Pacific ports, will undoubtedly profit most largely from new routes established through the Panama Canal. British ships will save some time and distance by utilizing the canal for services to most ports of the west coast of South America, as well as to Pacific coast ports of Central America, the United States and Canada, but little if any advantage over the Suez Canal will be derived by British shipping destined for Australia, New Zealand, China and Japan.

Next after the United States, the industrial and exporting nations of Europe will be those to profit by the development of Panama routes. The ordinary American had been led by the active propoganda carried on in this country by some Latin American interests to anticipate a rapid and enormous expansion of commerce with "South America," yet the canal can have little if any effect on the commerce and industries of the greater part of the South American continent, namely, the easteren part, embracing the great republics of Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina.

Our Pacific coast products may find an improved and growing demand in these countries after communications through the Canal from Puget Sound and San Francisco are established, but any such growth of business must necessarily be slow and gradual—it will not spring into being overnight.

CHILE AND OTHERS.

So far as the west coast of South America is concerned, it is not to be denied that possibilities throughout this part of the continent have been greatly exaggerated in the minds of the general public. Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Chili—none of them has yet held out sufficiently alluring promises to induce rapidly any great increase in immigration, sadly as increased white population is needed.

Neither industrially, agriculturally nor commercially are present conditions or immediate possibilities of the West coast particularly bright. Growth and development there will be, but today the population is limited, and throughout a great part of the West coast agricultural development is a physical impossibility. Nature bestowed her choicest gifts on the other part, that is, the great eastern section of the South American continent.

The long, narrow strip of the West coast, only a few miles in width from the Pacific to the Andes, stretches from the inclement south to the tropical jungles of Ecuador. The great middle section of this narrow strip is an unproductive desert, almost deprived of rain. So while the West coast undoubtedly will grow, its advance will almost as surely be slow, perhaps tedious.

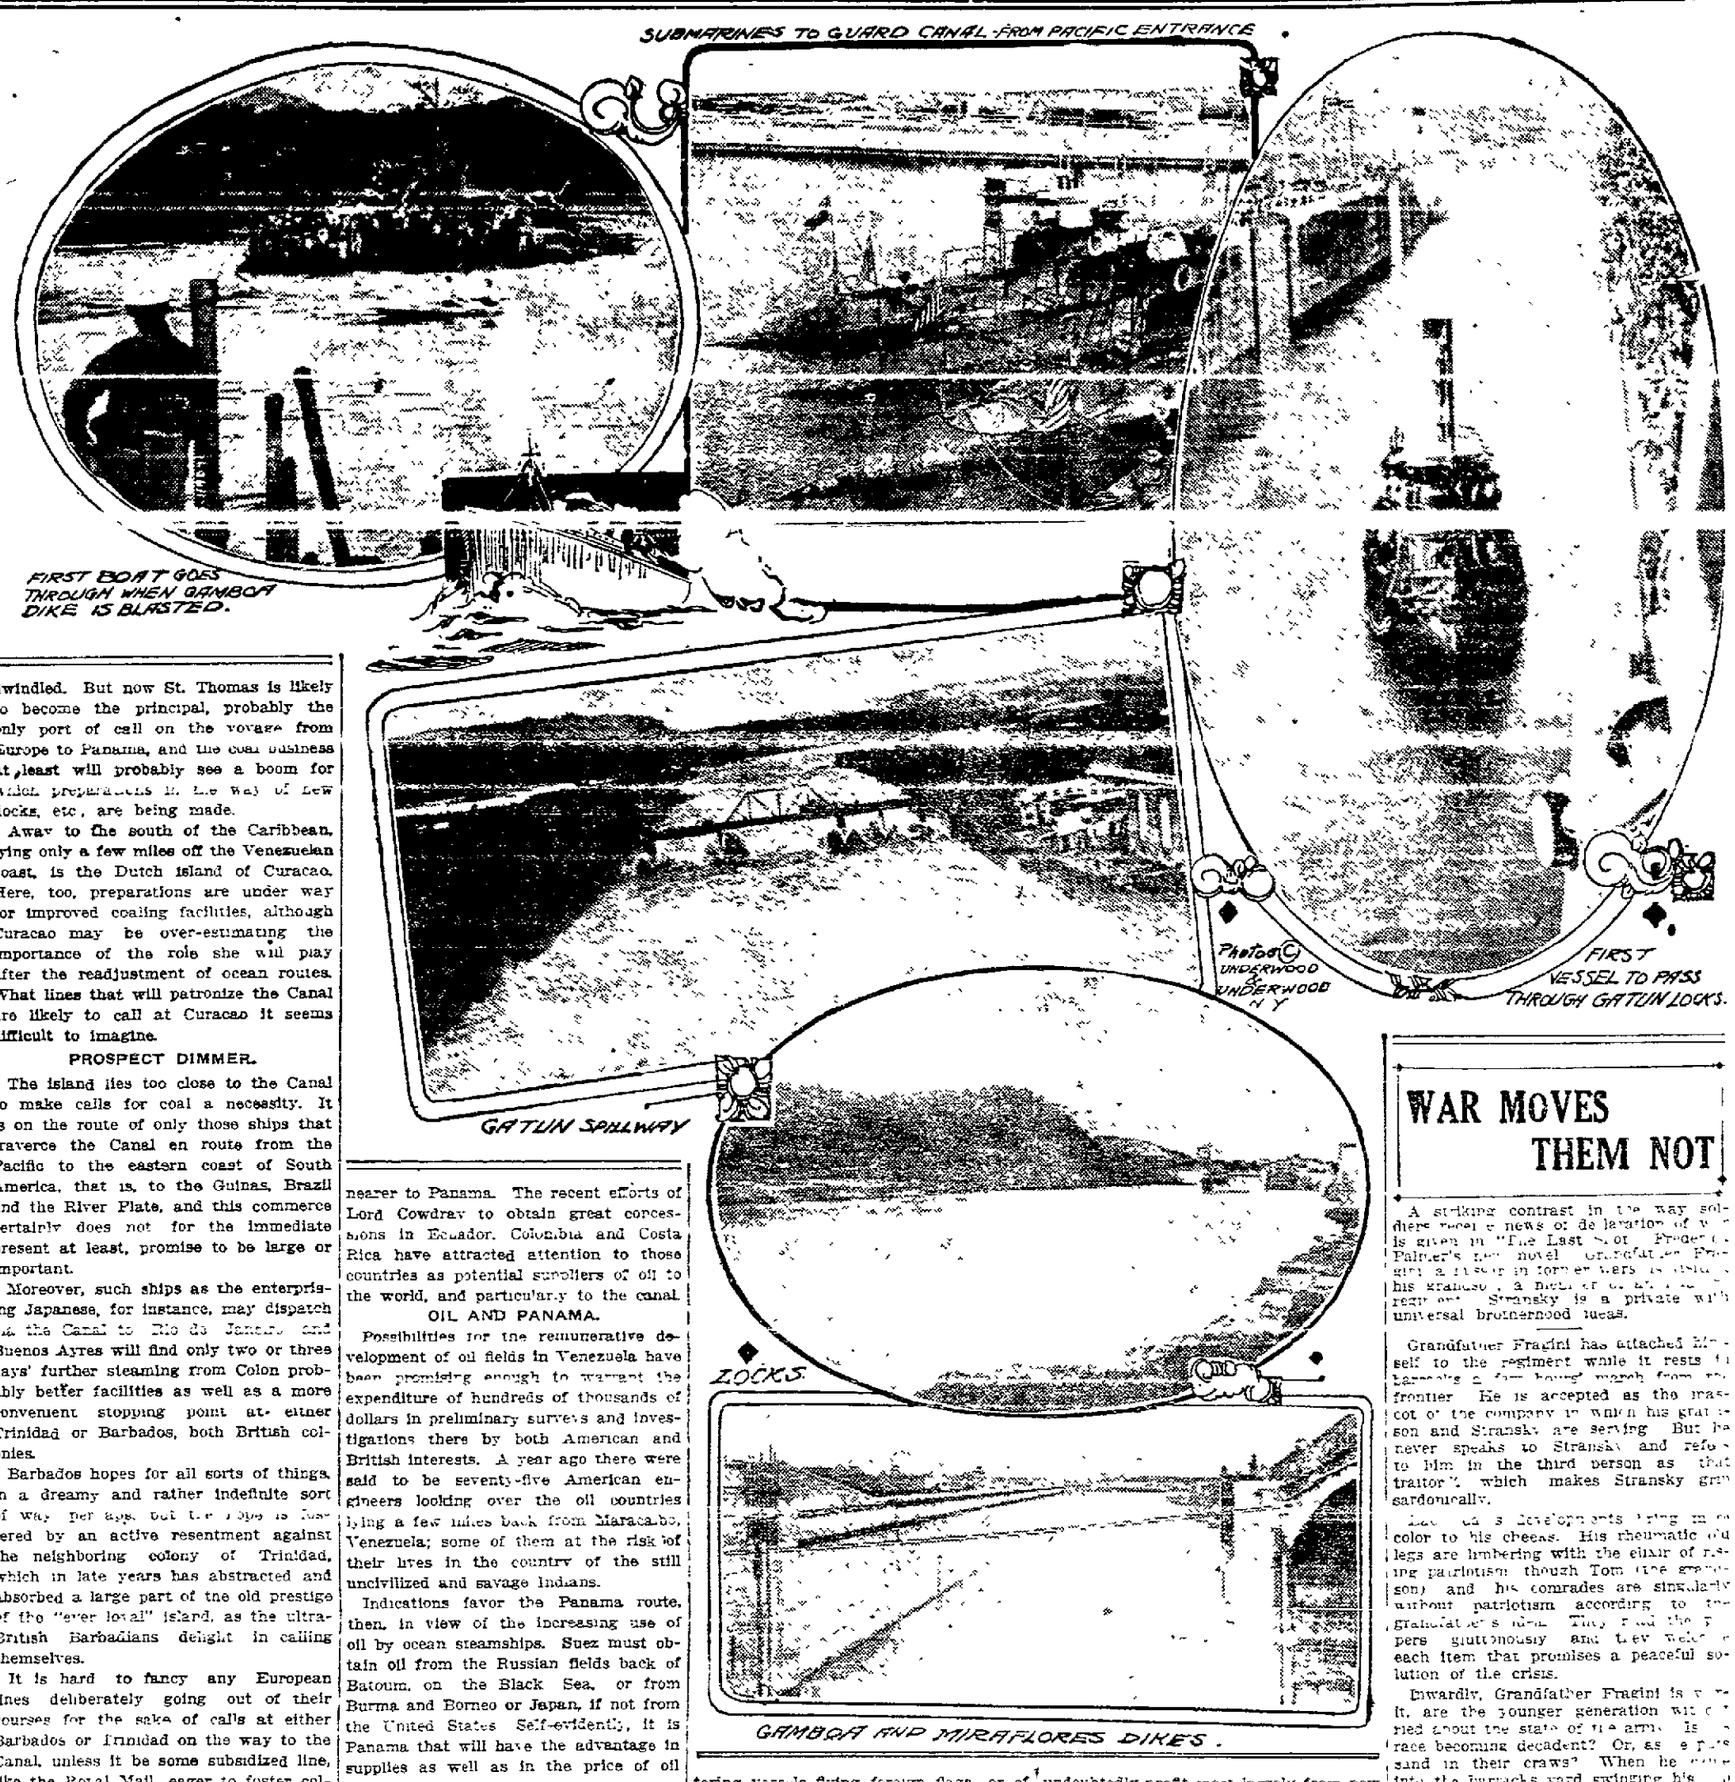
RATES AND PROFITS.

new services by way of Panama will result in cheapened rates of freight, just as it does not much matter to anybody but shipping companies what tolls are imposed on ships using the Canal.

In neither case does it appear likely that merchants will benefit. Freight rates on the ocean are seldom determined on the basis of actual cost. The custom of steamship lines, as well as of business men, is to charge whatever the traffic will bear.

Moreover, there is a popular misunderstanding as to the actual benefits to shipping that will be conferred by the [illegible] ence on shipping routes. Most people seem to have a hazy impression that as soon as the Canal is opened to commerce, we of the eastern part of the United States will immediately thereupon be brought into close and intimate relations with all the rest of the world.

We shall indeed have certain advantages, at least on paper, over European nations that are our competitors in some markets. For example, New York will [illegible] land than Liverpool now is or will be. We shall have the advantage over Liverpool of about 2,000 miles in reaching Sydney, Australia, or Yokohama, Japan. Yet we of the United States reach points equidistant from our Atlantic ports via Panama and the older routes very much sooner than the ordinary man understands.



WAR MOVES THEM NOT

A striking contrast in the way soldiers receive news of declaration of war is given in "The Last Shot," Frederic Palmer's new novel. Grandfather Fragini, a veteran of former wars in Italy, his grandson, a [illegible] regiment, Stransky is a private with universal brotherhood ideas.

Grandfather Fragini has attached himself to the regiment while it rests [illegible] barracks a few hours' march from the frontier. He is accepted as the mascot of the company in which his grandson and Stransky are serving. But he never speaks to Stransky and refers to him in the third person as "that traitor," which makes Stransky grin sardonically.

[illegible] developments bring no color to his cheeks. His rheumatic old legs are limbering with the elixir of rising patriotism, though Tom, the grandson, and his comrades are similarly without patriotism according to the grandfather's idea. They read the papers gluttonously and they welcome each item that promises a peaceful solution of the crisis.

Inwardly, Grandfather Fragini is [illegible] it, are the younger generation without pride about the state of the army. Is the race becoming decadent? Or, as he puts sand in their craws? When he comes into the barracks yard swinging his cap aloft and shouting the news that mobilization had begun there was not even a cheer.

"I suppose it means war," said Tom Fragini with a soberness that was in keeping with the grave faces of his fellows. Stransky sitting at one side by himself smiled.

"Well, you'd think it was a funeral," grandfather exclaimed in disgust.

"There will be lots of funerals," said Tom.

"I s'pose there will be, but if you got that in your mind now can you fight?" grandfather demanded. "Why, if an hussar had spoken of funerals we'd called him white livered; that's what we would! We cheered till we was hoarse. We danced and hugged one another. We rattled our sabers in our scabbards. We sang rip roaring death or glory songs. When you're going to war you want to sing and shout. That's the way to keep your spirits up."

"Let's sing 'Ring-around-the-rosey' to please the old gentleman. Come on!" suggested Stransky.

"I don't see that we are after either death or glory," said Tom. "We are going to do our duty."

SAYS CHILDREN BORN IN 1950 WILL BE 100

CHICAGO, May 30.—"Children born in 1950 will have an average length of life of 100 years," was the statement of Dr. E. S. Bailey of Chicago written in the records of Illinois Homeopathic Medical Association today.

"Statistics prove that with the advance in knowledge and increased ability to fight disease, the average length of life is increasing. Fifty years ago the average length of human life was 35 years. Today the average is 50 years. On that basis it will be 100 years in 1950."

MAKES SLAVES OF IDLERS

Prussia's system of state slavery for idlers has brought her into conflict with mild Bavaria. Prussia compels her idlers to work; but mild Bavaria does not.

If a Prussian citizen refuses to earn his living, or spends his earnings on drink and neglects his family, he may be turned into a state-owned slave, quite as in ancient Athens. He may be seized by the local police and, without any trial, sent to a compulsory labor home, where he must slave for years for the benefit of the state. This is under a law which passed only two years ago.

AN OLD INSTITUTION.

State slavery for idlers flourishes not only in Prussia. It is an old institution in Saxony, Wurttemburg, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Anhalt and the free republic of Hamburg. All these countries have constitutions which proclaim that no man may be imprisoned without trial, but they all have laws which enact the contrary, and there is no supreme court to condemn the law as unconstitutional.

The laws proclaim that idlers may be turned into state compulsory workers without any trial, on the mere command of the police or some other local authority. Though this is pure slavery, no effective protest is raised, and the system would be established tomorrow as law for the whole empire were it not for certain technical obstacles which arise from the confusion of the administrative systems in the different states.

RECLAIM BARREN LANDS.

Prussia, Saxony and the other states maintain numerous labor homes or colonies, which in effect are nothing but slave plantations. These are mostly situated in remote districts, often on barren land which demands reclamation. The men work under guard in the open country, but the houses in which they sleep are surrounded by high fences and are guarded by police.

The idlers wear no prison uniform, but that does not make escape easy. The police demand identification papers from all unknown men; and in case of doubt they hold suspects, without fearing the consequences. Under this system about 40,000 idlers who have never been tried for any offense are held under administrative decree in the different labor homes of seven different states.

State slaves are well fed, well clothed, and as a rule well treated. The value of their work is allowed them. This [illegible] because they are put to do work which could not remuneratively be done by free labor. They earn from 50 cents to 75 cents a day, not very much below the earnings of the average German unskilled worker; and they have no days of unemployment.

From their earnings the labor home deducts the bare cost of their food and clothes and pays the balance to their families, or to the poor law authority which supports the families. When they leave the home, reformed, they get a lump sum, a job and other help. Most of them come back. That is Saxony's experience; Prussia's experiment has been too short for judgment.

FEW ARE REFORMED.

Experts, who otherwise quarrel as to the merits of the state slavery system, agree about this. The system is worthless from the standpoint of the reformation of idlers and drunkards; but it is successful because it compels idlers to support their families as long as they are in the homes, and it relieves the state of a burden and gives it valuable consideration in the shape of reclaimed land and other useful works.

In Saxony 700 families were lately settled on once barren land which a gang of idlers reclaimed. Oldenburg's bogs are being drained, cleared of turf, and made cultivable by Oldenburg's tramps and wastrels.

CUCKOO CALLS ENGLAND, AGAIN

The call of the cuckoo has been heard near Maidstone. People listen for its call on the first sunny spring days, but it is difficult to imagine how a bird which winters in Africa can divine that it will find balmy breezes instead of east winds on arriving on our shores. The cuckoo was plentiful and the weather everything that could be desired, has been gadding about Africa, or accepting such hospitality as the Turks and Armenians had to offer in Asia Minor. It is therefore quite out of the question to suppose that when it took its flight for the north it could have any idea that the English season would be early or late.

The males arrive a few days before the females, and immediately begin cuckooing all over the country. That the males outnumber the females seems certain, but in what proportion is doubtful, though some eminent naturalists estimate the number as six, at least, to every female. The female seldom cries [illegible] much higher key than the deep note of the male. She has also a peculiar love cry, which has been likened to water [illegible] gurgling. She will sit on the top of some tall tree, and uttering this peculiar cry, every male within hearing will begin calling cuckoo with all his might, and immediately make for the [illegible] Fierce fight will then take place [illegible] finish.

The one point which gives the cuckoo so prominent a place in ornithological literature redounds least to its credit. The cuckoo deposits its eggs in other birds' nests, leaving its young to be reared by the foster parents. As soon as she returns to her breeding quarters, which extends over the whole of Europe, she begins to execute her "parasitic atrocities."

The young cuckoo in two or three days sets to work, before it can even see, to eject the rightful tenants. It begins by wriggling itself under the helpless nestling and being furnished with a singularly hollow back soon succeeds in shouldering the little victim over the side of the nest. It repeats the process until it feels it has the nest to itself.

By this method it succeeds in getting the undivided attention of its foster parents, who are most assiduous in feeding over gaping for more. Whether a suspicion ever crosses the brain of the foster parents that there is something wrong it is hard to say. That this voracious little monster is a burden to them long after it is able to feed itself is a fact. Last autumn the writer saw in Richmond Park a full grown young cuckoo being fed by a pair of hedge sparrows.

GOSSIP FROM SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

Nordica as Singer and as Woman

Walter Damrosch has added his tribute of praise for the late Mme. Nordica, as a singer and a woman. Incidentally, he has told about the engagement of the American prima donna in his company, when Mme. Lilli Lehmann was the bright particular star in an American tour ending at New York. Damrosch wished to present "Lohengrin," with Mme. Lehmann as Ortrud. He engaged Nordica as Elsa, in which character she had achieved great success. When Mme. Lehmann heard of this she was indignant, as she did not know she was to sing Ortrud.

"Why have you engaged Mme. Nordica?" she asked. "She is not a member of our company, and are we present artists not capable enough to give a performance in New York?"

Thus impressario, "I have engaged Mme. Nordica especially for you. You have always wanted to sing Ortrud, and to gratify that wish I intend to produce 'Lohengrin.' Mme. Nordica I have engaged solely to sing Elsa, so that you may be able to appear in the other part."

Mme. Lehmann's feathers thereupon were smoothed. However, all danger was not yet past. The day of the rehearsal [illegible] upon the stage together. Damrosch held his breath not knowing what would happen. Mme Lehmann carried herself like a tragic queen, scarcely looking at Mme. Nordica. But Mme. Nordica was all deference. She constantly deferred to Mme. Lehmann, asking her advice and saying that of course anything that Mme. Lehmann said must be right.

After a while, Lehmann relaxed, and the impressario breathed easier. Yet, at the stage door, the great German soprano suddenly remembered again her eminence as a prima donna. She was clad in a waterproof and carried an umbrella, for it was raining, and she never used to pay for a cab, walking being so much cheaper. At the door, however, was Mme. Nordica's carriage. Lehmann gave it one quick glance, and then, turning to Mme. Nordica, she said, drawing herself up to her full imperious height.

"You drive? I, Lilli Lehmann, walk!"

City Hall Amenities Are Interesting

Supervisors are but boys of a larger growth, and believe that sticks and stones may break bones, but names will never hurt. Hence they display a fine facility for calling one another names. At last week's meeting of the board, Supervisor Walsh called Supervisor Hayden a "cock-[illegible]," whereupon Jennet retorted by calling Walsh a "mountain lion." Walsh had the last word with Hayden, referring to him "as one of those creatures that sleep in the trees and hang by their tails." Spurred to emulation, Supervisor Gallagher called Hayden "a puny thing," and Hayden showed his verbal resources by referring to Gallagher as a "fathead." All this has nothing to do with the budget, but it enlivened an otherwise dreary session. And it has its significance. The calling of names has always been the prerogative of the plain people. The fishwives of Billingsgate, the watermen of the Thames—notable callers of names—are plainest of plain people. When we hear supervisors calling one another "cockroach" and "fathead," we may rest assured that the government has been brought back to the people.

It was not like this in the olden time. [illegible] Chris Buckley was boss of San Francisco. When Washington Bartlett was mayor, the town had a board of twelve supervisors, said by some to have been the best, or one of the best boards it ever had. That Washington Bartlett was a better mayor than "Mission Jim" many will even now admit, pointing to the fact that California afterwards elected him her Governor, something California seems to have no intention of doing in the case of Rolph. Some of the names of that board come to mind. There was E. B. Pond of the San Francisco Savings Union. He was mayor later on, the best mayor we ever had, say some who do not appreciate Rolph. Then there were Colin M. Boyd, the insurance man; Fleet M. Strother, afterwards auditor; John Shirley, a capitalist, and Thomas Ashworth, another capitalist who was afterwards for many years our efficient superintendent of streets. It is not of record that any of these ever called a colleague "cockroach" or "fathead" or "puny thing." The tone has been changed—not snobbishly elevated, but lowered to the level of the common people.—Town Talk.

Hammond's Son to Do Big Things

Harris Hammond, the son of John Hays Hammond, seems destined to a brilliant career in the engineering world which has heard so much from his father. He has taken his place already among the men of note in that field. Though he is still quite a young man, his father has taken him into partnership in many of his ventures. Harris Hammond came to San Francisco in advance of his father, who visited here two weeks ago, and immediately began inspecting the plants in which he was interested jointly with his father. Among others he visited the Mount Whitney Power and Electric Company's stations around Visalia. Harris Hammond represents his father [illegible] board of directors of this big concern which supplies Tulare and Kern counties with light and power. He found the plant in charge of John Coffee Hays, who is its president and general manager. Coffee Hays is a relative of Hays Hammond, and it never entered his thoughts that any fault would be found with his administration. But Harris Hammond found much to criticise, and told his father that a change in management was [illegible] of a change at first, but his son persisted. The result was that one of Hays Hammond's lieutenants, an engineer named Lagnon, has been made general manager of the company. Those who profess to know say that this action on the part of Harris Hammond marks the parting of the ways for Coffee Hays and Hays Hammond.—Town Talk.

Teachers' Institute and Seriousness

Do the school ma'ams and the school misters take it seriously? Do they attend its sessions in the hope of enlarging their pedagogical equipment? Do they hang upon the words, presumably of wisdom, that drop from the lips of the highbrows who lecture at them during its course? Are they stimulated, bettered, broadened by the annual Teachers' Institute? I have done a little quiet investigating among teachers, and I shall hazard answers to these questions. The hard-working men and women who preside over our public school classes don't take the institute very seriously. They attend its sessions because attendance is compulsory, but with small expectation of going away enriched in the technique of their profession. The highbrows who mount the platform and deliver learned Thusness of So do not impress them greatly. The institute is part of the year's burden of work, and they are grateful when its dreary sessions are enlivened by a little music—witness the way the tired teachers applauded Mabel Riegelman; or humanized by a little foolery—behold how they enjoyed the banter of School Director George Gallagher, who couldn't be a highbrow though he tried [illegible]

Who was it said something about the "triple trituration of concentrated flim-flam?" I wonder if he was talking about the platitudinous pomposities, the circumlocutory vacuities, the tireless verbigerations that the unoffending pedagogues have to listen to during the Teachers' Institute? Poor teachers! Don't they encounter enough stupidity in the class room without having to greet it with respectful countenance and the simulation of interest when it is embodied in a half-baked college professor with a pseudo-scientific paper to read? Their condition would not be quite so deplorable, could they exercise their humor at the expense of the grave-eyed lecturers as they do over school-boy "howlers." But this refuge is denied them. They dare not laugh at these wiseacres, save in the privacy of their homes. It is as much as their positions are worth to treat them frivolously. And so, if our teachers do not emerge from the annual Teachers' Institute with an ingrowing sense of the ridiculous, it is only because they are hardily healthy and too common-sensible to succomb.—Town Talk.

Educational Nostrums At the Institute

The Teachers' Institute is the stamping ground for educational cranks and faddists. How they do avail themselves of the opportunity to boom their favorite nostrums. Here, for instance, is Professor Terman of Stanford, a gloomy prognosticator, a pessimistic soothsayer, but with a remedy ready for the ills he tells of. Like Secretary Redfield who has the prize whiskers of the Wilson cabinet, Professor Terman is mightily worried over the inevitability of death. He is appalled at the thought that the children of the public schools are not exempt from disease and mortality. "Probably five hundred of the children you have been teaching in your classes within the last few days will become insane in later life," he told the teachers. And he kindly calculated how many would die this year of tuberculosis. To circumvent the malignity of nature Professor Terman would have a body of school nurses charged with the duty of visiting homes and instructing mothers how to rear children; he would have school dentists, school oculists, school physicians who are specialists in various diseases. He says this city should spend $40,000 a year on this work. And finally he drew his listeners from the pit of gloom by this optimistic statement: "In the end we shall be relieved of that burden of death which is losing us more each year than a bloody war." I defy the most ingenious teacher in the department to interpret that remark in any way consonant with common sense.—Town Talk.

Cant of Pedagogy Is Offensive

Of all the cants in this canting world the cant of pedagogy is perhaps the most offensive. It is so smug, so consciously superior, so egotistically convinced that the hollow boom of its emptiness is the full, round music of wisdom. One of the lecturers at the Institute talked to the theme: "Getting Ready to Live Through Living;" he was full of big words about the "sisterhood of education," sound and fury signifying nothing. A Deputy Commissioner of Education solemnly informed his listeners that the high school of the future would not be the high school of the past. It most assuredly won't be, if his system is followed. He wants the old way of teaching English abandoned. Away with the classics, was his slogan. And he indicated what he considered an effectual substitute for the classics by telling with approval of some teacher who finds a well of English undefiled in the current magazines. Heaven help the youngsters of our public schools if they are to learn their English from the strange language-spinners of our popular periodicals! Another speaker graciously informed the teachers that they might employ "the more forceful slang expressions" for the encouragement of their pupils. He put his hall mark on "dig in," "go to it" and "make good." Still another vouchafed that "education should train pupils first to be real men and women, and secondly to be tradesmen and tradeswomen." And another pundit learnedly allowed that "from ancient times down to the present flogging and suchlike punishments have figured largely in the school cosmos," a weighty truth clothed in appropriate language. It is to have their minds insulted with inanities like these that teachers go to the annual institute? Certainly they need vacation after these silly sessions, so it is well that vacation follows hard on the heels of Teachers' Institute.

Joy Riders and Wasters

President Wheeler, of the University of California, is a source of light rather than heat, and he always has something to say worth while. He has evidently thought a good deal on the subject of our newly acquired control of the physical forces, and he finds the results unfortunate in more than one way. So he has written a preface to State Superintendent Hyatt's manual for teachers on the "Conservation of Resources in California." Dr. Hyatt innocently calls the preface "a bit of literature," and here it is in part:

"This small revolving globe we dwell upon has been used as a home by us humans, by us and our ancestors, for a goodly row of centuries. But we were too few and weak to master it and put it clean beneath our feet. It mostly got the best of us. Of late we have come to get the best of it. It used to thwart us and steer us and tell us what we must do. Now we tell it what we want to do, and make it do it for us. We force its downhill water to carry us up hill. We use its own treasures for fuel to belittle its size and dignity; to curb it and humble it, and even to reshape it.

"[illegible] have been finding this robbing and humiliating of the prostrate body of nature so easy and so interesting as to make it a form of sport. They rob and exploit without reference to any present need, just to show what they can do. It is like the killing of the buffaloes for the fun of shooting, until all at once it appeared they were practically exterminated."

So is he sickled o'er with the pale cast of [illegible] Too much thinking hath made him gloomy. He sees only joy riders on one hand and wasters on the other. But Dr. Hyatt is more optimistic. He finds sermons in stones and sees salvation following as a necessary result of reading his useful little book. "Read it," he implores. "Surely something in its varied music will strike a responsive chord in you," and he adds.

"And may the future I se up and call you blessed. May it enshrine you in the memory as One who would gladly learn and gladly teach."—News Letter.

Woman Against Woman

One good thing about the feminist movement is that it is a movement of gray matter and not of useless nerve-shocks. Thus the old-style woman and the new-style woman have something to argue about. It must be admitted, though, that all the brainy ones are in the hordes that are swarming over the ramparts of conventionality and shouting their derision. The defenders of the faith possess good intentions, but they lack spirit and wit.

Female suffrage and something else go together. What that something else is, has been the inquiry of The National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. When the association found out, it stood aghast, for the mysterious factor had been concealed under the term, "feminism." In the course of time, many good people suspected weird things lurking beneath the skirts of the doctrine. Interrogations were constantly coming in to the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. Literary works of the feminist leaders were perused, with startling results.

Mrs. Florence Wise had stated that many an unmarried woman would like to have a child or two—not adopted but her own—and that society should not discourage mother love of this kind.

Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman had declared that even a cat could become a mother, and that motherhood is not the most delectable thought that can occupy a woman's mind and her time.

Miss Edna Kenton had asserted that nothing more than the Christian ideal which St. Paul laid down for women had [illegible] man and man.

Miss Jane Olcott had declared that a man or woman should be free to love whenever so inclined.

Miss Marie Jenny Howe pointed out that we do not put a fence around men, and she desires to see taken down the fence that has been placed around women.

Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain averred that wedding rings are relics of barbarism, and that she wouldn't wear one, because it would make her feel like a slave.

And there were hundreds and hundreds more of such declarations of independence.

The National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage merely quotes these incriminating sentences, without comment. Apparently the words bring about condemnation automatically, so that he who reads may run away. The truth is, though, that some of the feminist stuff is so interesting that he who runs continues to read with a more fascinated body and soul than was ever contemplated in the old proverb. Many of the feminist writers have learned a trick from George Bernard Shaw, and know how to send over an epigrammatic rib-tickler that makes the conservative person forget his sense of humor and the casual observer remember nothing else, with the result that much excitement prevails and becomes good advertising.

They used to talk about short-haired women in dowdy hats. That species was harmless, ineffective and is now almost extinct as a public attraction. The new feminist is a beauty, wears the best clothes in the land; she is darling and witty; her prose compositions are a bit risque in some places, prodigiously raw in other. She's just an interesting woman with loads of courage—a type that cannot be embarrassed or thwarted by any national association with a neatly drawn up set of resolutions.—Wasp.

The Shy Bourbons and the Campaign

There are Heavens knows how many contenders for Governor in the Democratic race. They have all sorts of records and are running on all sorts of platforms. Looking them over, it would seem offhand that they have nothing in common. But this is an error. In one respect they are unanimous: not one of them has mustered the courage to declare himself against state-wide prohibition. Some of them will talk against it privately, of course, but only after the interlocutor has crossed his heart and hoped to die if he reveals what is told him on this subject. The Democrats are sometimes called "the unterrified," but the name doesn't fit the candidates for Governor, at least not when the matter of a dry state comes up for discussion.—Town Talk.

Barry's First Play and Its Fate

Doubtless readers of the Bulletin are curious as to the fate of Mr. John D. Barry's first play. It is natural they should be curious as they have been thrilled with suspense, which is the finest of all elements of the drama—not Mr. Barry's drama but drama in the abstract. Readers of the Bulletin have been told a great deal about this Barry play. Some of them perhaps saw it when it was produced at Pantages under the title of "Hanged." Mr. Barry himself has told them about it. Being confidential about all things he took his readers into his confidence about his play; told them how he received inspiration from his beloved "Chief," meaning Mr. Fremont Older, who gave him the idea; told them he wasn't afraid it wouldn't create an impression; on the contrary, was only afraid it might [illegible] Mr. Barry is a pretty good critic; he had his play sized up about right. He went East, as we all know (on his own veracious authority), to have his play produced. We also know that to make it realistic to New Yorkers he changed the hanging scene to an electrocution scene; and that it might be true to life he went to Sing Sing and familiarized himself with the grewsome apparatus by which murderers are made to join the innumerable caravan. All these things we know, but now to the fate of the play.

The fate of the play was more tragic than the play itself. Indeed for very truth there is tragedy in the fate of the play. Tragedy insofar as the audience is concerned is "a painless sense of the pressure of somebody's pain." Now anybody knows, by reason of Barry's generous outgivings how Barry felt about his play, and of the trouble he incurred to get a New York production, and who has enough imagination to sense his feeling, must feel the pressure of Barry's pain. There can be nothing more tragic than the disappointment of an author who, permitting himself to think that he has achieved a masterpiece, and to entertain high hopes regarding its effect on the public mind, finds that he has wrought in vain. There is for him but the poor consolation that many great men have had the same experience, and the genial reflection that the highest talents in literature have gone without recognition. Mr. Barry's play was produced experimentally at the Victoria theater in the presence of an invited audience composed principally of sociologists. It was produced at noon, and the Sun says that a deep gloom settled over the theater at that hour and "lifted only when Mr. Hammerstein came to the determination to change the evening bill."

The Sun writer did not give the play a kindly criticism. He said: "Its purpose is to aid the propaganda of a society against capital punishment. It is useful to know that the spectacle is supplied with some purpose; it only seemed grewsome and inappropriate yesterday." Farther: "Probably this scene might help to create a horror for the infliction of the the death penalty. It certainly would make the public object violently to this vicarious infliction of it on an audience which has not even had the advantage of a trial. Mr. Hammerstein evidently considered the punishment of his Monday morning sociologists sufficient as he granted a reprieve to the evening audience." This may be honest criticism, but what about the headlines? This was the first "Wrong Man Dies in This Electrocution." This was the second: "Victoria Audience Considers Author of Piece the Real Criminal." This was the third: "Spectators Suffer Most."—Town Talk.

United Railroads and the City

There is a great to-do because Patrick Calhoun is supposed to have taken United Railroads money for the development of the Solano project. Calhoun explains that he was looking into the future and preparing for the extension of the electric system into the rich delta country. This excuse ought to appeal to our city fathers, if not to the Railroad Commission. The city fathers have done much the same thing. They diverted thousands of dollars of Union-street trolley earnings to the Stockton-street tunnel. Money which ought to have gone into the sinking fund to pay off the Union-street car bonds has been used to pay the city's assessment. The city fathers justify themselves by pointing out that the Stockton-street tunnel is part of a plan for developing the Union-street trolley system. It seems to me that this is exactly the ground on which Calhoun justifies his action.

The Railroad Commissioners say that they discovered how the United Railroads Company was looted. President Lilienthal says he told them all about the transaction months ago. It was indiscreet of President Lilienthal to tell this much of the truth of the matter. As the representatives of a corporation which must knuckle down to a powerful commission he should have let the polly boys get away with the glory which is so urgently needed for this compaign. It was also indiscreet of him to complain that the "sensation" was injurious to the company inasmuch as the only effect it can have is the impairment of the company's credit. The commissioners affect to be greatly concerned for the public weal, and they would have us know that they are incensed against the United Railroads for spending money that should be used for equipment and extensions, but at the same time it appears they don't mind making it hard for the company to raise money for improvements. However, it's a bad company and a fine target for the tax-eater with a blunderbus. Years ago this incorporated deviltry converted an ancient cable-road into an electric road much to the indignation of the newspapers. So strong was the opposition of the newspapers to the change that the corporation had to do business with Abe Ruef, and partly for doing business with [illegible] Some of their friends have been [illegible] els couldn't get a franchise it was given the fight of its life. Incidentally a strike was pulled off to keep the officials of the corporation busy, and the fight cost (it is estimated) more than two millions of dollars that might have been spent in reconstruction of the system that was destroyed by fire and earthquake. Ever since the strike the company has been persecuted by demagogues of press and politics eager to vindicate their devotion to organized labor. Even now these demagogues are fanning the flames of hostility and hatred. They are complaining that the company has failed to make necessary extensions. Yet the fact is the company has been attacked every time it has asked permission to make extensions. Now as to the facts which the Railroad Commission claims to have unearthed, I am not informed, but whatever they are I am certain that the whole truth regarding the experience of the wicked corporation in this city is far more discreditable to our taxeaters and our press than to any of the railroad officials. In view of the company's experience it is not to be wondered at that President Lilienthal should be ready to sell out to the city.—Town Talk.

Used to Debate With God

Blanche Bates' husband was given a page interview in the Bulletin last Saturday principally, I suppose, on the strength of his being one of Judge Lindsey's colaborers in the vineyard of reform. It was a soberly written interview, but I think I saw Pauline Jacobson grinning between the lines. Between these lines especially. "As a child he refused to kneel in saying his prayers, for he had questions he wished to discuss with God and which he figured out in his childish mind he would have to forego if he knelt a suppliant for favors." Pauline is a reformer herself, but I know Dr. Aked makes her laugh, and so I will refuse to believe that she kept a straight face while interviewing Blanche Bates' husband.

In a sense Pauline Jacobson might be considered to have rendered a great public service in facilitating the self-revelation of Blanche Bates' husband all over a sheet of the Bulletin. But there is this criticism to be made of her—she made the mistake of taking it for granted that the public would understand the significance of it. She made no marginal notes. To appreciate the importance of the interview one must understand that here is a young man who represents that megalomaniac element in American politics which is so high-blown with egotism that it would ask God questions before kneeling to Him—the element which scorns the work of the Founders and would put all their own hazy ideals into practice; the element that has already done things, and having done them is convinced that no further proof is needed of the soundness of their theories. Read the interview with Blanche Bates' husband. It is worth while. It is a steady stream of the kind of patter that the half-educated have been deluging us with for years, and through it all shines the preposterous personality of a young man who really knows as much as the Almighty about things in general and especially about things of which none but God knows anything.—Town Talk.

Kipling's First Assignment

The arrival in San Francisco of Hugo Poynter, the son of the great painter Sir Edward Poynter and a cousin of Rudyard Kipling, reminds me of a story often told in local newspaper circles of the first assignment Rudyard Kipling ever received from an American city editor. "A runt of a man with big spectacles" is the way Kipling is remembered by the old-timers who were working on the Chronicle when the stranger from the Far East applied for a job.

"Kippering—Kappering — Kipsing—oh, yes, Kipling' That's right, isn't it?" growled the crusty city editor, and the "runt of a man with the big spectacles" bowed "Know anything about crooked financial stuff?" asked the city editor.

"A bit," replied Kipling, "but perhaps not much about the American kind."

"Well, you can pick it up, can't you?" demanded the city editor. "This is America, you know. It's not Australia or Samoa—where was it you did newspaper work?"

"In India," said the stranger.

"Oh, India," growled the city editor. "I suppose they hae pretty rotten papers in India, haven't they?"

"Oh, they're not so bad," said Kipling. 'Different from the newspapers here, of course. But not so rotten bad, really.'

"Well, see here, Kippering—I mean Kipling," said the city editor, "there's a fake concern selling punk mining stock at this address. Trot down there and have a talk with the manager. Feel him out. Look him over. Then report back to me. By the way, what's your full name?"

"Rudyard Kipling," said the new man.

"Rud—Rud—what?" asked the city editor.

"R-U-D-Y-A-R-D Kipling," explained the stranger.

"Gee," said the city editor. "That's the funniest name I ever heard. How can anybody be expected to remember a name like that?"—Town Talk.

List of Queens Is Reduced

You would think that the Ball of All Nations was as dead as Jane Lynch's mummy, but it seems not. It isn't ancient history yet, as there is quite a discussion in society over its effect on future large and public affairs, where fashionable society lends its aid by furnishing queens. There were a couple of queens at the Ball of All Nations and right royally did they carry themselves. It wasn't for the glory of the occasion either, but to help it along with genuine California good nature. The other selected queens who were expected to help the enterprise along, and pull the Portola Festival Committee out of the financial slough shirked the task. Some of their friends have been proclaiming rather too aggressively that the ladies were right and the discussion which has thus been started bids fair to reduce the chances of getting fashionable women to queen any more big public masques in San Francisco. The next committee that goes out on a queen hunt will keep away from fashionable Burlingame.—Wasp.

Life on the Campus as Seen by Wheeler

President Wheeler's address to the graduating class of the University of California contained a remarkable passage, in which he reviewed, as he said, "one of your own too typical academic days." This is the president's picture of life on the campus:

"You arrive late from a hurried breakfast, at a lecture in a course you chose because a friend of yours was taking it, and then go up to North Hall to attend one you chose because the hour fitted your card, and then drop into the 'Co op,' and are thereby reminded to fill your pen, and by that to purchase a few lemon drops, and you sit on the senior bench and miss a recitation and attend a Blue and Gold meeting, and hurry down to the photographer's for a group picture, laboratory you meet a friend who takes you to Oakland in an automobile, and on your return you hear cheering, which reminds you that there is a baseball game, and after the game you are invited to a cup of tea and talk about nothing you had planned to, but about anything which happens along; and during dinner you are called up on a telephone and asked to join a party for the theater, but that by reason of a instant in time, degenerates to the 'movies,' and the next morning you awake with the brown taste of nothingness in your mouth and a dull foreboding in your conscience that we have another day of earnest work before us, but you have forgotten what the work is."

The president blames the twentieth century for all this haphazard flitting from flower to flower, which is something like speaking disrespectfully of the equator. "You have been born," he said, "into a twentieth century world which, having just inherited the discovery of the control of physical power, rejoices like a child in making the wheels go round, and takes to itself the keenest delight in purposeless activity and meaningless speed." One is entertained by the president's vivid description of those astonishing functions which are dignified under the name of "student activities," but after all, the graduates cannot be blamed for being born at the wrong time, as Dr. Wheeler sees it, when everybody is joy riding.

The cultivation of a sense of humor is one of those campus activities which perhaps Dr. Wheeler deplores as light-minded. But the boys and girls manage the thing with a skillful hand on occasion. I find, for instance, in a college publication a delicious parody on Miss Deborah Dyer's editorial on student manners, and Professor Herbert Corey's learned tractate on the same subject. It runs:

"I feel it my duty as woman's editor to be shocked at the deterioration of true politeness on the campus. The man no longer doffs his hat with true cavalier grace as in the fine old times, nor does the woman bow with female dignity. Rather does the former say: 'Hello, chick,' and the latter carol between pearly teeth: 'Lay off on that stuff!' I myself have been addressed in this manner!

"I think this isn't right. I think we girls might do better. I, myself, am willing to start a movement towards reform. I may here state that I am some reformer! But am not progressive! I also think that the habits recently acquired by fraternity girls are most disconcerting. I suggest that they cease drinking coffee from saucers. I further suggest that they stop drinking at all. I, myself, find abstinence beneficial. I intend to bring the saucer habit before the President's private secretary. I have been assured of his interest. I may here state as a sorority that it is hard on one brought up in the best society to see all the sisters do the vacuum cleaner stunt."—News Letter.

Death of John Singleton in South

A short despatch from Los Angeles brought us the news last week that old John Singleton was dead. Old John Singleton of the Yellow Aster Mine! We had practically forgotten old John, and even the Yellow Aster had passed from our minds. But what stories the two names bring back! The Yellow Aster was the greatest mine ever discovered in Southern California, a region not favored with gold like our northern section of the state. It was indeed one of the great bonanzas of California. It made John Singleton rich with a wealth which he thought was like unto the wealth of Croesus. He spent as though his resources were inexhaustible, and developed in the course of his spending eccentricities similar to those of the bonanza kings of San Francisco. The despatch stated that apoplexy overtook him while he was directing the installation of machinery at his mine. It was an appropriate place for John Singleton to die. Hope still buried in his breast, and true prospector that he was, he turned to the old mine for another store to fill his empty coffers. For John Singleton died a poor man, or I am very much mistaken.

John Singleton was a waiter in a Los Angeles chop house in the old days before the Middle West and the cafeteria came to the metropolis of the citrus belt. He was also a prospector, and with two other pioneers he found the great Yellow Aster at Randsburg in 1895. He became a millionaire almost over night. His income was estimated at more than a thousand dollars a day. And he commenced to spend his money as fast as it rolled in. He built a splendid residence in the midst of spacious grounds in Los Angeles, and called it Singleton Court. The name was chosen by a feminine guest at one of his famous parties. John offered a prize for the best name for the new home. The guest who selected the high-sounding "Singleton Court" tickled his vanity, and he presented her with a pair of diamond-studded garters. His parties were always elaborate and expensive. There were always souvenirs for the guests, such as gold chains with pearl pendants for the ladies and jeweled scarf pins for the men. [illegible] struck it rich; his second wife developed stage ambitions. Tragedy came into his life when his son committed suicide. It was a broken John Singleton who died at the Yellow Aster mine last week.—Town Talk.

As to Schools and Education

The complexity of modern life is illustrated by the effect of the Mexican wars on the ticketing of automobiles in California. W. H. Armaby, head of the motor vehicle department in the State House at Sacramento, states that the trouble dates back to the shipment of 120,000 guide boards to the department from Cambridge, Mass., on the American-Hawaiian steamer Dakotan. Unfortunately the Dakotan arrived at the eastern terminus of the railroad which crosses the Isthmus of Tehauntepec at about the same time that the American fleet arrived at Vera Cruz. The cargo of some 3000 or 4000 tons was seized by the Mexicans, and a large part of it destroyed. So it has become necessary to place a new order in the East, although it might seem [illegible] lectured in California.

The way of the school boy is to be made easy, if the State Board of Education can smooth his thorny path. The school speller is to be boiled down to a concentrated essence of the vocabulary. The official school speller now in use comprises some 15,000 words, which is about as many as Shakespeare found use for in his wonderfully varied vocabulary. Besides Shakespeare's spelling before it was corrected by his editors, was more than queer. So in future the mollycoddled California school boy will be let off with a spelling acquaintance of 3000 words. There are, we believe, some 250,000 words in the dictionary (unabridged), which appears like an extravagant provision for a talkfest.

What is the matter with the high schools of California? asks Congressman Curry, bewailing the fact that all his candidates for West Point and Annapolis had lamentably failed to pass the entrance examinations, although they were all high schcool graduates, and he added. "I thought we had good high schools in our section of California. They are accredited schools of the University of California. It seems very strange to me that graduates of our high schools cannot pass these examinations." The Congressman should consult Dr. Frederic Burk of the San Francisco Normal School.—News Letter

Elimination of the Parent

The process of elimination to which the American parent is being subjected by the people who run the public schools has already gone far and promises to go farther if the fadmongers are given their way. What the children shall eat and what they shall drink, and wherewithal they shall be clothed—all these things and more are prescribed by the school authorities of advanced communities, and exhaustive medical and hygienic inspection is provided. The parent is refused the right to say what subjects his child shall study. At least that was the ground of action brought by a Nebraska citizen against the State to compel the school authorities to reinstate his daughter who had been dismissed because by her father's direction she had refused to study cooking as included in the school curriculum.

Now the Supreme Court of Nebraska, vigorously dissents from this autocratic idea of school authority, and in its opinion lays down the limits within which school boards may deal with their charges. The court said that "the school trustees have authority to classify and grade scholars in the district and cause them [illegible] may deem expedient; they may also prescribe the courses of study and text books for the use of the school and such reasonable rules and regulations as they may think needful. They may also require prompt attendance, respectful deportment and diligence in study. The parent, however, has a right to make a reasonable selection from the prescribed studies for his child to pursue, and this selection must be respected by the trustees, as the right of the parent in that regard is superior to that of the trustees and teachers. . . . Our public schools should receive the earnest and conscientious support of every citizen. To that end the school authorities should be upheld in their control and regulation of our school system; but their power and authority should not be unlimited. They should exercise their authority over and their desire to further the best interests of their scholars, with a due regard for the desires and inborn solicitude of the parents of such children. They should not too jealously assert or attempt to defend their supposed prerogatives. If a reasonable request is made by a parent, it should be heeded."

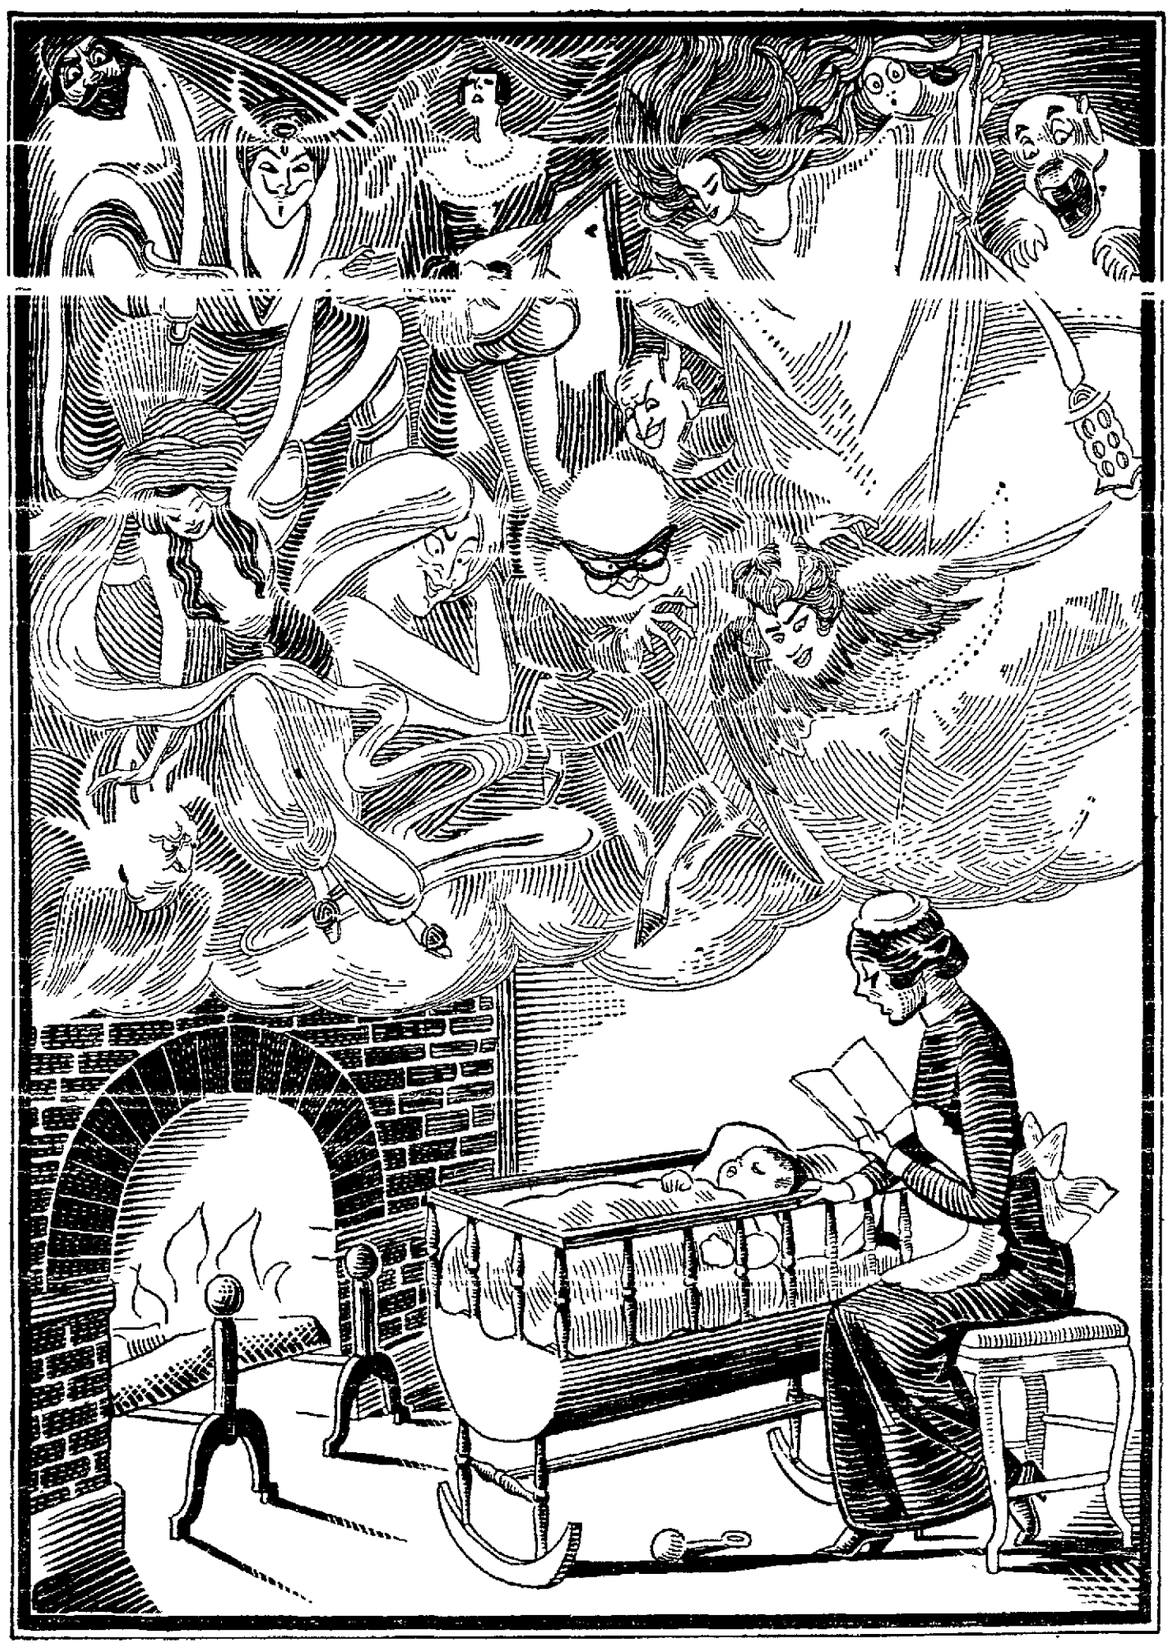
In Nebraska, at least, the parent has not yet been eliminated.—News Letter

Envy Excited by Congeniality

A most congenial little foursome, who are occupying one of the pretty little cottages at Del Monte, are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Martin, Duke Heinrich of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and Miss Marion Stovel. The Duke, whose first intention was to spend only a few days in San Francisco, and then go to the Yosemite Valley, has found it all so charming out here that his stay may be quite indefinite. The other guest of the Peter Martins, Miss Marion Stovel, has been made much of by Mrs. Peter, though the charming girl is still in her teens, and, in fact, was taken from a local finishing school to go on the trip to Del Monte. She is very fond of outdoor exercise and Mr. Peter Martin is now so far convalescent that he can accompany the party on the rides and drives so numerous and attractive at Monterey. The fact that Mrs. Peter should have selected her young friend from school in preference to all other acquaintances has caused some pangs of envy on one side and elation on the other. [illegible] The envious ones will have catalepsie [illegible] if the Martins and their young friend accompany him back to Paris. I hear that he has requested the trip and ducal hosts are supposed to do things on a very liberal scale. The Duke is considerably the junior of his fair hostess, who is now in her golden prime.—Wasp.

SUPERSTITION RULES THE LIVES OF THE GREAT

Most Everybody, Big and Little, Is Superstitious. Here Are Some Notable Instances.



Superstition Broods Over Us in Our Cradle and the Lullaby of the Nurse.

By DR. B. J. CIGRAND.

SUPERSTITION has played a large part in the lives of the world's greatest men. In countless cases the powerful and the talented of the earth have foreseen in visions events which had an important effect on not only the individuals themselves but on communities and even nations.

We have just celebrated the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner. Few people have had the supposed unlucky number 13 follow them more than Wagner. But he believed it a lucky number, and his life demonstrates that it figured in the luckiest events of his life. His name has thirteen letters, he was born in 1813, and if you add these figures, 1 plus 8 plus 1 plus 3, you get 13

At the age of 13 Wagner decided to take up music. He could hear music everywhere and saw strange figures beckoning him to prepare the dreams and dramas of humanity, and his music has all the charm of these visions. In 1831 he entered the university to acquire a philosopher's training. If you add these figures in 1831 you again have his 13. He wrote thirteen dramas, and his favorite one, "Meistersinger," has thirteen letters. Three others he gave titles containing thirteen letters. He wrote: "I have this 13th day of April completed 'Tannhäuser'" This great play went on the stage on March 13. Wagner died on the 13th of February and there have been thirteen biographies written of him.

"He Loves Me, He Loves Me Not."

Take Pope Pius X. He on the 13th of April asserted to his ecclesiastical company:

"My life has been strangely ruled by the figure 9. For nine years a schoolboy at Reise, for nine years a student at Padua, for nine years curate at Tembole, for nine years a priest at Salzane, for nine years a bishop at Mantua, for nine years cardinal at Venice, and now pope—as long as God wills—possibly nine years.

The pope is a profound student and a man of broad experience, yet he lingers at the figure 9, believing it to have special influence in his life.

Dickens Saw Apparitions.

There was Charles Dickens, who understood humanity and was familiar with the popular superstitions of England. He believed in many of them and gave considerable space to them in his writings. Dickens even saw apparitions, which may be called the thirty-second degree in the order of superstition.

The great German poet Goethe said there is an element of superstition in every person, inherited impulses, and that if one believes superstition eradicated he will, on close examination of himself, find strange images and things peeping from every part of his being.

Our own James Russell Lowell, that calm scholarly poet, tells us that "a mythology or superstition broods over us in our cradle and mingles with the lullaby of the nurse; it is in the winter evening legends of the chimney corners and is never entirely eradicated."

From the earliest recollection of the first rehearsal of the "bogie man" down to the day when your sweetheart plucked the petals from the flower, saying, "He loves me, he loves me not," there has been a strange, though at times an illogical, sequence to things coupled with superstition.

What politician and candidate would not accept a bunch of four leaf clovers from a maiden and feel convinced that fortune smiled upon him? We would like his name and we would wish to see his photograph.

What bride, whether of cottage or castle, but would feel slighted if her friends did not shower her with rice as she was helped into carriage or automobile? And what bridegroom, whether of low or high brow, would not feel scorned if the old shoe were not flung at him as he drove away with his bride?

Lincoln Predicted His Own Death.

Distinguished statesmen, poets, painters, orators, inventors, and merchants have attested their consideration of the popular superstitions of marriage, and have paid tribute to the goddess Superstition in their wedding gifts to their brides.

Abraham Lincoln was given more or less to the superstitions of his day. He had his own interpretation of the signs and was constantly giving new definitions of these signs to his friends, be the latter cabinet ministers or workmen. Lincoln lived to prove that he could see things—at least he had a better vision than Jefferson Davis, who, seeing the signs, did not interpret them properly.

Lincoln could penetrate the tomorrows quite as readily as a powerful microscope can discern the crevices of glistening granite. It would require too much space to detail the innumerable instances in the life of Lincoln where he relied on the warning of a dream and other superstitious indicators.

But a mirror incident is significant. Lincoln had just been elected to the presidency. He was lying on a couch taking a nap. Suddenly he awoke, and, looking into a mirror, beheld two distinct views of his face—the one a life tinted and healthful outline, the other a worn, pale, and faded face. He related this vision to many and several times while in the White House attempted with the same mirror to get the same result, but failed

The vision worried Lincoln, and finally Mrs. Lincoln asked him to define the vision Lincoln then, in the presence of a number of people, including Hill Lamon, one of his biographers, began in a serious manner to say:

"Well, I believe it means that the healthy face stands for my first term as president—I will succeed and save the union. But the pale face means that I will be elected to a second term, but will not live to see its end, for I will be assassinated."

His hearers were shocked, but he added:

"I have told you just what that mirror vision means."

It came true. Why should he have said so often, "I will be assassinated," when no such tragic death had ever befallen any other of the presidents? He frequently became so morose upon contemplating his assassination that it was with difficulty he could be cheered up Often he sent for friends to free him of the morbid thought by engaging in some enjoyable conversation. The theater was often his refuge—it proved to be his death.

A Battle Foreseen in a Minute.

George Cary Eggleston, the author, while a student at Richmond college, Virginia, chose a bright and classic faced companion. The lad was from a good Virginia family and his name was Bernard Poland. One day while he and Eggleston were out riding Poland suddenly stopped his horse, called to Eggleston, and said:

"I am neither sick nor demented, but I feel strange. Just as we came up that hill I seemed to see a great battle. I was riding as a cavalryman and the opposing soldiers made a desperate charge. I was shot several times, and right here I fell and died."

The boys discussed the prophetic vision for some moments and then tried to forget about it, but it seemed to haunt Poland. He could not understand how he could have witnessed such a battle and taken part in it, and filled such a long engagement when the whole vision lasted less than a minute.

This horseback ride was in 1857. Seven years afterward Eggleston was fighting in the civil war and one morning his command was ordered to ride down that very road.

At 13 Wagner Decided to Take Up Music.

Suddenly the report of a cannon warned his company that a battle was near and as they rode to the top of the hill, sure enough an engagement ensued. Eggleston recalled the vision and muttered to himself:

"The same place, the same scene, and the actual battle. I wonder where Bernard Poland is."

* *

Died as Vision Prophesied.

Night came on, the dead were carried away, and later Eggleston received this letter from a confederate officer:

"Before we were ordered to charge Bernard Poland requested me, in the event of his death, to write to you a description of the spot on which he fell, saying: 'Mr. Eggleston will remember all about it.'"

The letter to this day is much prized by the Eggleston family of Indiana.

The civil war abounds in similar events. Remarkable warnings of danger and premonitions of mothers and fathers regarding the death of their soldier boys are numerous and inexplicable.

Thousands of charms, mascots, and keepsakes were given to the soldier boys of the American revolution, Mexican war, civil war, and the Spanish-American war, in the hope that they might protect or rescue them. The Eighth Wisconsin had a live eagle as its mascot, and how gallantly the boys fought under this ensign and how safe they felt as long as "Old Abe," the war eagle, hovered above their colors.

Napoleon admitted he was superstitious and he was constantly getting some definition from every flower, bird, and creature in his path of blood. At one time he remarked:

"If there is one within my ranks who does not feel the awe of other worlds and unseen images, push him deeper into the fight and school him for his destiny."

* *

Can't Be Educated Out of Fears.

One of the Americans who swayed a power over the land was Oliver Wendell Holmes. One of his Harvard classes once asked him regarding superstitions and the professor, who had dissected not only the human body but literature and history as well, was pleased to remark:

"We are all tattooed in our cradles with the beliefs of our tribe, the record may seem superficial, but it is there and indelible. You cannot educate a man wholly out of the superstitious fears which were implanted in his imagination, no matter how utterly his reason may reject them."

Another learned professor, being asked whether he was superstitious, replied:

"There is not a superstitious disk in my blood, those flakes were stained from our family during the reformation."

One of the group then asked him how his rheumatism was behaving and he answered:

"Well, ever since I have been carrying two horse chestnuts in my pocket I declare I have quite forgotten the twinge." Then how the boys did laugh!

Ask any salesman at a large jewelry store whether Americans are superstitious about purchasing rings or precious stones. They will tell you that the birth month and the character of the setting, as well as the form of the design, are constantly brought into the purchase or manufacture. The rich, the poor, the high stationed or the low all have their peculiar superstitious ideas as to what will be lucky and what will assume the position of a protectorate.

CAPTAIN OF COLLIER ACCUSED.

RIMOUSKI, Quebec, May 30.—Captain Kendall's direct charge of the responsibility of Captain Anderson of the Storstad for the Empress of Ireland deaths came in the inquest here when a juror asked:

"Do you think the captain or any of the officers of the Storstad heard you shout to them to keep full spead ahead and keep the bow of his steamer in the hole it had made?"

"Impossible not to have heard me," answered Captain Kendall. "I shouted five times. I also shouted: 'Keep ahead!' Even if he did not hear me he should have done that. As a seaman he should have known that."

RIMOUSKI, Quebec, May 30.—Responsibility for the deaths of nearly 1000 persons who perished when the collier Storstad rammed and sank the great Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Ireland, was placed here squarely on Captain Thomas Anderson of the collier by Captain H. G. Kendall of the lost vessel.

Captain Kendall, testifying before a coroner's jury this afternoon, detailed at length the story of the disaster. Failure of the Storstad's captain, he said, to observe whistled signals caused the collision. Neglect to hold the Storstad's nose in the hole in the Empress killed the last hope of rescue.

TELLS OF SEA TRAGEDY.

Shaken and weakened, Captain Kendall told a plain, unvarnished tale of the sea tragedy. He fronted a jury of French-Canadian sailor-fishermen, headed by Dr. G. Pinault, coroner, and with P. H. Carron, magistrate of the district, acting as foreman.

Spectators in oilskins, l[illegible]ermen and farmers, jostled elbows [illegible]th Andrew Allen, millionaire [illegible]sident of the Canadian Shipping Federation, and with Captain Walsh, marine superintendent of Canadian lines.

Kendall first described the departure of his ship from Quebec and told of speeding down the river until the pilot was dropped at Father Point, near which place the disaster occurred. He said he sighted the Storstad first when she was two miles away. Then a fog drifted out from the river bank, the Storstad's lights vanished and the Empress was ordered stopped.

COLLISION DESCRIBED.

The Empress lost all way while whistles advised the Storstad of the liner's movements. Twice, Captain Kendall said, the liner's blasts signalled warning and twice came answers from the oncoming collier. The last blast from the Storstad, said Kendall, was "about four points on my starboard bow."

About two minutes after [illegible] continued, "I saw his red and green lights. He was then about a ship's length away. I shouted to him through the megaphone to go full speed astern, as I saw the danger of collision was inevitable. At the same time I put my engines full speed ahead with my helm hard aport. Almost at the same instant the Storstad struck us between the funnels.

"I then shouted to the Storstad to keep the ship full speed ahead to fill the hole he had made, but she backed away. The Empress then began to fill and listed over rapidly."

Kendall described how he ordered the wireless "S. O. S," how he loosed the grips ond four lifeboats, and how, in about three minutes, "the ship turned over and foundered" and he was shot into the sea.

NO PANIC ABOARD.

Captain Kendall devoted only a few words to his struggle in the water. He told how he was pulled off a piece of wreckage almost exhausted, into a boat from the Storstad, how he aided to save others, how they were put aboard the collier and how he then, with aid, returned to the scene of the Empress' sinking.

"When we got there," he said, "everybody had gone. We could not see anybody alive, so we returned to the Storstad.

"There was no panic. I had full control of the crew. They fought to the end. Everybody behaved splendidly. Four boats were launched. These were the four on which I had loosened the grips as the ship sank and as the water rose these boats floated away. The people who were saved were saved by the Empress' boats and by the wreckage."

GRIM SPECTACLES.

Several passengers followed Captain Kendall on the stand. Their stories of the disaster developed nothing new, but one and all praised warmly the action of Kendall and his crew.

The inquest developed rather along the lines of a marine investigation, the coroner evidently believing it was his duty to prove the full cause of the collision rather than to determine the death of the 200-odd victims.

During the day Dr. Pinault obtained removal of all the bodies here. Relatives who had identified bodies were allowed to remove them and the others were taken to Quebec.

IRVING STILL MISSING.

At 5 o'clock the steamer Lady Grey, with ensigns half-masted, left here for Quebec, bearing 175 bodies, some in coffins. The grewsome cargo was piled on the decks and the trim ice-breaker presented a sad spectacle as she steamed away. No other bodies have been found and it is believed that the greater number of those lost were imprisoned inside the hull of the Empress.

H. M. S. Essex was anchored off St. Luce, watching for bodies. The grim, businesslike warship was busy all day, out up to the evening had not communicated with the shore.

So far not a trace has been found

MEDIATION HALTED

Arrival of Alert Little Man Has Caused Delay in Proceedings.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 30.—Mediation was at a standstill today. The arrival of a little, alert man, who carried a letter to the three mediators making such rapid progress in bringing the American and Mexican matters toward a pacific settlement, has completely blocked proceedings for the time being. Word from Washington is now awaited. This message, which was from the Constitutionalists, is yet to be answered by the ambassador, and what the next step will be is problematical.

Not a wh[illegible] was turned today toward continuing negotiations between the American and Mexican envoys. The Mexicans were closeted in their rooms. In the Prospect house on the American side, Justice Lamar communicated with Secretary Bryan during the afternoon. The justice appeared tired and worn. He said conditions were unchanged. Frederick W. Lehmann had a short automobile ride with Dr. Naon, but there was no meeting between either set of envoys and the mediators. Tonight, following the receipt of a message from Bryan, the Americans met the mediators.

CHANGES IN PLANS.

Juan Urquidi, the mediator who brought the letter from the Constitutionalist juanta in Washington, was about both of the "mediation hotels" throughout the day. He was in communication with his headquarters, but expressed no desire to see the mediators again.

The turn of affairs has resulted in hurried changes of plans that had been made. The Mexican delegation expected to leave here next Wednesday or Thursday, negotiations completed and the protocol signed. Now they believe it may be two or three weeks before they leave. If that should be the case, another big section of the United States may be able to see the mediators. Holiday crowds poured in today. On the broad veranda beneath the conference room of the mediators scores gathered for their afternoon tea. Among the crowds there was nothing to indicate that the solution of an international question had seemingly eluded the men who have delved with the problem for more than a week just at the time when it appeared nearest.

The 11-year-old sons of the mediators, Naon and Suarez, argued on the veranda as to which one should pay the bill for tea. The young Naon suggested that a mediator be called in.

Coroner Will Probe Death of McClure

YONKERS, N. Y., May 30.—Coroner James Dunn tonight is investigating the death of R. Bruce McClure, brother of S. S. McClure of McClure's magazine, whose body was found early today in his home with part of the head blown away. Near the body was a .12-gauge double-barreled shotgun with an exploded shell in one chamber.

The police, to whom the shooting was reported today, believe McClure met his death about 9 o'clock Friday evening.

The dead man was 55 years of age. Until recently he was head of the McClure syndicate. His wife said he retired early last night in seemingly good spirits. Besides the widow, three sons and a daughter survive him.

WITNESS TRAGEDY

Children See Woman Shot, and Intending Slayer End His Own Life.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Sitting wild-eyed with fear, two Italian youngsters, Frank and Joseph Rocca, aged three and four years respectively, were witnesses of a grim tragedy in the rear of their home this afternoon when they saw their mother shot down and the man whom they had been taught to call uncle commit suicide a few feet away. They missed the remaining feature of the triple shooting, which occurred on Powell street, when their aunt, Mrs. Angeline Blanco was wounded in her effort to escape what seemed like certain death. The would-be murderer, whose body lies on a slab at the morgue, is Daniel Blanco, a fisherman, 27 years old, and his effort to slay his wife and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Rocca, at the latter's home, 1914 Powell street, late this afternoon was the direct result of the refusal of his better half to support him.

Blanco and his wife, who is but 17, were wedded five months ago. So[illegible] after he attempted to force he[illegible] a life of shame, she says, in order t[illegible] support him, and her refusal led t[illegible] frequent quarrels. A week ago she left him and went to her sister[illegible] home for shelter. There, armed with a murderous-looking revolv[illegible] Blanco appeared today. In the rear of the Rocca residence lives Mrs. Edith Stagnaro. On her porch sat little Joe and Frank Rocca.

WOMAN IS SHOT DOWN.

A cry from one of the boys was heard by Mrs. Stagnaro and she looked out of her window in time to see Blanco creeping stealthily up the back stairs of the Rocca house. Mrs. Rocca came to the landing to pull in a clothes line and she, too, caught sight of her brother-in-law. In a moment she had fallen with a bullet wound in the hip and as her sister rushed to her side, Blanco had leaped up the stairs.

Mrs. Blanco, terror stricken, ran through the house to the street. Her husband pursued and shot her as she crossed to a neighbor's home. A bullet plowed through her shoulder and she fell moaning with pain.

The man then returned through the alley way to the rear of the house where, just as the two little boys were begging to be allowed to go to their mother's side, and pleading with bystanders he turned into the basement and shot himself through the ear. He died instantly.

TELLS OF CRUELTIES.

Mrs. Blanco told the story of her spouse's cruelties at the Harbor Hospital where she and her sister were taken.

Blanco attempted to gain entrance to the house Tuesday night and created a disturbance. Mrs. Rocca procured a warrant for his arrest and Patrolman Stelzner made several futile efforts to find him.

The two injured women were resting easily late tonight and unless blood poisoning sets in they will recover. The little Rocca boys are at the Juvenile Detention Home.

Aviator Drowned by Fall Into Mediterranean

ANTIBES, France, May 30.—Alfred Agostinellio, a student aviator, was drowned here today when he fell from his machine into the Mediterranean sea.

If They Cannot Do It, It Cannot Be Done, Is Their Boast

There isn't going to be such an expense incidental to getting married bye and bye. At least, that's what the pretty girls at the Manual Training and Commercial High School think. They're now engaged on the very work that's going to reduce the high cost of matrimony, and they're doing it by learning to make what others buy. Youthful dressmakers who vary their studies of Algebra and Latin with work at the sewing machine, are learning to rival Oakland's most fashionable dressmakers. "Whatever it is, we can make it or it can't be made," they declare. Also—and here's where the lower cost of marriage comes in—they can make it cheaper by more than half!

Never will a husband of an Oakland Manual Training and Commercial High School girl be forced to grumble at the cost of wife's dresses. Never will he have to complain and long for the flapjacks mother used to make, either—for they're learning to make the flapjacks that the scientific teacher can make—and they have the advantage of mother there.

Practically every girl in the school is in the big domestic science class that is rapidly striking a deadly blow at the marriage-expense bugaboo.

Ruth Gleason, a sophomore in the Manual Training and Commercial High School, is considered one of the star pupils in the sewing class. She has already made a number of artistic frocks, which she has worn at dances. Ruth Morton, a pupil in the same department, recently completed a pink organdie, which will be exhibited at a display of the work accomplished during the past semester.

The same girls served a luncheon in honor of the supervisors of Alameda county last Thursday, when the girls prepared the menu, which consisted of seven courses.

Letters Cause Arrest Of Japanese Student

Accused of having written indecent letters to Rev. Arthur Maxson Smith, pastor of the First Unitarian church of Berkeley, for periods extending over the past two years, and declared to have confessed to the police, Kamazi Mori, a Japanese student, was arrested at his home, 613 Harrison street, last night by Detectives Green and Nells and turned over to the Berkeley police. A year ago the man was arrested on suspicion of the same charge and released. The man, it is declared, is noted in his own country as a student of economics and philosophy. Since coming to America he has worked as a servant.

Smith, a year ago, refused to prosecute. Since then he has complained to the police of the letters again.

Missing Millionaire To Be Sought Again

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—The Santa Barbara police were asked tonight to make another investigation into the strange disappearance there January 14 of F. Lewis Clark, the millionaire. The request was made by local Police Investigator Felts, and [illegible] is alive and that he is being held a prisoner on the Santa Barbara Islands in the hope of ransom. The Long Beach clairvoyant swindle expose tends to prove this theory, according to Felts. Providing Mrs. Clark agrees to the plan, an expedition will be started within two days from Santa Barbara which will give the islands a thorough search.

WILSON IS REBUKED

Veterans Show Respect for President, but Are Not Bit Enthusiastic.

ELGIN, Ill., May 30.—"His footsteps went to Arlington, but his thoughts were left behind," said Colonel Jasper Darling of Chicago, Memorial day speaker here this afternoon, in rebuking President Wilson for failing at first to accept the invitation to attend Memorial day exercises at Arlington national cemetery.

STUDY IN CONTRASTS.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, and Champ Clark, speaker of the house, played star roles in a drama that might have been called "A Study in Contrasts" at historic Arlington cemetery this afternoon. Whether by accident or design the speaker's address was in sharp contradiction to the remarks of the executive. The latter declared for peace. Clark's address breathed the spirit of conflict.

"So soon as the tasks of society are performed in the same spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion as are the tasks of the soldier, peace societies will not be necessary," said the President.

"The corporation of captains, from Nimrod to General Wood, occupy more space in the annals of mankind than do all the statesmen, philosophers, poets, preachers, writers and artisans that ever lived," argued Speaker Clark.

CANCELS ENGAGEMENT.

The formal programs for the observation of the day bore the name of neither. Clark had cancelled another engagement to come here when he was told the President had declined the invitation. The President today, believing that a misapprehension existed because of his refusal, reconsidered and accepted.

Historic Arlington, with its thousands of graves wherein repose the men who made the nation's history, was at its best. Fluttering flags and garlands of vari-colored blooms presented sharp contrast to nature's beautiful green sward which clothed hill and dale.

The old amphitheater, soon to be replaced by a $750,000 memorial building, was jammed by men, women and children. Troopers from Fort Myer, in the yellow of the cavalry and the red of the artillery, guarded the entrances—their youthful vigor in striking contrast to the white-haired, gray-bearded veterans in their blue and gray. For one-quarter at least of the veterans present were veterans of the "lost cause."

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC.

The President was given a respectful hearing. His closest friends admitted that it was not enthusiastic. The cheers and wild applause of the day, whether due to the misapprehension over the President's attitude toward the veterans, were reserved for Speaker Clark. But if the President felt this he made no outward sign. His face, always grave, was impassive throughout the demonstration even for the man whom he defeated for the nomination at Baltimore. He courteously remained in his seat until the speaker ended his address.

In his speech the President paid high tribute to the veterans.

THOMAS MAGEE KILLED WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS; PLUNGES OVER GRADE

Prominent Realty Broker of This City Loses Life When Crushed by Overturned Machine; Seven Hurt Near Vallejo

THOMAS MAGEE, president of Thomas Magee & Sons, realty broker of San Francisco, and residing at 2798 East Fourteenth street, Oakland, and a prominent San Francisco clubman, was killed yesterday afternoon near Cloverdale when his automobile turned over on him on the county road. He was crushed beneath the tonneau and died soon after.

The accident occurred about 5:30 o'clock. It was not observed by any of those traveling along the highway and it was only discovered by passersby some time afterward. Appearance showed that Magee had no opportunity of jumping when something went wrong with his steering gear, being held in position by the wheel.

DOCTOR AT SCENE.

As soon as the overturned machine was found, Dr. T. B. Ledyard, of the Cloverdale Hospital, was notified, as was also Francis Gordon Hewson. The latter took the physician to the scene of the accident and willing hands lifted the car and carried Magee's body to the waiting automobile. He did not regain consciousness, however, and died soon after being taken to Cloverdale.

Magee's relatives were promptly notified and his wife and two brothers, William A. Magee, of the Alder Farm, Redwood Road, and Frederick E. Magee, of 97 Vernon street, this city, motored to Cloverdale. They took with them Dr. A. Lillencrantz of the Hotel Oakland, but arrived only to find Magee dead.

MAGEE IS PROMINENT.

Magee was very prominent in his business dealings and for many years was manager of the huge estates of the Fairs, the Vanderbilts and the Oelrichs.

Magee was at one time a member of the board of supervisors, having been appointed during the administration of Mayor Taylor. Following the earthquake and fire he was one of those who participated in the rehabilitation work and was chairman of the San Francisco Relief and Red Cross funds, Inc.

Magee and Park Commissioner William J. Dingee attracted much attention in October, 1906, in a words war over the housing of refugees in public squares.

FEARS MURDERERS

Demented Slayer Talks of Band Leagued to Kill Him.

FRESNO, May 30.—Pacing up and down the little space in his cell in the insane ward, William Lawrence, aged 84, talks of the birds in the mountains and asks why he cannot return to his ranch, little realizing that Thursday noon he shot and killed Rev. Benjamin F. Fleenor of this city, while the latter sat at his table. Lawrence has no recollection of the shooting, but rambles about a band of ministers that were leagued together to kill him. Lawrence will not be tried for murder. There is no doubt in the minds of the officers that the aged man is demented and he will be examined by a lunacy commission.

In yesterday morning's paper, Mrs. T. J. Nicely of 181 Yosemite avenue, read of the murder of her father. Mrs. Nicely immediately communicated with the authorities and the body of the dead minister was brought to Fresno yesterday afternoon. Funeral services will be held in this city but no definite arrangements have ben made. Wm. Fleenor, a brother of the deceased, has been notified at Manning, Kansas of the death of the minister. Mrs. Nicely yesterday informed the officers that her father left her hoe about two days ago to hold religious meetings in the mountains. Mrs. Nicely did not know of his whereabouts and the first she learned that her father had ben murdered was in yesterday's paper. Mrs. Nicely before her marriage was May Fleenor and resided in Hanford.

INQUEST HELD.

The inquest over the minister, known in the mountains as the "cowboy preacher," was held yesterday at Reedley by Coroner Bean. Witnesses were examined by Deputy District Attorney Beaumont. The jurors, after hearing all of the evidence, rendered a verdict that Fleenor had come to his death from a gun shot wound inflicted by William Lawrence. They incorporated in the verdict that they believed Lawrence was demented.

Mrs. Lawrence, daughter-in-law of the insane murderer, was the principal witness at the inquest. She told that her husband the day before the murder had met Fleenor and had invited him to dinner. No date was set but Fleenor appeared at the house Thursday noon. The younger Lawrence, husband of the witness, was in Reedley with a load of wood. Mrs. Lawrence testified that she apprised Rev. Fleenor of this fact but that he said if she did not mind he would stay for dinner anyway. She said that the minister was invited into the house and that she warned him that her aged father-in-law was insane.

When the meal was almost over Mrs. Lawrence, according to her testimony, went out doors and the door blew shut. While on the doorstep she heard the report of a gun and rushed into the house. She found Lawrence with a shotgun in his hand and Fleenor lying on the floor in a pool of blood.

FEARED MINISTER.

According to Mrs. Lawrence, her father-in-law had long labored under the impression that he would be killed by a preacher. Days before Rev. Fleenor appeared at the house, Mrs. Lawrence said the aged man had given a description of a minister that was coming to kill him.

"Odd as it may seem," Mrs. Lawrence testified, "this description tallied with that of the preacher who came to our home Thursday."

Girls Nearly Drown When Boat Capsizes

Striking a snag while canoeing on a small stream near Lockeford, Miss Gladys Stapleton, a pretty Oakland stenographer, fainted, and her companion, Miss Ruth Nelson, in seeking to assist her, overturned the canoe, precipitating both into the water. Miss Nelson, an expert swimmer, endeavored to rescue her unconscious friend without assistance, but the struggle resulted in both girls being endangered. Miss Stapleton commenced to sink in spite of the aid given her, and finally, Miss Nelson, [illegible]

Her cries were heard by fishermen in the vicinity and they rushed to the scene in another craft, pulling both of the girls from their perilous predicament. Neither suffered from the effects of the water, although it was some time before Miss Stapleton recovered consciousness. Miss Nelson is employed as stenographer in a San Francisco law office.

Engine and Auto Crash; Seven Hurt; One Victim May Die

VALLEJO, May 30.—Crashing, head on, against a speeding wrecking train locomotive hurrying in the opposite direction on a lonely road five miles from this city, a seven-passenger touring car owned by John Poling of Napa and containing six other prominent citizens of that city, was tonight splintered on the pilot of the engine, the wreckage and its human freight being carried fifty yards by the train and scalded by steam, before the seven passengers were hurled to the ground. Poling will die. The others are all seriously injured, but will live. That any escaped with their lives, according to the trainmen, is almost a miracle.

The injured are:

JOHN POLING [illegible] machine. Carried on pilot. Bones of right leg crushed to pulp. Severe internal injuries. Will die.

JUDGE GEO. GILDERSLEEVE—Prominent Napa jurist. Severe cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries.

JACK COLE—Cuts and abrasions of head and body. Several sprains.

F. S. ANIES—Bruises, laceration and burns.

FRED STIEFEL — Severe cuts. Badly scalded.

JOHN HOLLINGHAM—Cuts and bruises.

EARL AHERN—Cuts, sprains and scalding.

REMOVED TO HOSPITAL.

The men were rushed to the Vallejo General Hospital by a passing automobilist. The locomotive, a Southern Pacific machine, was badly damaged. It picked the machine up, and turned it half about. The machine sprung boiler tubes in the locomotive when it struck, and blinding steam hindered the work of rescue.

The ill-fated party was on its way from Napa to Vallejo to attend the big log-rolling contest of the Woodmen of the World held in this city tonight. They were driving a steam machine, and, being late, was proceeding at a swift rate of speed.

They had reached that portion of the road where the electric line and Southern Pacific tracks run close together. As they did so they saw the approaching headlight of the big special locomotive, which was rushing to Shelville, where a Santa Rosa train had broken down. Poling, who was driving, thought that it was an electric car, and turned from the electric tracks squarely into the path of the onrushing train.

CRASH UNAVOIDABLE.

Engineer C. E. Reid of the locomotive threw on his air brakes and whistled. He was unable however to bring his engine to a stop before the crash came. The automobile, crushed and lifted high in the air, became hidden by a cloud of steam as that from the automobile boiler and that from the punctured tubes of the locomotive mingled. The men dropped one by one to the tracks beside the machine as the engine slowly came to a stop.

Reid, the engineer, at once rushed to the assistance of the injured men, and, seeing an automobile approaching, signalled the driver, who placed the men in his automobile and rushed them to Vallejo.

Judge Gildersleeve is one of Napa's most prominent attorneys, and a leader in the work of the lodge which he had planned to visit tonight. The other men are [illegible] in that city.

An investigation of the accident will be made by a Board of Inquiry to fix blame for the accident. The engineer declares that the men turned into the track before he had time to stop, and that, even had he succeeded.

BATTERY B BOYS BANQUET

Assemble About Festive Board for Third Time

Assembling on the anniversary of the first organization of the company for an evening of good fellowship, sixty-six members of Battery B of the First Battalion of Field Artillery, National Guard of California, held their third annual banquet last night at Barnum's restaurant. In full dress uniform, the militiamen and their officers marched from the armory at 8 o'clock and gathered about the festive board for the most successful affair ever given by the organization.

Adjutant-General E. A. Forbes, who had been invited as a guest of honor, sent his regrets in a letter in which Battery B was praised as a model military unit. Regrets were also transmitted by Assistant Adjutant-General F. M. Kennedy and Colonel Theodore Gier, who were unable to attend. Second Lieutenant H. W. Enefer, who has recently undergone an operation and is still confined to the hospital, was the only officer of the Battery who was not present.

BATTERY IS PRAISED.

When the viands had been served, Captain H. F. Huber arose and called order from the mingled talk and laughter. "Comrades," he said, "this meeting tonight has a two-fold purpose: the celebration of the third anniversary of the mustering in of this battery and the honoring of those of our men whose terms expire tomorrow. The association has been a most pleasant one for me, and it is with regret that I see any of the men leaving the ranks. I know that many of them will re-enlist and I hope that they all will do so.

"Battery B has always responded to every test to which it has been subjected and it has the best record of any battery in the battalion. I wish to congratulate you on the accomplishments of the past and to assure you of my belief that you will always maintain that standard. I wish to congratulate you also on the appearance you made this morning at the Memorial Day services when you marched for the first time as dismounted infantry; it was a showing of which I am proud."

TELLS OF ORGANIZATION.

Major R. J. Faneuf of the First battalion was introduced as toastmaster of the evening and fulfilled his duties with a ready wit, flashing shafts of badinage and jest. He told briefly the history of the inception of the battery and paid the organization a high compliment.

"There were times during my incumbency as captain," he said, "that I used to remark that there was only one other company in the state, Company B of the signal corps, that surpassed Battery B. Today I remove that exception and declare that Battery B is the best in the National Guard of California. Three years ago a difficult task was before me. I was told that I had ten days in which to muster in a battery and in that time I had to assemble ninety men. It was with considerable trepidation that I started upon the task.

"You older members of the battery well remember with what heartiness the men responded. By the end of the required time we lacked but twelve men of the full complement, and I think that this is a record for militia mustering in times of peace. To you younger members I wish to say that I am proud of the spirit you are showing in the work of the organization. When orders came recently from headquarters for a canvass of the members to see how many of the men would volunteer for active service in the event that President Wilson found it necessary to call us to arms in the Mexican situation there was a response that was enheartening. Only seventy-five per cent of volunteers were needed to place the battery in a position ready for enlistment in the army, and you answered eighty per cent strong.

"While Battery B was in the process of formation there was one element that aided you materially. If the power of the press is against you in these days of publicity, you can accomplish but little. It was the power of the press that was largely responsible for the existence of Battery B. ... at that time in THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE was the greatest factor in the success of the undertaking."

Sergeant F. T. Ryan, manager of The Shrapnel, the magazine formerly published by the members of Battery B, told of the worries he had undergone in the unfamiliar fields of literary work, and announced that the magazine would probably be revived in the near future. His term of service closes at this time, and he will be unable to re-enlist because of duties elsewhere. He spoke feelingly of his regret at leaving the friends made in the hours of drill and routine and prophesied that he would return at the earliest opportunity.

Lieutenant J. Spencer Riley gave a stirring rendition of Kipling's "Gunga Din" and W. H. Kemp, a former member of the battery, rendered several vocal selections. Speeches were made by B. A. Forsterer, Captain F. W. Peterson, Sergeant F. E. Davis, Lieutenant C. J. Hogan, Lieutenant E. E. Vicary and Lieutenant J. W. White.

MANY MEDALS GLITTER.

Thirty per cent of the roster of Battery B have seen foreign service under the flag and medals of honor glittered on many a uniform around the tables.

Those who attended the banquet were: Major R. J. Faneuf, Captain H. F. Huber, Captain F. W. Petersen, Lieutenant J. Spencer Riley, Lieutenant C. J. Hogan, Lieutenant E. E. Vicary, Lieutenant J. W. White, First Sergeant F. E. Davis, Quartermaster Sergeant W. G. Tuthill, Sergeants F. T. Ryan, C. E. Alexander, J. Greenfield, R. M. Emerson and R. H. Nedderman, Corporals E. A. Ayer, R. W. Blake, E. J. Persen, L. Heinz, R. H. Kinsley, J. N. Mosher, J. H. Fahy, F. P. Thrall, and M. R. Emerson, Sergeant Major E. H. de Hermida, Chief Mechanic James Moynagh Horseshoer G. Shaw, Mechanics A. F. Farman and D. L. Bass, Saddler, A. O. Fritz, Cook H. Elliott, Privates Hogan, Leach, Faneuf, Ried, C. G. Martin, Minan Laurent, C. Petersen, Reynolds, Rivers, Bauman, Parsons, Gonsalves, F. H. Peterson, G. E. Davis, Bush, Ford, Nelson, Lines, E. G. Peterson, McClellan, Andree, Kastens, Lopez, Phillips, Lauterbourn, Blumert, Seely, Kemp, Renshaw, Clark and Dona.

AUTO AND ENGINE CRASH TOGETHER

their machine would still have struck the engine.

AUTO GOES OVER CLIFF.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—C. E. Skidmore, a real estate broker of San Francisco and San Luis Obispo, was seriously injured, and C. O. Wellock, a real estate operator of Ukiah, narrowly escaped death when a machine in which they were driving was hurled 200 feet down a mountainous grade near Cloverdale. The car exploded during its flight, caught fire, and when it came to a stop Skidmore was found crushed beneath it.

Wellock proved a hero in the midst of the danger and excitement of the situation and to that fact Skidmore owes his life. The accident occurred near Cloverdale Friday night. Skidmore and Wellock were returning from a visit into the mountains and were going slowly along the road, when in taking a sharp curve they heard a snap, the car lurched and shot over the embankment. Both men clung desperately to the seat and Wellock was thrown clear when the car alighted. Although badly hurt he saw Skidmore's position and disregarding his own injuries pulled his friend from the burning auto. He then crawled up the grade and dragged himself along until he met a farmer, who summoned aid and conveyed the men to the Cloverdale hospital.

TWO INSTANTLY KILLED.

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, May 30.—Struck by a Spokane & Inland Electric railway train at McLellan, a small station two miles west of here, late today, when en route in an automobile to Hayden Lake on a week-end fishing trip, Dr. B. H. Roark, county physician of Spokane county, and a companion named Thomas, also of Spokane, were instantly killed.

The motor car of the train collided with the automobile with tremendous force, demolishing the machine and hurling the bodies through the air a distance of 400 feet.

The wreckage of the automobile caught fire and was destroyed. The front end of the electric motor car also caught fire but was extinguished before much damage resulted.

GIRL LOSES FOOT WHEN GRIPMAN SEES "JOKE"

KENOSHA, Wis., May 30—Minnie Extra, a six-year-old girl, got her foot caught in a street railway car crossing. Motorman Frank Gibbs saw her on the track but thought that she was playing when she signaled him to stop the car. When he realized the truth it was too late to stop. The foot of the girl ...

High Honor Given California Woman For Her Service

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The distinction of being the first foreign woman to be honored by the Greek government today belongs to Mrs. Adelaide C. Clark of San Francisco. In recognition of her services in the collection of funds and otherwise aiding the Greek Red Cross Society during the Balkan war the government, at the direction of Queen Sofia, has presented Mrs. Clark with a medal of the society.

OLD WEDDING GIFT IS PEW IN CHURCH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 30.—Few churches have the experience of the new Westminster Presbyterian, at Delmar and Union avenues, in placing on its walls a wedding gift presented sixty-three years ago to a bride still living. The bride of 1851 is the present Mrs. Julia Webster Blow, 6600 Washington avenue, an aunt of the distinguished kindergarten educator, Miss Susan Blow, and the wedding gift, the like of which is unknown nowadays, is a bit of old parchment, which cost $300, and was presented to Mrs. Blow on her wedding day by the late Joseph Charless.

It was the gift of a deed in perpetuity to a pew in the old Westminster Presbyterian church, then on Eighth street, near Pine.

The old church passed out of existence. Mrs. Blow became a member of the Washington and Compton Avenue Presbyterian church until her increasing age prevented her from attending, but now, with the revival of the Presbyterian church name, Westminster, she sent the document, which has become historic, to the Rev. Dr. J. F. Cannon, pastor of the new Westminster church.

Dr. H. N. Spencer has had it beautifully mounted in a handsome frame, and it has a place of honor on the chapel wall.

The dignified phrasing of this old document, signed by five officers of the old Westminster church, attests that to Mrs. Blow and her heirs this pew, which was numbered sixty-seven, shall forever personally belong. It is dated December 31, 1851. In no Protestant church in St. Louis could such an instrument be legally uttered today, and in the new Westminster church pews are not even rented, although by courtesy some of the old families occupy the same seats Sunday after Sunday.

The quaint memorial was recentl mentioned by Dr. Cannon at the meeting of the St. Louis Presbytery at Trinity church as something to be exhibited in a collection which the Rev. W. M. Langtry, stated clerk, has been empowered to make from his presbytery, to be shown with the exhibits of other presbyteries at the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, United States, in Kansas City.

HEARTRENDING STORY.

QUEBEC, Quebec, May 30.—F. Ostender, an engineer, one of the Empress of Ireland survivors, told his story here tonight.

"I felt water," he said, "and I jumped somewhere, somehow, and I swam. I was picked up by a lifeboat, nearly frozen, and I think I got an oar and pulled.

"I kept my eyes on the floor of that boat, not wanting to see too much. I caught just one glimpse of the collier backing away.

"I heard no cries. We were picked up finally by the Evelyn—I think it was—the government mail tender. I wasn't badly off. I revived with some coffee and tried to be of some use around the vessel. I don't know how many souls there were on board. My God, they were a mixed lot, mostly naked, first-class and crew and third-class, all huddled together.

"Some died on the way to shore. Some had been cut by the prow of the other vessel. They were terribly mangled, and the women—

"One woman," he continued brokenly, "died while talking to her husband. That is, she thought she was. She thought he was there, and she babbled—and died."

THREE ARE WOUNDED IN DUEL ON STREET

... persons, Sam Holt, a patrolman; Mrs. Gustave Friedberg, and Sam Porter were shot during a pistol duel on a business street here between Porter, a negro and policemen. After he had emptied his revolver Porter was caught by the police and was taken to the jail at Bessemer. The trouble began when Porter shot at his employer after the latter had refused to pay him for work until later in the day.

FARMER SURVIVES LIGHTNING BOLT

He Tells Sensations When Shaft Killed His Team and After.

JUDITH GAP, Mont., May 30.—How does it feel to be struck by lightning?

There are few who are lucky enough to tell the story as Alfred Bouchard does, for lightning usually is fatal to those who are struck down by it. But Bouchard, who is a well-known rancher in this state, recovered, although it was feared for weeks that he would die.

As Bouchard was breaking some land near his home he saw a storm coming up, but kept on working. When the black cloud got over him there was a flash, followed by a loud thunder-clap and Bouchard was thrown 20 feet from the plow.

"I lay there perfectly conscious of what was transpiring," said Bouchard, in telling of his wonderful experience, "but powerless to move. Four of the horses were killed instantly, and the other two so badly disabled that they were useless thereafter. My wife came running to the field. I could see her coming, but was unable to speak. She first felt of my heart and finding it beating she turned me over. This started my blood to circulate again and I could feel thousands of needles piercing every part of me. I was soon able to stand up and walk to the house.

HAT BAND GONE.

"I did not feel any discomfort. My hat was seeming intact, but upon close examination I discovered that the inner leather linnig had entirely disappeared and we never were abel to find it. The heel of my right shoe and about half of the sole were never found either.

"For three weeks I never went to bed. I wasn't sleep at any time and worked both night and day without feeling fatigue. I could see as well after dark as in daylight, and kept on plowing right along, stopping only to feel and change horses. One night while riding on the plow the peculiar trans under which I was living ended. It was like waking up from a dream except that I could not see. I did not know where I was or what had happened. I unhitched the horses, mechanically I guess, and followed them to the barn, where I was found.

"During the three weeks I was in a trance, I heard my wife tell the doctor, to whom she took me daily, how I had been acting. I also talked with him, but it seemed like a dream. My work on the farm during this time was first-class in every particular, and I could talk intelligently, and eat heartily, but did not want to sleep. There was no night for me. It always seemed bright as day.

"From the time the trance ended I began to recover rapidly and was soon feeling as well as I ever did.

"The lightning flash eventually brought me $500. The log chain I had hitched to the plow and connected with the six-horse team was turned into a solid blade of steel. Some men looking for curiostities put up a cash bond of $500 in a Lewistown bank and borrowed the freak. It has never been returned but I have the money."

Asked if he ever felt the effect of his encounter with the lightning, he replied that he did nat two seasons of the year, in the spring when the first thunder shower comes and in the fall when the last one disappears he feels a numbness all over him, like the sensation of one's foot going to sleep.

GOVERNMENT PROVIDES HAVEN FOR A LEPER

WINLOCK, Wash., May 30.—Chris Katajista, the Winlock leper, has been taken to the Diamond Head quarantine station by county officials. He was conveyed in an automobile to Tacoma, where he was transferred to a launch.

About ten weeks ago it was discovered that Katajista was afflicted with leprosy. Then county officials, having no funds for the care of such patients, took up the matter with the government officials at Washington, who ordered his removal to the government quarantine station.

Katajista contracted the disease in Montana eight years ago, but was unaware of its nature until quite recently, when the disease was in an advanced stage. He has a wife and three boys, all of whom have been examined and found free from any taint.

GOSH! FIFTEEN WOMEN KEEP WEDDING SECRET

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 30.—Fifteen women here have established a world's record, but now that their secret is out, they feel great relief from the strain of not telling. The women were present at the wedding of Miss Laura Dennis to Herman V. Biringer, and promised not to tell. The marriage was not known until today when the bride's parents announced it.

UNABLE TO HELP; BOY SEEKS DEATH

Revived and Promised a Good Job He Rejoices at at Prospects.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Despondent because the wage he earned placing tags on clothing was not sufficient to aid his widowed mother, John Pulaski, 10 years old, of 508 North Eighteenth street, attempted suicide in his home yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas.

The boy was found unconscious in the kitchen, with three gas jets turned on. He was hurried to the Garretson Hospital, where he was revived with a pulmotor.

Joy was reflected in the face of young Pulaski when he was informed that Judge Gorman and the probation officer of the juvenile court would get him a job which would enable him to earn enough to be of real assistance to his mother.

"If I get that job," he declared, "I will never again try to die. Anyway I want to grow up and be a jackie on a battleship."

Four months ago the boy ran away from home to be a bandit. Every week after his disappearance his mother received a small amount of money from him, but he kept his whereabouts a secret. Finally he was found working in a store in West Philadelphia.

He was taken home and placed under the supervision of the probation officer of the juvenile court. And when young Pulaski's father died two months ago, the boy searched for a job so he could help his mother. He found one at meager wages in a factory, putting tags on clothing. The money he earned was not sufficient to help with the household expenses, and daily the boy grew more despondent.

ATTORNEY LASSOED OUT OF QUICKSAND

CHICAGO, May 30.—Mired for five hours in quicksand in a swampy waste near East Chicago, C. J. Belinski, an attorney, was dragged with ropes to safety after he had gone down to his armpits.

Mr. Belinski shouted for hours for help. ... himself. Had it not been for employes of the Indiana Harbor Canal, who finally saw and heard him, the victim of the treacherous sand would soon have disappeared entirely.

They lassoed him with a rope and pulled him two hundred feet to solid ground. He was hurried, almost unconscious from exposure and exhaustion, to St. Margaret's hospital, where he quickly recovered.

HISTORY OF CANAL IS TOLD

Ten Years Under American Rule Shows Big Progress in Zone.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—In a simple matter of fact way the last edition of the Canal Record sums up the history of the beginning and completion of the Panama canal under American auspices. Ten years of American occupation of the canal zone have sufficed to bring about this ... graphy, for it was on May 4, 1904, that the canal property was transferred from the second French company to the United States.

The first three years of the American occupation were devoted principally to preparation, but when the work of construction finally started it progressed with marvelous rapidity, so that as announced in the Record "the decade has been a virtual completion of the canal, and the be- ... naval ...s."

The first passage of a self-propelling vessel through the canal from ocean to ocean was effected on January 7th last by the derrick barge, Alex La Valley, though several barges had passed before this. Then the tug Reliance, which reached the Atlantic ... to Balboa on the Pacific side of the isthmus via the straits of Magellan passed through the canal, being thus the first vessel to have sailed entirely around the continent of South America.

MAUL YOUTH FOR THREE DOLLARS

To Obtain Small Sum, Robbers Beat and Stab Him.

BUFFALO, May 30.—Joseph Cuzinski, 27 years old, of 25 Roseville street, was attacked by two men at Van Rensselaer and Carroll streets, and after being stabbed three times, was robbed of $3 and some trinkets. Cuzinski is at the hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull and wounds about the breast and back. His condition is serious.

... with the robbery and assault Acting Captain John Driscoll of the Seneca-street station and Lieutenant James W. Higgins arrested John Adamczak, 23 years old, of 175 Roseville street, and Adam Smith, 19 years old, of 802 South Division street, on a charge of robbery and assault, first degree.

The police allege that Adamczak and Smith attacked Cuzinski with a bottle and, after knocking him unconscious, a knife was driven into his body three times. The police say the prisoners were identified at the hospital by Cuzinski.

DANCERS STOPPED

Carnival Exhibition Too Much for the Mayor of Richmond.

RICHMOND, May 30.—"Tom-Tom-Tom," said the little drum, beaten by the near-Hindu musician in the little tent. The Chinese horn squeaked and the crowd paid its nickels and dimes to swarm into the tent where the "Greatest Hoochy-Koochy Dancer in the World" was billed. Mayor Ludewig followed the crowd.

The music swelled and the "Tom-Tom" accelerated its speed—and then the mayor emerged from the tent—rushing and made a bee-line for the police station.

Two minutes later Chief Arnold, a force of husky policemen behind him, followed the mayor back to the carnival grounds, where the tent of the naughty dancers was. "That's it," reported the mayor, pointing to the flaring picture of the Indian beauty painted on the canvas. (There was no canvas painted on her, by the way).

The police charged the tent and two fair dancers, wrapped in overcoats, were removed. The dance has been closed by order of the mayor and on pain of instant arrest if a Chinese horn so much as squeaks or a "Tom-Tom" lets out as much as one tiny thump.

"The dance is decidedly immoral," declared the mayor. "I will stand for a good deal, but not that." The dancing act was a feature of a carnival brought to Richmond under the auspices of a local lodge. Large crowds have witnessed the affair.

JELK OWES UNCLE SAM $800,000 BACK TAXES

CHICAGO, May 30.—John F. Jelk and the oleomargarine manufacturing company of Chicago, which bears his name, were made defendants in the two government civil suits to recover $800,000 in back taxes with interest on oleomargarine.

Jelk recently was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for defrauding the government out of the 10 per cent tax on imitation butter, and much evidence adduced in this case will be used in the civil action.

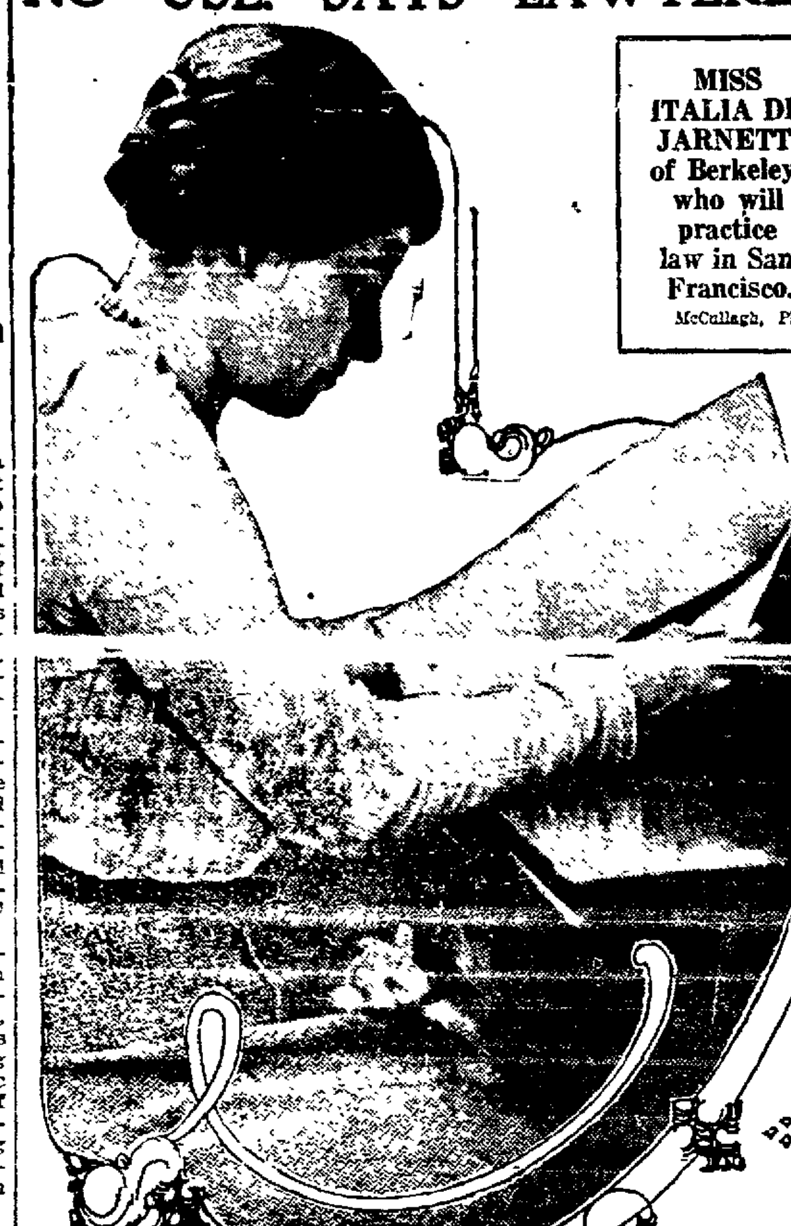
TANGO "GEARS UP THE LIVER:" DR. COMPTON

NEW YORK, May 30.—Dr. C. Ward Crompton, director of physical training in the city schools, says dancing of any kind, and especially tangoing, is fine exercise. "It keeps your liver geared up," declared the doctor.

LOSES ARMY COMMISSION.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—First Lieutenant John Nelson Purgeon is minus his commission in the U. S. army tonight, but it all happened through no fault of his own. He also is mourning the loss of a $250 diamond stick pin. Both were contained in a suitcase which he gave to a stranger to hold on Market street for a few minutes. When he returned the custodian and suitcase had vanished.

WHY WEAR SLIT SKIRTS? NO USE. SAYS LAWYERESS



MISS ITALIA DE JARNETTE of Berkeley, who will practice law in San Francisco. McCullagh, Photo

Why wear the snugly—yes, too snugly-fitting costumes of modern fashion? Slit skirts and ungainly styles never made a good lawyer.

So says Italia de Jarnette, one of the very few California girls who have taken up law as a profession. Miss de Jarnette says that the ideal costume is the divided skirt and the "middy blouse." The youthful Portia, when she isn't delving into the musty tomes of the law, is busy devising newer and freer dresses. Who can tell whether the consignee has a better right than the mortgagor, or whether the habeas corpus law is superior to that of eminent domain, or that regulation is designed to have a soporific influence on predatory corporations, when she's too busy trying to sit up in a skirt that's too tight? No one, says Miss de Jarnette.

The young lawyer is a graduate of the University of California and has achieved considerable fame as an athlete as well as in the fields of law. She is a horseback rider of note in Berkeley and was a champion fencer in her sophomore year in the university. She has written books, stumped the country for women suffrage, "swung" real estate deals, and in fact, has done almost everything but wear a hat.

"Hats are nuisances," she declares. "I never wear one. What's the use?" When Miss de Jarnette isnt busy with other things, she raises mocking birds, and has a large collection in her home in Berkeley. She will in August enter a large law office in San Francisco.

Memorial Day

You thoughtlessly say you have come today
To pay tribute to the dead;
With song and story you tell their glory,
And strew with flowers their bed.

But they are not dead, 'tho fields ran red,
And their clay soon turned to dust;
Their spirit lives, and their courage gives
New strength to our hope and trust.

See that shot-torn rag? 'Twas their battle flag;
It waved over hearts so brave,
Death had no power to darken their hour,
No victory has the grave.

As I slept last night, fifty years took flight,
Great legions before me passed;
The Blue and the Gray in battle array
And khaki-clad numbers vast.

Women passed weeping, their death watch keeping;
For brothers, husbands and sons;
'Tis over their fate, to patiently wait
For death's ... the guns.

We honor the Gray and the Blue;
But pray to our God, that war's wreck and rod
No more shall break hearts so true.

USES ZEBRA ON FARM IN PLACE OF HORSE

MT. VERNON, Ind., May 30.—Dr. W. S. Hastings, a Posey county stock breeder and farmer, is using a $2500 zebra on one of his farms in place of a horse.

Dr. Hastings made a trip to Hamburg, Germany, two years ago and bought two African zebras from Carl Hagenbeck and brought them to Posey county at an expense of $5000. The animals were bought for the purpose of cross-breeding them with native mules.

One of the zebras was accidentally kicked to death last year, and in order to give the other exercise Dr. Hastings put it to work this week pulling a drag on one of his farms. The zebra proved a good work animal. It is thoroughly domesticated.

RIVALS DIE IN DUEL, WHILE WOMAN WATCHES

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 30.—Word has reached here that Hubbard Miniard, age 17, son of County Attorney J. B. Miniard of Leslie county, and Joseph Hensley, a member of a prominent Leslie county family, had killed each other in a pistol duel near Hyden.

According to the report, Miniard was escorting Mrs. Daisy Adams to a party when they met Hensley. A quarrel ensued over the woman and both men drew pistols. Each shot the other dead. A bullet hit Mrs. Adams, but the wound was only slight.

GIRL CHASED BY DOG KILLED BY TROLLEY

NORTHAMPTON, Pa., May 30.—A farmer's dog chased 7-year-old Mary Janisolas to a horribe death under the wheels of a trolley car, while playmates looked helplessly on.

The girl was returning home from Sunday school when the dog set upon her, and she ran in panic to get away. She bumped into the fender of the trolley car. This hurled her up an embankment from which she rolled down under the rear wheels of the car.

LONG-HAIRED CHICKEN IS HATCHED ON FARM

BELFAST, May 30.—Mrs. Sarah ... out of a hatching of eggs got only three chickens and one is a curiosity. The chick, which is three days old, has hair just like an animal, but very much longer and not a sign of a feather.

On the B. & R. poultry farm there is another freak. This is a well developed bright little chick with duck's feet.

MIESZYSLAW; MIETEK; MIECZPLAWSKI: MYKOFF

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—It is impossible to become a successful tango dancer with an unpronounceable name, according to a petition submitted to Supreme Court Justice Lehman by Mieczyslaw Mieczklawski, who lives at 165 West Forty-ninth street and has danced at the leading hotels and restaurants.

The petitioner got permission to call himself Mietek Mykoff. He said he wanted to gain fame as a dancer, but had been hindered because of his unpronounceable name. His dancing engagements would be furthered by the new name, he said.

Aaron Levy of 527 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, who has been an actor for twenty years under the name of Seimar Romaine, got permission from Justice Lehman to adopt it as his legal name.

He is about to be married and he wants his wife to have the name.

HALF A BULL, $25,000 IS PRICE REALLY PAID

MIDDLETON, N. Y., May 30.—Twenty-five thousand dollars has just been paid by the Lawson holding company of New York to John Arfman of Middletown for a half interest in King Segis Pontiac Acartra, a 12-year-old Holstein Friesland bull. Mr Arfman bought the bull for $10,000 in June, 1911, on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, to which it had been consigned by Stevens Brothers of Liverpool. At the time it was said to be the highest price ever paid for a bull in this state.

MISSIONARY IS SLAIN BY LION HE WOUNDS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 30.—Details of the death of Ralph W. Tidrick, the Presbyterian missionary who was killed in a lion hunt in the Soudan, have been received here.

Mr. Tidrick, who was in charge of the Dolcib Hill mission, had been appealed to by the natives to assist them in exterminating lions infesting the neighborhood. After killing two lions, Mr. Tidrick came upon the third, which he had wounded. His rifle missed fire on the next shot, the lion rushed at him, threw the missionary to the ground, and fatally chewed and clawed him. He died nine days after the attack.

CRUELTY, RULES JUDGE, TO SPURN WIFE'S KISS

DENVER, Colo., May 30.—Refusal of a husband to permit his wife to kiss him on the mouth when he returns home in the evening constitutes cruelty. Mrs. Mary Edwina Moreland, who was granted a divorce by Judge Denison in the District Court charged that her husband had refused her the privilege of kissing him.

DECLARE ARREST TO BE OUTRAGE

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Winters Are Being Held in Case of Missing Girl.

NEWCASTLE, Ind., May 30.—Dr. and Mrs. William A. Winters, arrested today in connection with the disappearance of Dr. Winters' 10-year-old daughter Catherine, for whom a nation-wide search has been made, tonight declared their intention to be an outrage and threatened suits against officials who were instrumental in causing their arrest.

"Our arrest," said the dentist tonight, "is based on evidence that no sane person would consider for a moment. There are certain persons in Newcastle who have sought to make trouble for Mrs. Winters and myself because we would not let them handle the money raised, to search for little Catherine."

The cellar in the Winters home was dug up late today, but nothing in addition to the child's red sweater, the red shirt and the red hair-ribbon that first aroused suspicion, was found. A curious crowd surrounded the dentist's home and watched the searching party while Dr. Winters and his wife were arranging to furnish the $5000 bond demanded of them following their arrest on the charge of "conspiring to commit a felony."

Little Catherine Winters wore a red sweater when last seen March 30, 1913, the day she disappeared. Robert H. Abel, the private detective, whose efforts were largely responsible for the arrest of the dentist and his wife, declared that the sweater and shirt and hair-ribbon he produced were found buried in cement blocks in the Winters home, a search having been made while Dr. Winters and his wife were in Terre Haute.

LYNCHING BEE DE LUXE COSTS RAILROAD MUCH

JACKSON, Miss., May 30.—A railroad that permits one of its trains to be chartered to carry a mob to the scene of a subsequent lynching is liable to damage, according to a compromise decree handed down in the Federal Court in Jackson. The court allowed Mrs. Alice Rogers a judgment of $7000 in her suit for $50,000 against the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific railroad.

It was brought out in the testimony ... at Monroe, La., chartered a train, went to Tallulah, La., and lynched Rogers, the plaintiff's husband, after he had been acquitted of the charge of murder.

MOUNTAIN LION KILLING ELK.

FORT COLLINS, Col., May 30.—Mountain lions are reported to be slaughtering the elk shipped into Estes park by the Government a short time ago.

Lucky Talisman for Huerta Is Sent by Washington Woman

WASHINGTON, May 30.—An amulet for Provisional President Huerta of Mexico, the gift of a Washington woman, was on its way today to the federal dictator from the Spanish embassy here.

The charm, a moonstone enclosed in an embroidered satchel, was sent to the embassy with a letter requesting that it be forwarded to General Huerta with the word that so long as he wore it next to a person success would attend all his efforts. The embassy carried out the giver's wishes.

HEN AND CAT UNITE IN REARING THEIR BROODS

SAN JOSE, May 30.—Without the formality of going to court, Will M. Beggs, San Jose attorney, has dissolved a partnership which has had even the nature fakers guessing of late.

A house cat and a pet hen at the Beggs home started housekeeping on the partnership plan. When the cat wished to go out and make a call on the back fence the hen would spread her wings over the litter of kittens.

When Mrs. Hen had a date it was the accepted thing to see the cat mothering a brood of very young chickens.

The rough feet of the hen, however threatened to do serious damage to the tender fur of the young kittens and Beggs decided to separate them. He established the two households in separated inclosures.

AWAITS FATHER GONE 48 YEARS

Woman Hopes for Return of Parent Who Left in 1866.

NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—Mrs. S. Dufreshe, No. 320 South Diamond street, anxiously awaits word from her father, who left home in 1866. He went to England to claim a share in an ancestral estate. His name is Jas. Smith and he said he would come back, but he didn't.

"Somebody told me that a man named James Smith died in New York some time ago," Mrs. Dufreshe said. "They told me he was worth $70,000,000. I am sure that he was my father."

Mrs. Dufreshe in her efforts to discover the identity of the alleged Mr. Smith of New York discovered that he was married and lived in New York. Mrs. Dufreshe said she would have given up hopes for the recovery of her father long since, but for the kind help she received from a lawyer. It was the lawyer, she said, who bolstered her hopes.

The last message from her father was a letter from England. Mrs. Dufreshe's eyes became moist as she took the letter from a litter of manuscripts in an old armoire. It was written in 1887. Mr. Smith complained of the hardness of the times and wished the estate was all settled. The letter was addressed to his wife, who died in 1884.

Mrs. Dufreshe has flooded New York state with letters and declares she will continue searching until she has found her father or the remains of the estate.

HE SHEDS HIS BOOTS ON THE LAKE BOTTOM

ALPENA, Mich., May 30.—Gustave Trojhan, aged 23 years, was drowned in Thunder bay Sunday, and Truman Goddard, aged 35 years, his companion, escaped after a desperate effort.

The men left for a fishing trip to Lake Huron, just outside the bay. Their boat was leaky and water entered as they rowed out but they wore high-topped boots and paid little attention to this. There were eight inches of water in the bottom of the boat when one of the men leaned to one side and the craft capsized.

The men clung to the boat for some time, but no help came, and finally Trojhan's fingers let go and he sank.

Goddard started to swim to shore. His heavy boots, now filled with water, made this almost impossible, and holding his breath, he allowed ... he pulled off his boots. Though nearly exhausted he, by superhuman effort reached a point where he could walk on the bottom. He collapsed when he reached Grass Island, 100 yards from where the accident occurred.

Goddard was sighted from the mainland and he was brought from the island soon after, but he is prostrated.

FAMILY FLEES AS YARD GULPS HOME

House Sinks While Evening Meal Smokes on the Table.

WILLIAM PENN, Pa., May 30.—When supper threatened to end in one giant gulp of the ground under their home, the family of Mrs. Mary Kerns, decided flight was preferable to satisfying hunger, and made a hasty exit, thinking the Sicilian earthquake had crossed the Atlantic.

Old workings of the William Penn colliery had caved in the front portion of their home and front yard to a depth of 75 feet and 50 feet across, pulling the house from its foundations and leaving it on the brink of the yawning breach. Pictures were shaken from the walls and dishes broken on the table.

Just a few minutes before the cavein four children were playing on the spot that sunk into the mires.

CO-EDS TO CO-OPERATE TO REDUCE HIGH COST

CHICAGO, May 30.—How to reduce the "high cost of living" at the University of Chicago has been suggested by a vote of the co-eds at the institution.

Several days ago Marion Talbot, dean of women, asked the girl students for suggestions as to what they most desired in the Ida Noyes Memorial Hall, which is under construction. So far a co-operative dormitory has received the greater number of votes.

It was said by sewing, cooking, making beds, etc., the co-eds could reduce college expenses.

Other suggestions were for a soda fountain, shoe-shining parlor, theater, manicure parlor, swimming pool and an Italian garden.

SEVERED LOVERS WED HALF CENTURY AFTER

KNOBEL, Ark., May 30.—A romance that was broken off more than half a century ago was re-opened here when Levy Cook, 79 years old, was married to Mrs. Diana Reeves, 69, a widow, on the fifty-first anniversary of their first marriage.

For fifty years each had supposed the other was dead and each had remarried. After they were first married in 1863, Cook, when 22 years old, left his wife here and went to the goldfields of California to seek a fortune. He remained longer than he had expected, and when he finally returned to Arkansas, with a comfortable fortune, he was told that his wife had died. He returned to the far west and married again.

Mrs. Cook after years of waiting for her husband, made inquiries about him and was told that he lost his life in the pursuit of gold in the west. She remarried and neither heard ... Cook's wife died and he returned to Arkansas.

NOBODY BUYS DOLLAR AFTER PRICE IS CUT

BOSTON, Mass., May 30.—A one-dollar bill marked down to 90 cents remained in a store window here for twenty-two hours before it was purchased. Numerous people saw the face in the window, but had made no move to accept the bargain offer.

OCCULT POWER KEEPS WOMAN IN THRALL

Los Angeles Prisoner, Accused of Forgery, Denies Psychic Struggle.

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—A strange story of hypnotism and love, of a psychic struggle between two men for control of a woman's mind and heart, was laid bare in the city jail in a confession [illegible] alias J. W. Ward.

Rice is held on a charge of forgery. But behind this charge is an intricate drama of occultism, love, hatred and rivalry.

Back of it is the elopement, two years ago, of Race and Mrs. McPherson from McPherson's ranch near Portland, where Rice boarded and where he began to exercise the strange spell of magnetism which led the woman to flee with him from her husband and home. [illegible] had at first hated Rice. Then, under the hypnotic spell of his magnetism, she succumbed whose to [illegible] control.

TRIED SUGGESTION.

After the couple left the husband endeavored to break this spell, and day by day, for two years, he sent his psychic message, "You will come back to me. You will leave Rice."

Through his keenly developed psychic powers McPherson traced his wife. The occult power, he says, enabled him to trace her, without a clew of any kind, for 500 miles. Through one city after another the unaccountable force within led him on and on until he reached Los Angeles.

There the psychic power stayed his travels, and he knew, he says, that his wife was in this city. Rice's arrest followed early today.

Two months ago the woman abruptly broke the spell which bound her to Rice with whom she had fled, and she left him.

PSYCHIC FORCE.

"He has no magnetism—no power of hypnotic force at all" Rice declared. "He never could hold his wife.

"When I compelled her to feel the power of my magnetism there was no [illegible] like this. I didn't have to get her [illegible] to leave her husband and later come to me. She came to me at once.

"I didn't consciously hypnotize [illegible] whom I first went to her ranch I held myself aloof. I was austere. If I hypnotized her, it was through the psychic force of my personality, not hypnotism.

"After two or three weeks, when I got [illegible] beside that of a farmhand. I felt better. I dropped my austerity and became more like other men.

"It seemed to be too late. The aloofness, that austerity, seemed to have held her mind and she turned to me for everything. Later she told me she hated me at first, but that she could not shake from her the influence of my magnetism.

"If McPherson had occult powers he didn't use them at that time. And it's nonsense for him to say that his mind found her's through miles and miles of space and through the walls of hatred which she raised between them while she was with me.

"She left me, not at all because of his influence, but because I stopped mine.

NEVER AGAIN.

"I hope to heaven no woman ever casts a favorable eye on me again.

"We hadn't been away a year before I was overcome with a great mental sickness—the sense of guilt, I suppose. My mind let go of her's—my magnetism was not centered on holding her—every thought was a longing [illegible] be a free man again—to break bonds formed in guilt. She left me because I removed the power of my magnetism. Her husband had nothing to do with it."

Asked if he is a married man, Rice hesitated several seconds and finally refused to answer. All he would tell of his former life is that he had been a railroad conductor in Pennsylvania.

"Mrs. McPherson wanted to get a divorce and wrote to a friend in Portland to find out how to go about it. It was this friend, you may be sure, that told McPherson to come to Los Angeles, and no psychic 'trance.' He's too big a 'boob' for the latter."

HUSBAND PERSISTS.

McPherson tenaciously clings to the belief that it was his occult war on Rice's influence which broke the chains of his wife's bondage. He persists in believing that the same power will compel his wife to come to him within a short time now.

Rice fears that McPherson will bring a charge against him of poisoning the elder of the McPherson boys who died about a year after the elopement. There is no truth in the suspicion, he declares, and he says it has sprung from a desire for revenge on the part of the husband.

Attorney William H. Durham is representing Rice.

INJURED WOMAN HAS RETURNED TO MOTHER

YREKA, Ore., May 30.—Miss Elsie de Wolfe, who went from a country school in Klamath county, where she was teaching, to Dorris, in Siskiyou county a month ago and was shot by Dr. Grant Safely of that place, has gone to her mother's home in Colorado, near Boulder.

Dr. Safely arranged for Miss de Wolfe's transportation, and she agreed in writing that she would not return. This is according to a statement made by the doctor.

Dr. Safely states that he has been followed and threatened by the woman for a long time. A few months ago she tried to shoot him after she had followed him to Placerville, Cal., he states, and there was an exciting scene when she was prevented from doing so.

The woman appeared to be in a normal state of mind when leaving and seemed satisfied with the outcome of the affair. She said the shooting by Dr. Safely was purely accidental, and that he could not help it.

FARMER SUES SON FOR STEALING WIFE'S LOVE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 30.—Eugene Freer has filed suit in the circuit court here charging his son Nelson with alienating the affections of his wife, the [illegible].

Eugene Freer is 67 years of age. He is a retired farmer. Some time ago he allowed the son persuaded his mother to remain to live longer with him unless the latter would sell the farm and go to Detroit to live with him. Finally the father decided to do this, but, according to Eugene Freer, he did not turn the money over to his son, as expected, but instead [illegible] property.

After that, Freer alleges, things grew unpleasant that he and his wife left their son's house and moved back to Ann Arbor. Later the wife deserted her husband [illegible] with her son.

RECORDER IS CANDIDATE BACON WILL RUN AGAIN

Pioneer Officer to Enter Arena

Gilman W. Bacon, present incumbent, announces his candidacy for re-election to the office of county recorder.

During Mr. Bacon's present term many innovations have been introduced in the office system which make for the efficiency and economic administration of official duties, notably the substitution of typewritten records in lieu of longhand writing, thereby saving to the county in this item alone some $15,000. Also the introduction of the loose leaf system which reduces the number of blank books fully one-half. With the installation of the new systems by Mr. Bacon the net saving to the county is approximately $40,000.

BOWLERS PREPARE FOR BIG CONTEST

Fine Weather and Holiday Induce Large Gathering at Lakeside Rinks.

The fine weather and a public holiday had the effect of drawing out a large number of the active members of the Oakland Scottish Bowling Club to Lakeside Park green yesterday afternoon and a good gathering of interested spectators on the green benches.

In preparation for the championship club match to be played off with the San Francisco Scottish Bowling Club which takes place on the Lakeside Park green next Saturday afternoon, on two of the rinks four-handed teams played tournament matches each team being composed of four players working two bowls each and organized and skipped as nearly as possible to the manner in which they will play in the championship club contest.

Howden Team . . 2102060002050260140111—29
McMath Team . . 0010202121011001002000—13

HARD-FOUGHT GAME.

The latter team won a hard-fought match by five points and three ends wholly through Proctor's skill in driving, in which feature of bowling he stands unequalled among the active members of the Oakland Scottish Bowling Club. Any other player skipping his team would have been hopeless, as the fate of the majority of the ends played depended on his ability as skip to run out the lying bowls of his opponents. Proctor was in perfect form and never missed the mark in any of his drives so as to reverse conditions. The score was as follows:

Taylor Team . . 0001131020020110002004—14
Proctor Team . . 3110000201101003210121—19

Proctor's fine work commanded the unstinted admiration of his opponents.

James P. Taylor and John Rankin being scheduled to play a fourth round in the Frank Brown singles cup tournament, took the latter rink at the close of the four-handed team contest to settle which should qualify for the semi-finals. Both men were pretty tired before starting as the result of being participants in the four-handed match and, therefore, neither distinguished himself in the singles match. Very few heads in any one of the twenty-one ends were creditable to either of the players. Up to the eighth end, however, it was a game of see-saw. On that end, however, Taylor scored three points which gave him a substantial lead to which he continued to add through the rest of the match winning by a score of twenty-three points against Rankin's ten points. Following was the score:

Taylor . . . . . 0210020310211002204 20—23
Rankin . . . . . 1001102001000200010 01—10

The fifteenth end resulted in a tie, neither contestant counting.

Two more singles match remain to be played off in this tournament during the coming week, when the semi-finals and the final will probably be played also, and the ownership of the Frank Brown cup determined before Saturday, which will clear the board on the club championship match.

BEWARE OF MANICURE IS DOCTOR'S WARNING

NEW YORK, May 30.—Manicure shops and the operators are responsible in a great degree for the spread of felons and various other forms of infection of the hand, according to statements made today by Dr. Edward Wallace Lee, before the convention of the medical society of the state of New York. "I know of over 100 cases that I can trace directly to the careless use of manicure instruments," said Dr. Lee. "There are a great many manicurists who have no idea of the importance of sanitation and sterilization and who are so unskilled and careless in the use of their instruments that it is a wonder the cases of infection are not more numerous.

ATTENDS CHURCH; KILLS SWEETHEART

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 30.—Marion Branstetter, aged 22, who is charged with killing his 16-year-old sweetheart, Miss Gertrude Griffith, near Marionville, southwest of her when he found the girl in the company of another man, was arrested near Aurora after two posses spent the entire night in scouring the country for the alleged murderer. Branstetter is also charged with firing two shots into the body of his victim's mother, Mrs. Phoebe Griffith. The girl died forty-five minutes after the shooting. Mrs. Griffith's condition is grave.

The shooting occurred as the party was returning from church. Branstetter who was taken to Mount Vernon, the county seat, according to information received here was about to board a train at Aurora when apprehended.

LIGHTNING BREAKS CHECKERBOARD.

[illegible] ing a severe electrical storm John Duddy, 12-year-old son of Policeman T. C. E. Duddy, was playing checkers with his cousin, Mrs. Carl Hildebrand, aged 19, in the kitchen of their home. They were playing on a stone checkerboard. Suddenly a flash of lightning entered the room and cracked the board in a V-shaped break, without injuring either of the players, although Mrs. Hildebrand, who wore short sleeves, felt the heat on her arms.

DIVES UNDER BOAT; COMES UP SMOKING

Thus He Saves His Corn Cob, Even by Risking Life.

BILOXI, Miss., May 30—Ivan Ivanson, a cook, has achieved the never-before recorded feat of smoking a pipe under water. The submarine trick was not rehearsed and its author makes no promise that it will ever be repeated.

Ivanson juggles flapjacks on the powerboat John T. White. The boat lay alongside a fishing schooner and Ivanson, who was smoking his corncob pipe, prepared to jump from his boat to the other. Rain was falling and a mist caused the cook to misjudge his distance and plunged overboard. Walter Hodgkins ran to the rail in time to see Ivarson's head disappear under the water as the sides of the two boats ground together.

"He must be crushed to death," cried Hodgins. Some of the regret in his voice was due to the fact that good cooks are hard to find.

He pushed the boats apart. The only sign of Ivanson was a derby hat that floated in the water. The White tarted up and Hodgins ran back to see if he could discover the body. He did. There was the unruffled Ivanson holding on to the stern of the boat and being towed through the water. His pipe was still between his teeth and he was still puffing its smoke.

Why didn't you call for help?" they asked, as Ivan was dragged aboard.

"I aint no fool," said Ivan. "If I had opened my mouth I'd have lost my pipe." Neither Ivan nor any of the men who witnessed the accident can explain how the pipe kept burning while the cook was under the boat.

SLIT SKIRT STOPS PRISON BALL GAME

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 30.—A woman in a slit skirt who walked in front of the bleacher stand at the Federal prison is responsible for an order issued today barring all feminine fans from ball games in the prison in the future.

The trouble arose at the opening of the season, where the woman wearing a skirt slit to the knee walked toward the grandstand in the midst of an inning just after the pitcher had delivered a ball to the catcher.

"It's a peach!" bawled A. C. Felt, wrecker of the Superior (Neb.) bank and former president of the Nebraska State league who has been appointed official umpire of the Federal league at the prison. Neither the pitcher nor batsman understood Felt's decision, and both protested until their eyes, too, fell on the slit skirt. "You're right," they said in unison. "Its a peach."

By this time the 700 prisoners on the bleachers had lost interest in the game and were watching the progress of the woman and the skirt across the field. The deputy warden was forced to run out on the diamond and shout at the top of his voice for the game to continue. The pitcher, rattled at the deputy's anger, wheeled and threw a straight ball at Dannie Claire, former Sioux City player in the prison for white slavery, who stood "glued" to the second sack. Dannie was put out of the game temporarily. Officials refuse to divulge the identity of the woman.

GOLD WATCHES ARE POOR FOOD FOR HOGS

RICHREALL, Ore., May 30.—That a gold watch makes poor food for hogs was demonstrated when Frank Kerslake, a Polk county stock breeder, found one of his valuable registered hogs dead in a pen after having swallowed its owner's fine gold watch.

Mr. Kerslake had dropped his watch the evening before while feeding the hogs, but did not discover his loss until he made an autopsy on the hog to learn the cause of death [illegible].

GETS CONVICTS WAGES.

COLUMBUS, May 30.—"Pay to the order of Mrs. Isaac Huffman, Oxford, O., the sum of $19 26, being 90 per cent of the earnings of Isaac R. Huffman from January 4 to April 15, 1914." This was the indorsement mailed to the wife of the well-known wealthy politician. It was earned at the rate of two cents an hour by doing clerical work at the prison farm, where Huffman has been for the past year.

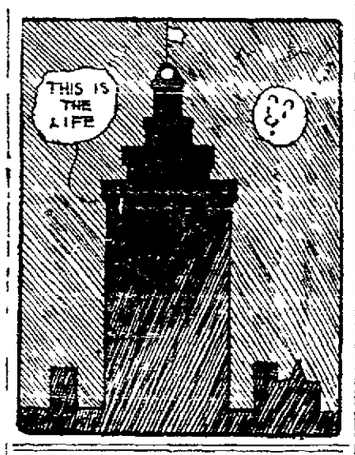
HE IS ORPHEUS OF AERIAL JAIL NEW POET LOOMS ON HORIZON



"They say that Hoose-Gow walls are damp,
And Hoose-Gow cells are dark and freezing;
That's what the poets all insist;
It shows a poet's hard of pleasing,
For here I sit and view the park,
High up, in sunshine, all the day,
Do iron bars a prison make?
Well, not in Oakland, anyway.

"Last night I got loose from the old calaboose,
And I wandered about the old town
With nothing to eat, and with corns on my feet
That hurt as I walked up and down;
You can talk about freedom, and labor, and such,
But why labor, e'en to be free?
So I'm back in my nest where the hobo finds rest;
For it's life in the Hoose-Gow for me.'—Stanzas of Bill Croft, the "Hoose-Gow poet."

Oakland boasts an aerial jail, where a prisoner's finger may fly to untold heights, assisted by the prison elevator. The result has already appeared in the form of about fifteen stanzas from the pen of "Bill" Croft, hobo by profession, and poet, he says for want of something better to do. "Bill," who is known among his fellows under the city hall clock as the "Bard of the Hoose-Gow," declares that jail isn't bad by a good deal—if a kind jailer, McKeegan by name, can furnish a pad of paper, a pencil and allow one to court the muse. Every time the muse perched on Bill's shoulder, as the raven did on the shoulder of Odin, the Norse God, in the old days, to whisper the wisdom of the world, "Bill" Croft writes, and the rest of the prisoners await anxiously the result of the facile pen.

"They talk about their Rudolphs, who wrote poetry in garrets, and of the other old classical guys that wrote from high mountains," said Croft. "That's all very well—but I'd rather write from a nice warm room up here. You have to get high to write—but what's the use of climbing mountains while there's a city hall elevator? I may be booked on the police blotter downstairs as a drunk or a vag, but up here I'm a poet and respected as such."

Croft has written a number of stanzas on Oakland's new city jail.

"Me for Oakland," he declares, "until they build high jails in other cities. Then I may try some other place and see what a change of air will do for my poems."

JUDGE WILL ADDRESS NORMAL GRADUATES

FRESNO, May 30.—Judge [illegible] E. Church of the Superior Court will deliver the Commencement address at the Fresno State Normal graduation exercises, which will be held Friday evening, June 12, in the open-air court of the school. M. B. Harris president of the Normal board, will present the diplomas.

The commencement program for the June class of 1914, will open with the invocation by Rev. Thomas T. Griffen, pastor of the First Congregational church. A selection of the Normal school glee club, "Laughter Land," will follow. The address of Judge Church will be next on the program, after which Mr. Harris will present the students with their sheepskins. The glee club will close the exercises with the selection "Down in the Dewy Dell."

President Charles L. McLane of the Normal will preside at the ceremonies. Week at the State Normal includes the U. L. Fraternity initiation on Monday night June 8, at the Normal school building, the Senior Class tree planting on the Normal campus Tuesday morning, the Senior Class Day supper and program at Zapp's Park in the evening of Tuesday, the presentation of Platinus' "Captives" by the Normal School Dramatic Club Wednesday evening in the school court, the final assembly of students in Normal hall at 1:30 Thursday, the Junior reception to the Senior Class Thursday evening, the Training School graduation exercises at 11 a. m. Friday morning and the Normal graduation for the class of June 1914, Friday evening.

M. B. Harris, president of the Normal board, will make the graduation address at the exercises of the Normal Training school Friday morning, June 12th. City School Superintendent Starr will present the diplomas.

The program will consist of a song of greeting by the seventh and eighth grades, the invocation by Rev. Robert W. Rhames, canon of St. James' Pro-Cathedral, a violin solo by Harold Wahlberg, a piano solo by Miss Helen Preston, the address by Mr. Harris, a song, "May Day Sport," by the seventh and eighth grades, the presentations of diplomas by C. C. Starr, and the class song.

FARM HANDS DISPLACED BY HARNESSED SPRING

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., May 30.—Water power is made to serve many purposes on the C. J. Haas farm, near Lyonsdale.

Several years ago Mr. Haas purchased the old "Buttermilk" Dixon place and [illegible] to utilize a large spring to do the work around the farm.

This spring comes rushing out of a big hill the stream or water being about the size of a small barrel. From the spring the water is carried down a flume to a power house, where it turns a large power wheel which furnishes the motive power for a corn sheller, feed grinder, washing machine, etc.

The water from the spring forms a large creek, and it is said that the city of Herington is planning to pipe its water supply from there.

PLANS FOR WELFARE HOME TO BE SUBJECT

Plans for the organization of a committee to establish a welfare home will be laid June 3 when a large gathering of local society folk, charity workers and others will meet at the Hotel Oakland. The plan has already been discussed at some length by interested committees. Dr. Kathro Keith has been chosen as superintendent of the home in the tentative plans, and he will speak at the meeting, where the details are to be outlined. A large number of prominent people have been invited to the session.

PATHETIC INCIDENT AT CENTRAL POLICE STATION

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—A pathetic incident of Decoration Day came late this afternoon at the Central Police station, when a stranger who had not seen Patrolman William H. Heins for ten years, stood reverently before the picture of that officer, who died June 4, 1908, and removing his hat paid a tribute to the man's prowess and left headquarters to place a wreath of flowers on his grave. For Heins was a hero and one of the group of celebrities of the San Francisco department. He was slain by the Young brothers, two desperadoes, who had been quarreling on the Barbary Coast. He attempted to arrest them for disturbing the peace and was shot in his tracks. One of them is serving a life term and the other a 20-year term at San Quentin. Since Heins' death the police have traveled in pairs on the coast.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Sergeant John Green was on duty in the station when a man walked in and asked for Heins. The sergeant led him into the assembly room before a memorial picture of the officer, which reads: "William H. Heins hero, killed in the discharge of his duty June 4, 1908."

PAINFULLY BURNED AS RESULT OF EXPLOSION

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Edward Crane, an employe of the San Francisco Gas and Electric Company, living at 1458 Waller street, was painfully burned in an explosion of gas at 617 Van Ness avenue at 7 o'clock tonight. An alarm of fire was turned in for the blaze caused by an electric spark, communicating itself to the meter which Crane was testing. The damage was slight. Crane was treated at the Central Emergency Hospital for burns of the hands and face.

ACCUSED FORGER IS CAPTURED IN MERCED

MERCED, May 30.—E. Manson, alias Albert Adams, aged 23, wanted in Stockton, Salinas, Palo Alto, San Bernardino, and other California cities on charges of grand larceny and passing worthless checks, was taken into custody here yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriff J. C. Ivers while attempting to pass a worthless check on a Fresno bank to James Oliver, proprietor of a local clothing store. Manson admitted his name and the charges against him, explaining that he had been drinking, was disgusted and did not care what become of him. He is thought to be a member of a prominent San Bernardino family.

Manson's arrest here followed telegraphic instructions from Sheriff Wm. Reicks of Stockton, that Manson had stolen a seven-passenger Studebaker automobile there. This automobile was in Manson's possession when he was arrested here. He will be taken back to Stockton to face a charge of grand larceny.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Plunging 16 feet from a scaffold at the Union Iron Works this afternoon, A. Banquin, a painter 45 years of age, received injuries which caused his death tonight. Banquin, who with his wife resided at the Lawrence apartments, 2044 Mission street, was at work on the steamer Niagara when the staging gave way an he fell, fracturing his skull. He was removed to the Union Iron Works Emergency Hospital.

DESERTER MAY GET HARSH FATE

City Bureau Planned in New York to Deal With the Offenders.

NEW YORK, May 30. New York is getting ready to get the family deserter. If he does not watch out the man who skips away and leaves his children will find himself in a peck of trouble. For Father Knickerbocker is getting tired of playing foster father to the seven thousand children who are every year men responsible for their existence. That coward about life, the deserting husband and father, is a far more frequent phenomenon in the beginning of the twentieth century than many of us realize. However, his untroubled days are numbered.

To attend to this case in New York a city bureau is about to be formed as a branch of the Domestic Relations Court. The organized charities of the city also will co-operate and there is to [illegible] committee of which Magistrate Edward E. Lewis and Commissioner John A. Kingsbury are members.

The advance work on the campaign is being done by Monroe E. Goldstein. For several years he has been in charge of a National Desertion Bureau, conducted by the United Hebrew Charities and during that time the bureau has succeeded in locating seventy per cent of the hundreds of husbands for whom inquiry was made. According to the supervising committee it is Mr. Goldstein's work which has been largely responsible for achieved.

"Just how does the city intend to tackle the family deserter?" was asked of the short, slight, brilliant-eyed young man who was found nearly hidden behind his document-littered desk in Second Avenue.

"It can be put in a single phrase," readily responded Goldstein, "the holding of the responsible man up to his responsibility."

CITY PLAYS GAME.

"Up to the present time the city of New York has been playing the game of the deserting husband. According to our investigators nearly one million dollars was spent last year in private and public charity on the children of men who ran away. And this does not include the amount spent by relatives in families, that even with the bread-winner gone, were not compelled to seek philanthropic help. Twenty-five per cent of the children in the city orphan asylums are not orphans at all. Their fathers are living—but absent."

Goldstein fumbled with the records on his desk and his voice betrayed the solemnity with which he views his work.

"All this time," he said, "the family deserter had been accepted as a necessary evil. Only within a few years has there been a law in New York making it a crime to desert one's own children. The city has gone on picking up the pieces and unconsciously encouraging men of weak fibre to feel that if they ignored their duty 'the city would be a little father to the kids.'

"This is not good for the real fathers and is certainly not good for Father Knickerbocker's pocketbook. So we are going to try a new way, the way which has worked so successfully for the United Hebrew Charities.

"The sum of $4,300 has been appropriated by the city as a basis for the experiment of advertising for lost husbands and fathers. Every Saturday or Sunday a list of the husbands who have apparently gone without leaving a trace will be published in some big New York newspaper, one which great masses of the people read. Whenever possible, pictures of the missing men will be employed. It will be strange if any one of them is not recognized by somebody.

DESERTER AND FAMILY.

"Whenever possible there should be an attempt to reconcile the deserter to his family. If he be absolutely unwilling to live with them, he should be made to feel the force of his moral obligations to supporting them. The children are better off when he is working and earning money for them than when he is shut up in prison, undergoing punishment for his sins.

"The city gallery of missing husbands and fathers will have a negative as well as a positive result. Not only will it help to bring back husbands who have flown, but it will deter others from flying. When a man knows his face will be shown all over the country as that of a criminal who has left his wife and children to starve, he will hesitate before laying himself open to such wide-spread odium. And if he is shrewd, he will see that publicity is a powerful weapon for detention."

WILL GIVE DANCE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The dansant given by the Smilers' Club in Scottish Rite Auditorium on Saturday, June 6th, will be the closing of this popular club's most brilliant and successful dancing season.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

[illegible] your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. [illegible] acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

OAKLAND CLUB WILL CELEBRATE AT IDORA

Annual Luncheon Will Be Significant Event

(By BETTY MARTIN.)

Fifteen years have elapsed since the Oakland Club was founded and during the period following this organization has gone steadily forward, always manifesting deep concern in all matters pertaining to the public welfare, at the same time encouraging social functions and interchange of those courtesies which make life worth the living.

On Wednesday of this week the officers of the club, including all members of the incoming and outgoing boards, are to gather at the annual luncheon given at Idora Park, for in June the recently elected directorate assume duties of office.

To this function attaches more than the usual significance because of the good-fellowship engendered during the time Mrs. Chamberlain, the thrice elected president, served her constituents. Mrs. Chamberlain was a member of the Oakland Club before its incorporation on January 11, 1892, and has been on the board of directors for nearly twelve years and a half, the time of her [illegible]

"Service" is the Oakland Club motto, and at the installation luncheon held last Wednesday week in the Starr King rooms the club song, dedicated to Mrs. Chamberlain, was rendered by members for the first time, to the tune of that very popular melody, "In the Good Old Summer Time." In the chorus of this song is incorporated what might be termed the club's policy:

"Our motto service fine,
Our motto service fine.
Our hearts are true, old friends or new,
Our motto service fine.
[illegible]
The royal oak our sign.
Our hearts and hands are for our friends,
Our motto service fine."

STORY OF PROGRESS.

Glancing backward is permissible on occasions when the present shows such splendid advancement and the evolution of this, one of the largest of the women's clubs on the eastern bay side from a small beginning to its present prosperous condition is a story of progress which may point the way to other and smaller clubs now in the beginning of useful careers.

The Oakland Club does not, like many similar organizations, possess its own clubhouse, but has met at different places more or less appropriate to the work, the present quarters in the Starr King rooms of the First Unitarian church having been found very convenient because of the adjacent Sunday school assembly room, the parlors and the kitchen, for the Unitarians were pioneers in the social service movement and builded better, almost, than they knew, so that their rooms are peculiarly fitted to present day needs.

VARIETY IN ENTERTAINMENT.

In the early days of the Oakland Club an infinite variety of entertainment was given, and the bulk of the work, even to cooking, done by members themselves, for good housewives are quite as prevalent in the club circle as good entertainers.

As a matter of fact, luncheons were particularly dear to the hearts of the founders of this club, as might be gleaned from perusal of the entertainments, which included Irish dinners with somebody's pet concoction of scraps of meats and every variety of vegetables; a German dinner in which noodles predominated, a delicately seasoned French repast; a homey New England dinner or a Chinese affair of chop suey, together with an occasional Spanish supper, peppered to suit the taste; not to mention curtain occasions when Mrs. W. E. Colby, now president of the Alameda district of [illegible] with women, but known to older friends as "Ray" Vrooman, concocted East Indian dishes smelling strongly of curry and chutney.

A caterer was then an unknown quantity in the Oakland Club and members delight in recalling old memories, even though now all ceremonious or even quite simple social affairs call into requisition trained waitresses with a professional caterer at their head.

However, this is a day of specialization and delightful though they are in perspective the "good old days" are not comparable with the times that are.

Lectures, card parties and an occasional dance vied with dinners and luncheons in popularity, all surplus being devoted to furthering the club work, for the Oakland Club has contributed to every good enterprise concerning the welfare of women and children.

Its very latest department is most appropriately called the "Bureau of Personal Service," which was started before the commission on emigration was established. The work of this bureau is far reaching in effect, and reaches a class of foreigners commonly left to shift for themselves upon landing on our shores. The bureau aims to keep in touch with [illegible] of some little means possibly, who comes unadvised and unacquainted into our midst, not speaking our tongue and at the mercy of every charmer whose aim is to fleece the innocent and unsuspecting.

These emigrants are visited in their homes, just as people moving into a new neighborhood are called upon by the long established residents. In the course of a tactful conversation they are given enlightenment as to surroundings, told where to send their children to school, informed as to location of churches and made welcome, if they desire to attend open meetings of the club.

The linen lending bureau is a civic branch carried on in conjunction with the two city nurses employed by the city of Oakland. Through this "lending closet" all linen supplies needed by the city's needy families during illness is supplied, to be returned, laundered and again and again loaned by the club.

The Oakland Club also pioneered the vacation school movement, and the installing of cookery and domestic science in our public schools until the city bought the equipment.

PAY PROBATION OFFICER.

The services of a probation officer was paid for by the club over a period of three years, and it was through their efforts that the first police matron was installed, her services for the first three months being paid by the club and the necessity for a matron dawned upon the city officials and the burden of support then became a civic matter.

Over $5500 has been expended by the club in philanthropies, but the amount of money is small compared with the contributions in personal service, for this club has been foremost in the advancement of that which will tend to aid and benefit humanity.

Mrs. Charles S. Chamberlain, who wielded the gavel on California Day last week for the last time as president, has been chairman of nearly every committee ever appointed to raise funds for any purpose whatever, and was the club's treasurer for about eight years. To her energies therefore, much of the success is due, for she has been identified through the years with every movement in Alameda county involving welfare work.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Interested though they are in the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Chicago during the coming month of June, comparatively few know the names of any of the officers, that of the president, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Texas alone excepted. For the benefit of those whose attention is now directed toward the convention, the following list of the directorate is given:

[illegible]
First vice-president, Mrs. L. L. Blankenburg.
Second vice-president, Mrs. Sam B. Sneath.
Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eugene Reilley.
Recording secretary, Mrs. Harry L. Keefe Walthill.
Auditor, Mrs. Charles McMahon.
Treasurer, Mrs. William B. Williams.
Bureau of Information, Mrs. Mary I. Wood.

CHICAGO DELEGATES.

A host of delegates to the June Biennial meeting are going to have headquarters at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, quarters there in common with those from Illinois, Oregon, Wyoming, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, New Hampshire and Virginia.

Delegates from the bay region and their friends are to leave San Francisco Friday, June 5 at 10:20 a. m. over the Southern Pacific to Ogden, the Denver and Rio Grande to Denver, the Union Pacific to Omaha and the Chicago Northwestern to Chicago. Oakland ladies boarding the train at the Sixteenth street station.

When the train reaches the Sacramento Southern Pacific depot at 1:45 [illegible] on the program include a reading by [illegible] m. on June 6. Sacramento delegates will join the California Special and when the party reaches Roseville at 3:17 p. m. another delegation from the northern part of the State will be added.

The Southern California delegates and their friends are to board the California Special at Salt Lake, where the train will remain for two hours. During this time the Salt Lake club women and various civic bodies have planned to do all the entertaining that can possibly be crowded into so limited a period. Among other treats provided for the travelers are an organ recital at the Mormon Tabernacle and innumerable automobile rides about the city and its environs.

In fact, receptions and other courtesies are going to be extended all along the line making it a sort of triumphal progress from the Pacific shores to the middle western city. Omaha and Denver club women have perfected arrangements on an elaborate scale whereby to add to the pleasure of the travelers, and a tired if somewhat happy party will arrive in Chicago on Tuesday morning, June 9, at 7:45 o'clock, always providing that the special is on time.

The price of a round trip ticket from San Francisco is $72.50, with stopover privileges and a time limit of ninety days.

Tickets have to be validated at Chicago before the return trip, and this can be done in the foyer of the Auditorium theater at Chicago any time after June 11.

RECEPTION TO COMMISSIONER.

Exquisitely engraved invitations are out at the hands of the president and directors of the Panama Pacific Exposition for a reception to be tendered "His Excellency Ernesto Nathan, honorary envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary royal Italian commissioner general to the Panama Pacific International Exposition, Wednesday evening, the third of June, from nine until eleven o'clock." WOMEN WILL BOOST 1915 EXPOSITION

FRESNO, May 30.—It is proposed by Fresno county to take advantage of the national assembly of the representatives of the women's clubs of the land to boost the world's exposition at San Francisco next year.

With that end in view at the meeting of the Fresno County Exposition Commission, Chairman Jorgensen was authorized to treat with Mrs. George H. Taylor to represent this county at the convention of the general federation of women's clubs to be held at Chicago from June 9 to 19. It was stated that there will be 15,000 delegates at this federation meeting representing the insular possessions and protectorates.

The commission voted M. J. Wessels an allowance of 10 cents a mile as with all county officials for the use of his automobile when on business of the county commission.

PRICE OF APRICOTS SLUMPS IN SOUTH

FRESNO, May 30.—The price of apricots has taken a big slump in the Los Angeles market, due solely to the fact that over-anxious shippers of the San Joaquin valley have been putting unripe fruit in there, according to advices received in Fresno yesterday.

Wires from the south were to the effect that a quantity of unripe fruit had been sent into that market and shippers were advised that only highly colored fruit is desired.

It was demonstrated last year that the trade will not take to unripe fruit, even though it be the earliest in the market, but it is asserted that notwithstanding this, shippers are again trying to beat their competitors and are indifferent as to whether the

The California Green Fruit Association proposes to do what it can to stop such tactics and if they are continued, it is probable that drastic action will be taken against shippers.

HOUSE IS LOOTED.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The residence of Dennis Gordan, 1564 Larkin street, was ransacked by a burglar this morning and jewelry to the extent of $89 taken.

DRUNKEN JUROR MAY HEAR CASE. IS RULING

SACRAMENTO, May 30.—An intoxicated juror, unable to hear a case intelligently, is no ground for a reversal of the judgment of the trial judge, according to a decision rendered today in which Justices Chipman, Hart and Burnett concurred in upholding the superior court of Siskiyou county in finding John Williams guilty of an assault upon the person of Belle Dollarhide, a girl under legal age. Williams was sentenced to five years in prison, but appealed to the appellate court, making one of his strongest arguments for a reversal on the ground that one of the trial jurors was intoxicated for three days during the hearing of testimony.

The court took cognizance of the juror's drunkenness, but agreed that the defense knew that he was indisposed and waived its right to appeal on this point when it refused to report the matter to the trial court. The appellate court goes so far as to believe that the defendant's attorney thought that the drunken juror would aid the defense.

STREET SPRINKLING IS BANNED BY POLICE

SACRAMENTO, May 30.—Annexed district residents who have been in the habit of sprinkling the streets in front of their homes to keep the dust from banking in the parlor and filling the halls and other rooms with grit, must cease such practice after July 1 or be haled to the Police court.

This provision was included to harmonize the regulation with reference to private companies with that applying against sprinkling was placed in the city water rate ordinance as a conservation measure on the theory that the city carts sprinkled the streets sufficiently.

The city commissioners yesterday afternoon passed an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for anyone other than city employes to sprinkle the streets with water taken from the big mains of any of the water companies in the annexed district.

MRS. ALICE K. BRITTAN HAS SUED FOR DIVORCE

MARYSVILLE, May 30.—Alice Kirk Brittan, wife of Attorney M. T. Brittan of this city, has instituted divorce proceedings, alleging desertion.

The separation came a year ago when, by mutual agreement Mrs. Brittan sold her household effects and entered the State Normal School at San Jose. Since then she has qualified as a teacher in the higher grades, having had previous experience as a teacher in the schools of Sutter county prior to her marriage.

Mrs. Brittan will go on a visit to Missouri shortly to spend a vacation with her parents, and on her return will take charge of a school in Alameda county.

Ready-to-take Tonic-Laxative

There are people who believe medicines can be more uniformly put together at a scientific laboratory where every facility is at hand for compounding ready-to-take remedies. An off-hand prescription and hasty preparation of the prescription ought not and probably does not give the same uniform result that a deliberate, elaborate, costly apparatus for doing the same work could give.

Peruna is a ready-to-take laxative how, with plenty of means at their command. Everything has been done to make it a reliable, accurate, efficient and up-to-date family medicine.

VOTES TO DECIDE WATER DISTRICT

Interest Swells as the Day of Election Draws Nearer.

Day after tomorrow the election will be held for the proposed formation of a metropolitan water district in the east bay cities as a preliminary to the acquistion of a municipally owned water system. With the election so close at hand there is still a misunderstanding in certain quarters as to the full plan of procedure, but for the most part the voters of the district are well-versed on the situation and are consequently expected to be in a position to vote intelligently.

The election Tuesday is solely for the purpose of creating a water district. Should this election carry, subsequent elections will be held for naming five of the thirteen members of a proposed board of directors and for bonds with which to purchase necessary water properties. Seven of the thirteen members of the board are to be appointed, one each, by the mayors of the cities included in the district and one by the Board of Supervisors of the county to represent the unincorporated territory in the district.

Under the outlined plan of procedure the State Railroad Commission will, if the district is formed, appraise whatever portion of the plant of the Peoples Water Company is considered necessary to meet the requirements of the district and name what it considers a fair price for it. The bonds of the water company will not be considered in the appraisal, the price to be fixed solely on the physical plant.

PEOPLE PROTECTED.

Many safeguards are afforded the people in the proceedings. The people have the first say at the polls when they vote for the formation of the district and have the last say when the bond question is submitted. The fixing of a price by the Railroad Commission is not binding upon the people of the district. If the price is considered too high or the proceedings unsatisfactory in any manner whatsoever, the voters can put an end to the whole matter by voting down the bonds.

Aside from this phase of the situation, the mayors of the seven cities included in the district and the members of the Board of Supervisors have pledged themselves to exact from their prospective appointees, a promise to submit to the people of the district any proposition which may be offered or contemplated for the purchase or acquistion of a water supply for the district and also to obtain from the State Railroad Commission before taking any action upon the purchase or acquisition of a water supply, a valuation of the plant or project offered under the provisions of the Metropolitan Water District Act. This pledge shall be so comprehensive as to include definite and specific understanding that the directors so pledged shall under no circumstances or conditions seek to purchase or acquire any water supply for the district until the voters shall have passed upon the question at a special election to be called for that purpose, and the result of which shall determine the action of the directors.

These conditions place the matter squarely in the hands of the voters of the proposed district. A majority of the proposed board of directors being pledged will result in the voters having the say from start to finish in the proceedings.

One of the main arguments advanced in favor of the formation of the district and the acquisition of a municipally owned water plant is the financial inability of the Peoples Water Company to improve its plant in keeping with the rapid increase in population of the east bay cities. Experts on the water question have expressed the opinion, based on a study of the situation, that the Alameda county cities annually face a water famine and that municipal ownership and control is the only solution of the problem.

TAX NOT INCREASED.

Contrary to opinions advanced in certain quarters, the issuance of bonds for the acquisition of a water plant will not increase the tax rate, as it is contended by both proponents and opponents of the formation of the water district under the present law that the district should be self-supporting. This opinion is based on statistics.

The gross income of the Peoples Water Company from water rates and rentals for the calendar year 1913 over the district which it is proposed to create, amounted to $1,604,721.29. The operating expenses, exclusive of taxes and legal expenses caused by litigation over rate matters, which [illegible] not be incurred by the proposed district, amounted to $480,567.23. This leaves a surplus of $1,177,154.06, out of which to pay interest on whatever indebtedness is incurred for the purchase of the plant by the people.

If the bonded indebtedness should be as high as $15,000,000, the interest, at four per cent would be $600,000. Subtracting this from the $1,177,154.06, there is left $577,154.06, as net income for the proposed district, on the company's figures for 1913. Owing to increase in [illegible] for 1914 and 1915 will be larger. This $577,154.06 would be utilizable to pay off the bonded debt, or to be used as a sinking fund to provide for improvements and extensions of the plant.

So far as any arbitrary action of the board of directors in levying a tax for the purchase of the plant, [illegible] bonds, is concerned, the people are fully protected. The section of the water district act relating to the powers of the board has been declared unconstitutional by the District Attorney, as it attempts to take the legislative power of levying taxes from the Board of Supervisors, where it belongs and place that power in the hands of an executive body. The members of the Board of Supervisors are subject to recall. Under decisions of the Supreme Court the section referred to is ineffective.

LONG HOLIDAY ON NEW YORK 'CHANGE

No Important Changes in Leading Issues, With Trading Very Light.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Today's holiday on the stock exchange was only a continuation of the holiday the brokers had enjoyed practically all week. Trading was so extremely light that prices for many issues were only nominal.

There were no important changes in any of the leading issues, though some of the more important specialties offered marked changes in both directions. Prospects for a peaceable solution of the Mexican problem and highly favorable crop news were the most encouraging bits of news.

Rumors that the Interstate Commerce Commission will inform the Eastern railroads that it will grant an increase in rates, though not the 5 per cent asked, helped bolster up railroad securities not affected by the present probe of railroad affairs. On the other hand, President Wilson's announcement that he will not call off anti-trust legislation was considered discouraging by industrial leaders, though they were of the opinion that business will revive the last half of the year. These factors about offset each other in determining market price changes.

CHURCH IN MODESTO STARTS SOCIAL CENTER

MODESTO, May 30.—The first "Friday Popular" was introduced at the Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock for the school children and in the evening at 7:30 o'clock. The idea is to make the church a social center and the programs will be given for the general public and will include moving pictures, music, readings, and a social in the church parlors. The church was packed to the doors this evening to see and hear the first program, which consisted of five reels of motion pictures, pipe organ music and readings. The motion pictures were Pathe—"Hanflour France" and "Breeding Trout by the Millions," and a Vitagraph, "Heartbroken Shep" "The Price of Thoughtlessness," and "Canals of Venice."

The program at 4:15 was attended by several hundred school children. No admission fees were charged and the entertainment bids fair to become in truth a "Friday Popular."

BEATS CLASSES, THEY DECLARE

Embryo Rejanes and Bernhardts Pioneers in School Innovation

"A French play, properly acted and understood, is better than two weeks in a classroom."

So declare the fair actresses of the Grant School French class, who, in their recent play, presented at the school assembly hall, declare that they learned far more than by memorizing the conjugating of verbs and all the other little tricks that one is forced to do indoors. The play was a striking success.

"The best of it is that we learned French as French is spoken," declared Miss Lois Young, one of the embryo Rejanes, "and got a thorough understanding. Really — we were taught lessons by the coach and didn't know it."

"It was a case of getting knowledge in a sugar coated pill," declared Miss Madeline Burrows, another student. The plan will be made a part of the school course hereafter, according to school officials.

"BOB" HOGAN, FORMER DETECTIVE, SUCCUMBS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—"Bob" Hogan is dead. The veteran detective sergeant of the local department, rated in his time one of the cleverest sleuths in America, and who 20 years ago figured in every important case handled by the local police department, died at Lane Hospital early today.

Robert Hogan was over 70 years old, and for 45 years had been in active service on the San Francisco police force. In the days when the late Isaiah W. Lees was making of the San Francisco detective force one of the greatest detective bodies in the country Robert Hogan was his right-hand man. They worked together on all of the important cases during the early criminal history in this State, and were staunch friends until conflicting theories in the celebrated Bowers' poisoning case brought them to the parting of the ways.

Hogan convicted Dr. Bowers of the poisoning of his wife, in the face of the contention of his superior officer that the crime was committed by an other man. Bowers got a new trial, and was finally acquitted, but Chief Lees never forgave Hogan. He sent him into the District Attorney's office as a process server, and there Hogan remained until May 25 last, when he went to Lane Hospital.

Arrangements for Hogan's funeral will be under the direction of the Police Widows and Orphans Union.

PRACTICE SELF DENIAL FOR SUFFRAGE "CAUSE"

CARSON, Nev., May 30.—Suffragists all over the state are practising various forms of self denial this week for the sake of the cause.

Picture shows, ice cream, candy, the little ornaments of dress that appeal to every woman, all of these are given up that the money saved thereby may be used for suffrage.

SECOND WEDDING OF AGED COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Bliss Have Unique Ceremony on Anniversary.

There was an unique wedding held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Bliss, 3408 Telegraph avenue, May 26, at which four generations took part. The occasion was the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day, which took place in Rushville, Ind., the bride being Ann Laughlin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harmony Laughlin, a pioneer of that state.

Bliss was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bliss of Wheelersburg, O. He is a G. A. R. man. Mrs. Bliss is a colonial daughter, her grandfather, John Veeder, having been a colonel in the war of 1776, his commission being signed by John Jay, the first governor of New York. The Union College is on her grandfather's farm.

The decorations were attractive and profuse, the colors were white and gold, the gift of loving friends.

The aged bride and groom plighted their troth the second time, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. Godspeed of the First Presbyterian church of this city.

WEDDING MARCH PLAYED.

The wedding march was played by their oldest grandson, Bliss Jackson. The bride was given away by her only son, Percy Laughlin Bliss, a lullaby was sung by their great grand daughter, Virginia Katherine Jones. There was a reception held from 2 p. m. until 10 30 o'clock and many friends attended the wedding, although there were no cards issued on account of a recent bereavement in the family.

The occasion will long be remembered by those in attendance. Many beautiful gifts and letters of congratulations were received. An original poem was sent by Mrs. Eliza Wolenden.

WILL TELL OF LIFE AMONG THE MEXICANS

"Troubles of the Common People in Mexico" will be the subject of an address by Mrs. Dane Coolidge of Berkeley on Monday evening, June 1, at Chabot hall, Eleventh near Grove street, Oakland, at the regular open monthly meeting of the Northern California branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have recently spent two months in Mexico.

Miss Eva Jones and Miss Lutie Gilbert will contribute musical selections to the program of the evening, and various committees will report upon different phases of the local work for racial fair play and equal opportunity. Vice-President Walter A. Butler will preside. The matter of securing the tion for Oakland in 1915 will be discussed. The general public is welcome.

CLUBS TO ENTERTAIN.

The Se-Tewa and Camilsant clubs of Berkeley will entertain at a joint dance in New Century hall the evening of June 12. Elaborate preparations are being made by the committee in charge, and a large number of guests have been bidden to the affair. The Berkeley clubhouse will be prettily decorated for the occasion.

Roosteri Dies; Hen Crows at Sunrise; Same Clarion Tone

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—This is a story of transmigration of soul.

If there have been any skeptics who did not believe in transmigration of soul they will be convinced if they read this tale, for it is proof.

There was a rooster. He belonged to Roy Nesbitt, and he lived at 1209 West Fifty-fourth street. He was a large black rooster and he considered it his duty to awake the household every morning at sun up.

But the family decided that sun up was too early and they had the rooster for Saturday night dinner.

Sunday morning at sun up the members of the family were startled by loud crowing. It was the old black rooster's crow to a hen. Perched on the fence sat the black hen, the widow of the black rooster, and she was crowing valiantly.

And the black hen was never known to crow before.

PORTERVILLE SCHOOL TO CHANGE PRINCIPAL

PORTERVILLE, May 30.—It was learned from an authentic source yesterday that among the faculty changes in the high school which are slated for the ensuing year is the acceptance of the resignation of B. F. Brous, who has been principal for the past school year. While no official confirmation of the change in faculty could be secured today, it was learned authentically that the resignation of the school head has been filed and was unanimously accepted by the members of the board of education. Brous has not announced his plans for the ensuing year.

Other faculty changes include the resignation of Miss Perry, who goes to the Los Angeles schools; that of H. A. Ward, head of the manual training department, who has not as yet announced his plans, and that of Mrs. Louise Duncan Chandler, who will leave school work.

Announcement with regard to the grammar schols has not as yet been made other than that of Charles E. Bigham, who acted as superintendent for the past several years, has again been offered the position at the head of the institution and that he will probably accept.

WOMAN IS NAMED ON PLAYGROUND BOARD

FRESNO, May 30.—Mayor Snow made public yesterday the announcement of his appointment of Mrs. S. S. Hockett to the vacancy in the city playground commission created by the resignation of Miss Ruby E. Gracier. This lady found that her duties as general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. prevented her devoting the time and attention that the playground work demanded. Mrs. Hockett has accepted the appointment because of much interest in the playground movement.

She is prominent as a member of the Parlor Lecture Club and one of the city beautiful committee. It was because of her acceptance of the new honors that she declined the offered secretaryship of the committee. It is understood that she will continue her membership in the city beautiful committee, even with the added office in the other municipal department.

DANIEL A. POLING IS TO ADDRESS MEETING

Daniel A. Poling, the speaker who recently was heard at the Christian Endeavor convention in Los Angeles, and who recently was a candidate for the governorship of Ohio, will be the speaker today at a meeting at the First Congregational church, where he will be heard on the "California Dry" amendment.

WOODLAND TO BOOST FIRE DEPARTMENT

WOODLAND, Yolo Co., May 30.—As the first step towards arousing interest in the Woodland fire department and giving it a place as a municipal institution that it may be regarded as a part of the municipality, a "boost" gathering will be held on the grounds of the city library next Tuesday evening. The firemen are making arrangements and they have invited all civic organizations to be their guests on that occasion. The city trustees, the Woodland chamber of commerce and the Merchants' association and their families have been invited.

To add to the affair the Woodland band has offered to play during the evening, sans remuneration. Then there will be speech-making by leading citizens. Among those who will be called upon to speak are Mayor Maxwell, Judge N. A. Hawkins, C. T. Bidwell, P. H. Beamer, W. F. Mixon, F. E. Leake, G. P. Hurst, C. C. McDonald, H. S. Maddox, Mrs. S. A. Huston, Dr. Frances L. Newton, P. Reith Jr. and W. F. Osborn.

HER COAT

It's the kind so many, many girls have dreamed of possessing, and waked up to find an impossibility because of their skimpy purses. We all admired it so enviously Sunday. The weather was so dark and horrid, you know, and Mary looked as comfortable and stylish in that coat.

Fluffy, soft, adorably becoming in its smart, new lines, exquisitely made and lined with lovely silk!—was Mary's new short coat — roomy enough to be cosily warm and not too warm for balmy summer nights.

Mary told us there are scores of other styles at CHERRY'S, every bit as fashionable and pretty—a coat to fit the figure of every girl and woman this summer.

Yes, CHERRY'S CREDIT CLOTHING STORE is where Mary bought her dandy summer coat for $16.50. She's paying for it by the week, and, let me tell you, there's many another girl who will follow her example when they see how beautiful Cherry's short coats are.

Most everyone knows CHERRY'S, but here's their address again: At 515 13th st., between Washington and Clay sts., is where I always buy my exclusive men's store. The San Francisco stores are located at 1009 Market and 2400 Mission sts. These stores handle clothing for men as well as ladies. At 636 So. Broadway is their Los Angeles store.

DANCERS ENJOY AN OUTING UPON BAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Beach combers, used to looking upon steam schooners just in from long trips, rusty barques from world ports, heavily laden scows plowing along the river tonage, opened their eyes in wonderment this morning when the belles and beaux of the Saturday Evening Assembly, with about a hundred friends, mobilized at Jackson-street wharf to embark on the river steamer Caroline for a yam barbecue at Glen Cove.

As Captain Leale's steamer Caroline sailed out of the dock with its cargo of pretty girls and their cavaliers, to the music of Signor Ratto's Italian band playing "The Robert E. Lee," the longshoremen waved their hats in the air and wished the merry party a good time and a safe return.

THEY ALL RAGGED.

It may be late in the season for dancing, but fun defied fashion on the Caroline today. Before the boat pulled out everybody began to rag, and when the party sailed into Glen Cove, after taking in all of the sights of interest around the bay, the band moved from the deck to an open air pavilion and struck up "Too Much Mustard."

Before the afternoon was over every dance in the list of last season's innovations, from the half-and-half step to the lame duck and the Les A-Cote was attempted and a few original ones added to the list.

THOSE IN THE PARTY.

In the party were Miss Florence Wendling, Myrtle Little, Violet Cook, Una Wise, Melba Cook, Helen Weaver, Clara Hatteroth, Zeta Mendell, Mildred Malon, Ada Nason, Marian Regensburger, Phyllis Capwell, Lucie Marsden, Estelle Jacobs, Gladys Hendy, Mildred Love, Leah Beckett, Isabel Holl, Roberta Holmes, Cressy Thompson, Lillian Zeux, Dorothy Dickens, Carrie McLean, Irene Sims, Mary Judge; Messrs. Harold Mun- [illegible] Harold Griffin, J. E. Sullivan, Lloyd Lomax, J. W. Rucker, Gregg McIvers, William Taylor, Dion Capello, Charles Lindgren, Spencer Brush, Ralph Farmer, Byington Ford, Clifford Jones, Jean Oliver, Bruce McGill, Pete Garat, Jesse Hardy, Harold Wallace, Roy Barnson, Peter Tum Suden, Roy Hills, Joe Hickey, Bill Hyde, Carl Hermann, Steve Nerney, Pete Ormart, Bill Quinn, Marty Regensberger and Ray Tadich.

The affair was chaperoned by Judge and Mrs. Frank H. Kerrigan, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart McNab, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Sales, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Luschinger.

BIG ACREAGE SOON TO BE RECLAIMED, PLAN

WOODLAND, May 30.—On Monday next A. M. Mull, A. A. Merkeley and Louis Caffaro, through their attorneys, A. C. and H. L. Huston, will file with the Yolo county supervisors a plan for reclamation with the estimates of costs and a motion for the appointment of a commission of assessors for a new reclamation district to be known as district 1600.

The amount to be expended, according to the estimates of costs to be filed, will be $550,200. There are 6005 acres in the district, bounded on the north and east by the Sacramento river, on the south by the Sacramento-Woodland railroad at Elkhorn and on the west by the Yolo by-pass land.

Those named as trustees of the district will be A. M. Mull, A. A. Merkley and Louis Caffaro. Drury Butler has been appointed engineer.

POLICE ON SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN

The police have been requested to search for Robert Southgate, a bookbinder, 38 years of age, who has not been seen since he left his home at 2421 Telegraph avenue on Friday morning. He informed his wife that he had been called on the telephone by a man named Sebbs, and that he was going to obtain employment with an Oakland paper. When he did not return home, his wife made inquiries and found that no person by that name was in the newspaper office. The missing man is six feet one inch in height and weighs 180 pounds; he has dark hair and eyes and a scar on the left cheek. He wore a light coat and vest, dark striped trousers and a brown striped soft shirt. He had been out of work for some time.

THE OAKS ARE PUZZLED QUEEN CAUSES DILEMMA

DANCE? WHAT'S USE? THEY SAY

Oakland Boosters Seek New Way to Entertain Visitor.

QUEEN THELMA.

A queen can't tango in royal robes. If she can't tango, what's the use of giving a dance?

That's where the Royal Oakland, according to Acting Secretary Wuillemin of the Commercial Club, are strictly "up against it." The Oaks are all right as Oaks, but they never retinue before, and Queen Thelma is coming. There isn't much time, and suggestions are asked. How can the Oaks entertain the Portland Rose Carnival Queen, in a way no queen was ever entertained before?

Queen Thelma of the Carnival, at which the Royal Oaks were features last year, left Portland yesterday with her maids of honor for a tour of the coast in the interest of the carnival. She will arrive in Oakland next week. The Royal Oaks will be out in full uniform—and that's as far as the program has gone.

Manager Reiter of the Hotel Oakland, Maitre d'Hotel Petersen, Chef Zumbach—all have been appealed to. All shrug their shoulders, and insist that it's up to the Oaks. Anything they can do to help, of course—and they'll do—but they're not going to take responsibility that rightfully belongs to the white uniformed boosters.

Captain Leslie Rice of the Oaks has issued an order that each married man in the Oaks go home and bring in a suggestion from his wife. The decision will be made tomorrow.

Chatworth House and Buxton

(By W. B. BANCROFT.)

LONDON, May 16.—Having occasion to visit the cotton merchants of Manchester frequently, I soon learned how much pleasanter it was to sleep of nights in Buxton which is situated 2000 feet high in a clear and delightful atmosphere, rather than to put up at a hotel in Manchester in a low altitude, with smoke galore.

Therefore, after making my business calls during the day, at 5 p. m. I would board the railway express train for Buxton, arriving there in one hour, in time to bathe, don my evening clothes and dine. After which the guests, engaged in music, conversation and a little impromptu dance. Buxton is a popular health resort all the year round but especially so during the summer months, having an abundance of Hydro hotels, board residences, medicinal springs, a large park in which a band of music plays daily. During the summer the Pierroti furnish a very acceptable entertainment, moving from one pitch to another, their singing being of excellent quality. There are a number of drives through this interesting country and visitors generally go to the "Cat and Fiddle", which is known as being loocated at the highest point of any wayside inn in England. It was here in this district of Devonshire that the streams were made famous for fishing as they were so much frequented by Sir Isaac Walton.

HISTORIC CHURCH.

One Sunday morning while riding on my bicycle and noticing a little church and grave yard, I stopped to see how far back the data on the tombstones would read, but could find nothing earlier than 1631. I learned however that the name of the little North Church was Chapel-en-le-Frith and looking over the stone wall from the burial ground I noticed across the road under a clump of oak trees the sign of the manumental major which read:

John Bramwell, Peter Bramwell for 52 years sexton; his son 40, his grandson 38, his greatgrandson 43 and his great, great, great grandson 39—1631-1893.

During the old days when Barons fought Barons a battle occurred between two of them and their followers, and the vanquished were crowded into this little church and to such an extent, that the next morning, after the doors were opened, more than half of them were found to be dead from suffocation.

Concluding to have a ride through this interesting country, one bright, beautiful morning, after having booked two seats outside and by the side of the driver (called box seats) we started with our coach and four fine, spanking horses, and rode to Chatsworth house, the magnificent residence of the Duke of Devonshire, which stands in a beautiful park of a circumference of ten miles. It has been built for over 230 years and is a veritable storehouse of work of art. It was there that the late Duke was accustomed to entertain King Edward and his party, once every year for two weeks, at an expense of $75,000, with music, charades, plays, rendered by artists specially engaged from London; dances, etc., and everything to make the King's visit an enjoyable and elegant affair. In addition to Chatsworth the Duke possessed many other palatial estates, totaling 198,573 acres, with an annual rent roll of £180,760. No other British peer possessed so many magnificent residences as the Duke of Devonshire.

NOT LIKE CICERO.

I remember hearing him make a speech at one of the Fourth of July banquets given by the American Society in London, when I couldn't help but come to the conclusion that the noble Duke was not a brilliant speaker. In fact, it is well known that on account of an incident which occurred during his maiden speech in 1859, he earned the nickname of "Dormouse" and "Sleepy Hartington," as he yawned in the middle of the speech, an incident unparalleled in Parliamentary history. I am sure there isn't a town of ten thousand in the United States but that on a Fourth of July could produce one or more whose speeches would be far superior to any His Grace ever made. The average Englishman speaks "on a level" without emphasis or feeling. There are, however, many brilliant Irish speakers, and a few, very few, Englishmen who make graceful speeches, such as Roseberry, Joseph Chamberlin, Asquith and the late Gladstone, but the percentage is small.

After having been conducted through this palace with its gallery of painting, statuary and other works of art, the large glass enclosed conservatory and the beautiful gardens, continuing our drive we arrived at "Haddon Hall," famous as the house of "Dorothy Vernon," an ideal specimen of an old English baronial mansion now unoccupied, which came into the hands of the Vernons and remained in their possession from the twelfth to the sixteenth centuries, and by the marriage of the fair Dorothy passed to the Rutland family.

After being served with our noonday meal at an inn nearby, we walked around and behind "Haddon Hall" to see the flight of stairs said to have been used by Dorothy Vernon when she eloped with Sir John Manners, son of the Earl of Rutland. On our return we stopped in the middle of the street of a little village, the name of which has escaped me, just as the sun was disappearing below the hills, when we were served with delicious freshly brewed tea, it being handed to me inside and outside our coach by neat and most presentable girls and women in white caps and aprons, this being the regular and customary function. Then back to our Hydro Hotel at Buxton, well satisfied with four days' ride.

EBERHART BROACHES FAIR AT SELMA CLUB

FRESNO, May 30.—Secretary Eberhart of the Fresno district fair was in Selma recently, where he talked before the Selma Improvement club. His object was to arouse enthusiasm among the women and show them how they can assist in making the plans for the fair this year broader than ever before.

About 150 women of Selma and visiting delegates from other towns were present. Mrs. Harry Say presided. Mrs. Say is one of the directors of the Fresno District Fair Association and much interest was evinced and many of the women pledged their help in any way it could be used to further the plans of the association. Eberhart sketched briefly to them the scope that it is hoped to be able to cover this year, and suggested various ways in which the women can be extremely helpful.

A brief musical program was given by the young ladies of the Improvement club.

UNKNOWN MAN FALLS UNDER TRAIN WHEELS

MODESTO, May 30.—An unknown man, in attempting to climb aboard a Southern Pacific extra freight Thursday night to secure a free ride, was in the Modesto yards, and was so badly mangled that he died three hours later. The accident happened about 10:30 o'clock, as the freight was leaving the yards. E. Robinson, the only eye-witness to the accident, stated that the injured man tried to clamber aboard the train between two cars, and evidently lost his hold, falling beneath the wheels.

JAMES TOO THANKFUL; 'TEN DAYS' IS IMPOSED

SACRAMENTO, May 30.—James O'Toole was thankful. Aye, he was more than thankful. After Police Judge Christensen yesterday gave him one hour in which to leave the city for being intoxicated he was so overjoyed that he could not suppress his gratitude.

"Begorrah and it's meself that's thankful for that, your worship," he said.

The judge received the token in silence. O'Toole then repeated it. He re-repeated and re-re-repeated it, and as he was making his exit from the court room he voiced it for the fifth time in tones that would have drowned the roar of Niagara.

Judge Christiansen ordered the appreciative one returned. The judge thought the joke had gone too far. "You're guilty of contempt," he declared. "Ten dollars or ten days in jail for you."

Minus the tenner, O'Toole went to jail.

EXPOSITION LECTURE TO BE HEARD BY SOCIETY

On Monday evening, June 8, Noah Gause of the bureau of lectures of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company will give a lecture on [illegible] illustrated by moving pictures, before the Illinois Society of California at Scott-King hall, Fourteenth street, between Grove and Castro streets. The entertainment will begin at 8:15 o'clock sharp.

The annual picnic of the society will be held on Saturday afternoon and evening, June 6, at Mosswood park, Oakland.

FLURRY STARTED IN MAY FUTURES

Erratic Movements Noticeable, but There Is No Bulge in Wheat

CHICAGO, May 30.—The flurry that usually marks the closing out of contracts caused erratic movements in the May futures for all grains this week, but the expected bulge in May wheat did not materialize on the closing day yesterday. May closed at 99c, an advance of 1⅞c over last week's close, after touching the dollar mark on Thursday, but the Armour crowd was selling at the close instead of attempting to squeeze shorts, as had been predicted.

The glowing crop predictions caused wheat futures for the deferred months to ease off all week. July lost 1¼c and September ⅝c during the week's trading.

Shorts covered in May corn just before the closing gong, but to such an extent that corn 4c and May showed a 4c gain for the week. The deferred months, however, registered losses of ½c each for the week.

Oats, strong earlier in the week on reports of dry weather, but plenty of moisture in the closing days of the week, brought prices down. May lost 2c in the closing market and the other months showed fractional losses for the week's trading.

Provisions slumped gradually all week on account of a heavy run of hogs to the stock yards, losing from 70@80c, with pork suffering most.

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN OF CHICO IS DEAD

CHICO, May 30.—Mrs. Sarah Ann Heberlie, one of the best known residents of this city, died at her home in Chapmantown at the age of 74. The funeral took place this morning at 11 o'clock from the Christian Church, with the Rev. George Meeker officiating.

Mrs. Heberlie was born in Missouri and had lived in this section for about fifteen years. Surviving her are the following children: Nicholas Heberlie, Sacramento; Frank Heberlie, Rackerby, Yuba county; B. S. Heberlie, J. S. Heberlie and Mrs. Robert Thomure, Chico, and Mrs. J. C. Taber, Woodland.

COUGAR THINS FLOCKS BEFORE NIMROD WINS

DALLAS, Or., May 30.—C. D. Brumfield presented the skin of a full-grown male cougar to County Clerk Robinson yesterday, and collected the state and county bounty of $25. The animal was killed on Sunday a few miles northeast of Dallas. During the past week it had killed seven goats belonging to James Middleton. The carcass of the beast weighed 100 pounds.

STOLEN AUTO IS HONEYMOON CAR

With Usual Disaster Awaiting Two Couples: Jail and Regrets.

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—Honeymooning in a stolen automobile is not all that it might be. It has its disadvantages.

This is the decision today of two pairs of honeymooners who have been accused by the authorities of trying it.

For if the stern hand of the law reaches out and lands the bridegrooms in jail, and the two pretty brides in a lonely hotel with a sheriff and a detective to guard them, smiles will fade and tears will flow.

IN HYMEN'S CAR.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fay were married just a week ago in Fresno, and Mr. and Mrs. George Wells, also newlyweds, accompanied them on their hurried trip to the altar.

Then the four started on a honeymoon trip, in a nice black touring car, which Undersheriff Lemuel Harp of Fresno declares belongs to him.

The trip will end in Fresno where it began when the four honeymooners are returned there tonight to answer the charge of automobile stealing.

Today they are in Los Angeles, but instead of spending the day on the beach, with only Cupid as a chaperon, as they had planned, the youthful bridegrooms occupy cells in the county jail, and the two brides, forlorn and tear stained, but still loyal, are spending the time in watchful waiting.

"JUST LARK."

"Just a lark," is dark eyed little Mrs. Fay's explanation of the tour that ended so disastrously.

Still clad in their pretty wedding suits, the two girls were at the New Broadway hotel. Their lips quivered as they spoke of the "boys" in jail.

The officers of Fresno having heard that the missing automobile had gone south, started in pursuit. The honeymooners went to San Diego and were finally trailed to Brawley and arrested there. The bridegrooms were taken to jail and the brides are waiting to return with them to Fresno.

"We just got married to take the trip with Mr. and Mrs. Wells," said the tearful newest bride today, "and it was all only a lark, that's all. I know that Ed wouldn't do anything wrong."

Both brides declared that they would "stand by" their husbands, no matter what came.

Mrs. Fay was Miss Norma McNabb before her marriage and Mrs. Wells was Miss Anna McMahon.

ROBBED BY PICKPOCKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—F. A. Hobart, of 171 Dubose avenue, was robbed of $11 by pickpockets while leaving the fight arena at Eighth and Harrison streets last evening.

Half-yearly Clearance Sale

Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock begins our half-yearly Clearance Sale. It's the most important in San Francisco retailing, for it means the closing out at fractional prices of San Francisco's choicest ready-to-wear stocks.

Only a rigid adherence to a fixed policy of closing out absolutely every garment belonging to one season before entering a new season would authorize such drastic reductions. Our reputation, however, among the best dressers for smart new merchandise at all times is worth more to us than the present stock on hand. Tomorrow the sale begins. The price bars are down. Everything is included in these substantial reductions. Come for your share in the savings.

FINDS RESERVOIR OF ANCIENT TIME

Discovery of Antiquity Older Than Pyramid Is Announced.

GENEVA, May 30—Prof Edouard Naville, the well known Egyptologist, has just returned home and has given further details of his remarkable discoveries in Egypt, including a reservoir more ancient than the Pyramids, and the tomb of the god Osiris king of the dead

The professor is particularly desirous not to claim the honor of his discoveries alone, but to share it with his assistants. Messrs Wainwright and Gibson of London and Thomas Whittemore of Taft college, Boston

The discoveries were made at Abydos, the old Egyptian Abut, which is half way between Cairo and Assuan, about eight miles away from the Nile, in the desert.

TELLS OF INTERESTING FIND.

"The ground I went over was not in a sense exactly new," said the professor, "for in 1903 Prof. Flinders-Petrie and Miss Murray of University college, London had made interesting discoveries at Abydos, but I penetrated further during my two expeditions in 1912-1913 and 1913-1914.

"We worked from December 24, 1913, to March 11, 1914 and during the eleven weeks we experienced some anxiety and excitement. At nine yards under the soil we found a large building constructed of granite and very hard red sandstone. This edifice is divided into three naves, which are surrounded by sixteen large cells all identical in size and shape, and containing no inscriptons on the walls whatever

"This latter fact proved that the building was very ancient as the walls of the more modern edifices in Egypt are covered with inscriptions. In front of the cells is a stone platform surrounded by ten huge blocks of granite, and the platform skirts the reservoir, which we have not yet explored.

BURIAL PLACE OF OSTRIA.

[illegible] the opposite side to which we entered we found the burial place of Osiris, as the Book of the Dead and the inscription on the walls of the funeral [illegible] twenty yards by five yards [illegible] to be beyond all doubt. We [illegible] also that in some remote past [illegible] thieves had entered the chamber [illegible] by piercing a hole in the [illegible] but it will of course be never [illegible] what the thieves carried away. [illegible] take the sarcophagus of Osiris? [illegible] to our observation the tomb [illegible] of Osiris were modified and [illegible] changes by order of several [illegible] B. C. Ancient legends state [illegible] the body of Osiris was dismembered every night by his enemies and [illegible] members were transported to [illegible] parts of Egypt, and further [illegible] gathered the members together and brought them back to [illegible] Abydos. For this reason [illegible] to be a symbol [illegible] tombs of Osiris in Egypt, but the real one is at Abydos [illegible]

[illegible] is may be recalled, was one of the principal Egyptian deities and the son of earth and heaven. [illegible] waged with his brother Set, representing the eternal conflict between good and evil, he was slain. He rose again, however, and had dominion over the dead in the netherworld of Amenti. His wife was Isis (the dawn). His son Horus (the sun). In the full strength.)

MISSING YOUTH DIES IN SERVICE

"He Went for a Soldier---" His Parents Find His Grave.

LOS ANGELES, May 30—After many days of weary searching and anxiety, a heart broken mother and father have found their boy—who wanted to go to war

Mr. and Mrs P M Klassen of Anaheim know today where their son Johnny, is—and the story of their search and its ending in the army hospital at San Francisco is one of the tragedies of war in all ages

For the boy died, very quietly and alone, in the wards of the military sick room, just as the bugle for soldiers in Mexico blew and his long-cherished hope of fighting for his country was about to come true.

UNDER AN ALIAS.

Johnny Klassen, just 19, ran away from his home last February and went to enlist in the army. For years it had been his dearest wish and the war stories filled his brain. Twice he was prevented from enlisting because of his youth. But at last, under the name of John King, in San Francisco, he won the blue uniform he had craved so long in his boyish heart, and became a soldier of Uncle Sam.

While he waited in San Francisco, hoping to be sent to the front, his mother and father went from one place to another, wrote letters and sent pictures in a heart-breaking effort to find their son. Sometimes they would see a boy who looked like their lost son, and hope would rise, only to be killed again

LETTERS ASTRAY.

After a time a letter came from the boy, telling of his enlistment, full of his desire to go to war. But in his excitement Johnny failed to tell that he had enlisted as John King. So his mother's loving letters were returned, and the hopeless search began again.

In March John King, enlisted man, was taken ill and rushed to the hospital. He answered the last call early the next morning.

United Railroads Inquiry Awaited With Interest

• THE KNAVE •

Roosevelt, Hadley And Borah Coming West This Fall

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The charge of the California Railroad Commission that Patrick Calhoun, the predecessor of Jesse W. Lilienthal as president of the United Railroads of San Francisco, has diverted $1,000,000 of the latter company's funds to outside projects, and that, too, on the authorization of the majority stockholders of the railroad property and its holding company, has been the sensation of the week. The local press has given much space to the unusual story. From what has been printed, President Lilienthal has put himself in antagonism to his predecessor's acts. In a telegraph statement Calhoun seeks to justify his action and claims to be a large owner of stock in the United Railways Investment Company of New Jersey. The latter is the holding company for the local United Railroads. It is also the holding company for street railway and light and gas companies in Pittsburg and the surrounding territory. The latter are known as the Philadelphia Company. It will be of interest to state that but little of the United Railroads stock has ever been held in this city and State. Many of United Railroads bonds are, however, held out here. They run up to a large amount, or did so several years ago, and were taken as an investment. R. G. Hanford of this city originally bought and consolidated the local street roads, including the electric line to San Mateo. He was acting for Brown Bros., the New York bankers. When they made their deal and had perfected their organization, Calhoun and Ladenburg & Thalmann, also New York bankers, stepped in and bought the proposition from them. Hanford and Brown Bros. made large profits by the deal. It was then that Calhoun and his New York bankers organized the New Jersey holding concern for their San Francisco and Pittsburg properties. Tirey L. Ford, chief counsel, and Thornwell Mullalley, vice-president, are the only two directors of the first Calhoun board out here that remain in those positions. Mullalley is related to Calhoun. Ford was chief counsel and a director under Brown Bros.

It is an interesting story, by the way, how Tirey L. Ford got into the United Railroads as chief counsel. When Hanford wanted to buy the electric line to San Mateo, he found it was owned by John D. and A. B. Spreckels. At that time Ford was the Attorney-General of California with offices in the Call building. He approached Ford to see what he could do with the Spreckels brothers and Sam Leake, the then manager of the Call for John D. Spreckels towards buying the electric road at his figure. Ford did satisfactory work in that direction and at Hanford's suggestion Brown Bros. made him chief counsel of the new combination of roads. Calhoun and his bankers took Ford over as chief counsel when they bought from Brown Bros. At one time Calhoun thought highly of Ford, for one day when it was raining he made his chief counsel put on his overcoat and over-shoes, saying:

"Bundle yourself up, Ford, for good men are scarce these days."

Lathrop a Sympathetic Brother

The death of Charles G. Lathrop at his country home adjacent to the grounds of Stanford University removes one of the original trustees of that institution and its first treasurer. Some months ago on account of ill health, Lathrop resigned as business manager for the board of trustees and Vanderlyn Stow, another trustee, has since been acting in that capacity. If I remember correctly, Lathrop received a legacy of $100,000 from Senator Stanford and got from the separate estate of Jane Lathrop, the Senator's widow, two million dollars. The Senator thought much of Lathrop's business ability. Of three brothers who lived out here, he was the favorite of Jane Stanford. Charles G. realized how his sister bemoaned the death of her only child, a son, and of her distinguished husband and saw how much of a comfort it was for her to implicitly believe that she often saw and conversed with their spirits. To that extent, she was a firm believer in spiritualism. Ariel Lathrop, the oldest brother, took exception to this belief of his sister and is said to have been very cold and dogmatic in his remonstrance. It was on this account that the two quarrelled and he saw fit to return for good to the old home in New York. The other brother, who died here in the nineties, sided with his sister and the one who has just died. So did Thomas Welton Stanford, a wealthy brother of the Senator who lives in Australia. The latter is an avowed spiritualist and has contributed various things, including apports, bearing on that subject to the university. Eventually it is thought he will give much of his fortune to it. A lot was said at the time of Mrs. Stanford's death in Honolulu that she had been poisoned. Charles G. Lathrop never believed the poison story any more than did David Starr Jordan, Timothy Hopkins, the president of the board of trustees, and Mountford S. Wilson and his late brother, her attorneys. The latter, together with Mr. Lathrop, materially aided Mrs. Stanford in placing the property of her husband [illegible] interesting bearing securities in the East. This was especially true after the Stanford stock holdings in the Southern Pacific had been sold out to New York and London people, including Collis P. Huntington. Lathrop had in his charge the books of the Senator Stanford estate, those of his sister's property and those of the Stanford University. So precise and well intentioned was he that even before his sister's death he insisted that all the books be properly ex[illegible] fifteen months at the direction of her attorneys. Only once was any set of the three systems of books found incorrect and that was only a matter of three cents.

Siam Will Send Quaint Exhibit

From the information they have at hand, President C. C. Moore and his associates of the Panama-Pacific Exposition are confident Siam will make a fine and novel exhibit with a chorus of Siamese dancing girls, a sacred white elephant and what not. There will be many things about the exhibit to indicate at least part of the title of the King of Siam, for he is known to his subjects as "Half Brother of the Sun, Brother of the Moon, Arbiter of the Ebb and Flow of the Tides and Lord of the Golden Umbrella." Siam is the only remaining independent sovereign of a purely Buddhist land. The present king, who has been on the throne for about three years, is officially known as Chawfa Maka Vagiravudh. His father, the late King Chulalongkorn, was written about some years ago as being the most married bit of royalty in the world, for it was said he had fully six hundred wives and at least as many children. The present king received his education in England and in many ways is fully abreast of the times. As a student in England, the London papers are said to have known him well and "to have loved him hugely" for his humor, chubbiness and democratic airs.

East Calls Dynamite Expert

W. A. Simonton, a well-known Alameda county commuter for the past seven years and a popular member of the Transportation Club in the Palace Hotel, left for Wilmington, Del., early this week to accept the position as traffic manager for the Dupont Powder Company at a good monthly salary running into five figures. Simonton has had offices in this city ever since he came to the coast as its chief representative and also for some for its allied corporations. In his new position, the former Alameda resident will direct the powder shipments of the concern all over this continent, together with a large part of its exports. In the Far West there is a great hunting field and Simonton numbered himself among the many Nimrods and soon saw just what kind of ammunition was best suited for the various kinds of game, large and small. His suggestions were very valuable both for the hunters and his employers. That was one of the reasons which led to his great popularity on the coast and eventually to his promotion. His judgment of high explosives was unerring, and, although he could always safely handle them, some of his friends were a little nervous when they saw him doing so. In his local office, Simonton had a can partially made of dynamite. It was so labeled. His visiting friends never bothered the can. Once when his office was robbed the burglars were particular to leave it behind. But they were reckless with a fancy ruler he had. It contained his initials in polished dynamite. Alfred I. du Pont, one of Simonton's superiors, is interested in radium mines in Colorado, which, in co-operation with Dr. H. A. Kelly of Baltimore, he recently offered to the Government to be used in the cure of cancer.

Robbery Exposes Gambling Hall

The attempted robbery and shooting a week ago last Thursday night at the Horseshoe bar and gambling house a few hundred feet over the line of this city and county in San Mateo County called attention in an emphatic manner to that gambling rendezvous. It has been running wide open for a number of months. The local police knew all about it but were powerless to act. Sheriff Mansfield and District Attorney Swart of San Mateo County are coming in for a good deal of criticism for tolerating its existence so long. There are some who assert that the proprietor of the resort, William Market, commonly known in the neighborhood as "Beefsteak Bill," helped make the fight for those two officials at the last election. Whether that is true or not, I do not know. Anyhow the story is abroad and is considered by some to explain why Beefsteak Bill has been so daring in his gambling operations. A lot of money is said to have been won and lost there, and on the night of the attempted robbery and shooting there is known to have been $1200 on the table in a game of klondyke. The thieves, however, did not get any of it. Most of the money was grabbed by two of the players, who have not shown up since. Of course, the place is not like the high-toned resorts maintained elsewhere just over the line after the 1906 fire and known as the Great Northern Club and A. Mon Chateau. The latter were run by Dave Argyll, Frank Daroux and other big San Francisco and Seattle gamblers. They had [illegible] those places to try their luck. Beefsteak Bill's place sought for players in a lower financial and social scale. A certain man, however, says that $50,000 has been wagered and lost there within the past six months. Several games were run every night most of the twenty or thirty players coming from the San Francisco side of the line. All knowledge of the resort was kept from the late grand jury of San Mateo County, on which were a number of [illegible]

Museum Should Increase Fame

Work on the new museum of the Academy of Sciences in Golden Gate Park in full view of and to the south of the bandstand grounds is progressing rapidly. Many visitors are expected to inspect its famous collection while the exposition is open in 1915. It is to be in charge of Dr. Barton W. Evermann of Washington, D. C., until recently chief of the Alaska fisheries service. Members of the academy say it will be the best in the West and in appearance will greatly resemble the Field Museum in Jackson Park in the Lake City. It will be a modern, fire-proof structure costing in excess of half a million dollars. Dr. Evermann is a scientist and lecturer of repute and has had connection with similar institutions in various parts of the East. In the temporary headquarters being maintained on Sansome street several officials of the academy are collecting the exhibits for the new museum. In variety and members a notable collection is already on hand, such as reptiles, plants, fossils, birds and insects. The curator of mammology is engaged at present in arranging in huge glass cases groups of stuffed animals, with waxwork vegetation and painted scenery representing their native haunts. Dr. Jordan and his scientific friends in various parts of the world are actively contributing to the collection and they promise it will be far superior to the one the Academy of Sciences had in its building on Market street, near Fourth, at the time of the great earthquake.

Concerning Grant's Removal

There continues to be considerable gossip among their local friends about the announcement of Ulysses S. Grant and his new wife, recently returned from a honeymoon tour of the world, that they will make their home in New York instead of residing in Grant's old home in San Diego. Grant is a man of wealth, has some valuable investments in that city and the latter has always been proud of claiming him, along with John D. Spreckels, formerly of San Francisco, as one of its boosters and devoted citizen adherents. Objections to the marriage by some of Grant's children by his first wife, who died and who was a daughter of the late United States Senator Chaffee of Colorado, has been given as the reason for a change of residence to New York. It is true there was some opposition by some of his children last July when they were married. But I am told the real reason is Mrs. Grant's social ambition in New York and that the objections of the children has practically died out. Mrs. Grant was 32 at the time of her marriage. Grant's age was given at 60. Mrs. Grant has been married three times. Mr. Elms, her first husband, she married at 16. She divorced him and he is said to be living with their young son in a humble home in Los Angeles. She was happily married to her second husband, Mr. Will, an Iowa druggist. He died in 1909. It was as Mrs. America Workman Will that she married the son of the famous general. U. S. Grant III, one of the sons, was present at their wedding. There has been a report that Grant cut out of his will those of his children who objected to the marriage. This is denied by some of his best San Francisco friends. Four sons and two grandsons of Confederate generals and three sons and two grandsons of Union army commanders are officers in Uncle Sam's service now, ready to go to the front in Mexico if need be. U. S. Grant III is one of the latter.

Campaigners Are Coming

If all the predictions and tentative arrangements come to a realization the coming late summer and fall, the hustings in California should sparkle with oratory and abound in argument from many an angle of political thought and pleading. Roosevelt's coming. He says so, himself, and he delights in hard and strenuous campaigning. But Teddy has been politically selfish and inconsistent, and, while always a drawing card, he will find conditions in California different—far different—from the last time he plead with us. That forceful factor on the stump, Senator Borah of Idaho, is planning a visit. One of the best speakers in the Senate today, Borah makes a telling address with any audience and is sure of a large hearing when he comes. Former Governor Hadley of Missouri is also spoken for a tour of the state. Hadley is positive and withal pleasing as a talker, with plenty of ideas at his command and a way of presenting them in charming and faultless language. The story of the last Republican National Convention in Chicago has it I believe that Hadley could have been the united presidential nominee had Roosevelt only consented. But all three are in favor of free canal tolls for coastwise shipping. We praise them for that. They can't but help emphasize the prominent stand in that fight that "our own Joe Knowland" enjoys.

Miller's Mexican Experience

I ran across Ralph Z. Miller of Durango, Mexico, at the Fairmont last evening. Miller's individual and successful mining operations in that part of the southern republic have been temporarily suspended owing to the troubled conditions there. Twenty years ago he first went to Durango as a railroad passenger agent. Speaking of the peculiarity of the Mexicans and the odd conditions there as he found them on first taking his humble job as an agent, Mr. Miller told of how a complaint about him after being in the position a year was sent to President Diaz by a committee of Durango citizens, including some of the city officials. It was all owing to a change of time in the arrival of a passenger train. His superiors at the Rio Grande border [illegible] ters but that did no good. He got the blame and they carried their tale of woe to Diaz. The train had been arriving in Durango at 8 p. m. and about the whole town was in the habit of going down to the station to greet it. The changed schedule made it arrive at 3 p. m. The protest was that at the new hour most of the people were taking their daily siesta and were therefore deprived of the old pleasure of going to the station to see the train come in. The complaint did not go but for a long while Miller was made to feel very uncomfortable about the matter.

Alaska, a Land of Promise

Some of the prominent civil engineers gave a dinner the first of the week to W. C. Edes on the eve of his departure to Seattle and Alaska as a member of the new Alaskan Engineering Commission recently appointed by President Wilson to make a survey for the proposed government railroad in the northern territory. The other two members of the commission are Thomas Riggs Jr., and Lieutenant Frederick Mears, U. S. A., lately chief engineer of the Panama railroad in the canal zone. Colonel Goethals is said to have recommended Mears to President Wilson while Secretary of the Interior Lane is credited with calling the attention of the President to the fitness of Edes for a place on the commission. Alaska is about one-fifth the size of the rest of the United States, has fifty million acres of tillable land and is rich in gold, coal, copper and oil. So a government built and owned railroad for its development is a marked and noteworthy departure. Some thirty million dollars has been appropriated for a line a thousand miles long. Edes has done some important railroad surveying and building in California and on the coast generally and ranks in ability with such men as Virgil G. Bogue, William Hood, Storey of the Santa Fe and Epes Randolph of Tucson. His last work was the 100-mile gap to get the Northwestern Pacific into Eureka, a work now being rapidly completed. To fill in this gap is costing a million dollars a mile, so heavy is the work in the mountainous country of Mendocino and Humboldt counties to build a low grade modern line. As soon as the commission invites bids for construction, some large firms in this city will make an effort to get some of the work. Alaska trade is growing and will be given a great impetus by the new road. Seattle continues to evince the lion's share of it and prominent Alaskans, who always make their winter headquarters in San Francisco, assert this city is behind in the race because its merchants are blind to their opportunities.

Canal and Steam Yachts

The steam yacht, Cypress, of the copper magnate, Colonel D. S. Jackling, and John D. Spreckels' fine yacht, Venetia, have both been at anchor in the bay during the past few days. This is something unusual for two modern pleasure steamers of the kind to dot the waters of the bay, and shipping men have commented about it very much. Jackling's is a new boat while that belonging to Spreckels has been in his possession for some years and has sailed many waters in all parts of the world. The cost of such possessions is large as well as their annual expense of maintenance. So only the rich can afford them. But a steamship man of prominence tells me that in his opinion that Panama canal as an established highway between the two oceans will bring many of them here to the exposition next year. And from this on these yachts will come here frequently from Europe as well as from the Atlantic coast. But one or two people of wealth on this coast have had in the years gone by palatial yachts, but he predicts the canal and the consequent rapid increase of population and riches on the coast will soon change this condition. And he deems it a very important and desirable change. Jackling is soon to increase the size of his vessel besides spending a lot more money for his own comfort and pleasure and the entertainment of his friends. He is one of the new mining magnates of San Francisco and there seems to be no limit to his expenditures. Theodore Marx, the interior decorator of St. Louis, has about finished some costly and artistic effects for the top floor of the new annex of the St. Francis hotel that is to be Jackling's city home. He will then rank as the highest-priced guest of any hotel west of Chicago.

Laveaga Heirs Still Litigious

Evidently the Superior Court has not yet seen the last of the de Laveaga litigation for another angle over the two million dollar estate left by the late Marie de Laveaga has developed before Judge Coffey. She died in 1909 and the brother and sister are now in the courts once more over the latter's alleged withholding of a valuable part of the estate. Not long ago after two years of fighting before Judge Coffey the brother had declared a will in favor of the sister, Mrs. Cebrian, invalid because of the incompetency of Marie C., and was given absolute powers of administrating the big property. E. S. Pillsbury and S. M. Shortridge locked horns as the lawyers in this will contest and the testimony and record on appeal to the Supreme Court made a most formidable document. The Supreme Court upheld Coffey's decision. The record ran up into millions of words, being comparable in its bulkiness to such former cases as the Blythe litigation and that over Senator Fair's estate. The de Laveagas are of an old Castilian family and among the witnesses at the will contest was the beautiful Mrs. Andrew Welsh, who belongs to the family and is a member of the exclusive set. Several Spanish grand dames were in the witness chair before the case was brought to a close.

Spreckels Building Annex

I saw Claus A. Spreckels of New York on the street yesterday. He, his brother, Rudolph, and Mrs. Ferris, the sister, own the Call building. They now know the latter structure as the Claus Spreckels building and people do them a favor when they call it by that name. The newspaper will in some months cease to be a tenant of the building, it having arranged to move over on to New Montgomery street as a tenant of the Sharon estate. The building will then be altered, with others adjoining under the same ownership, and in time it will generally be designated by the name they prefer. For the purpose of this alteration, together with some other improvements elsewhere, the three under the name of the City Investment Company are arranging a good-

also partners in the Universal Electric and Gas Company and business closely connected with the latter concern is said to have brought Claus A. Spreckels out from New York at this time. They have in view some important plant for it for they aim at a plant large enough to furnish illumination and power to this and other cities about the bay. The concern has at present a capital stock of five millions.

Uncle Joe After the Job

So Joe Cannon, former Speaker of the House, old as he is, still has the bee buzzing actively and says he will seek another seat in the House from the Danville, Ill., district, the Eighteenth. Remarkable political vitality has this man had. Only twice in a career of forty years was he beaten in this district. Frank T. O'Hair of Paris beat him two years ago by a plurality of 500. O'Hair, who is 43 years of age, visited this city shortly after his election. He was entertained by some of the leading Democrats and frankly told them that he accepted the nomination against Cannon reluctantly. E. F. Royse was the Progressive candidate. O'Hair thought the secret of his election was his decision to quietly and thoroughly make a "get acquainted" fight. While Cannon was hurling statistics at his audiences to prove his own and his party's right to survive, O'Hair visited every town, city and cross-road community in the district, during which he refused to make a speech. Frequently he went into the fields and worked with the farmers while talking to them. Attired in a rusty suit and a slouch hat, with pockets bulging with cigars and a hand shake, he stormed the voter under his own vine and fig tree and his personality did the rest. During the last days of the campaign he went over practically the same ground and made many speeches. O'Hair explained that he was handicapped because the district had long been organized so that the heavy Republican counties of the north outweighed the several Democratic counties to the south.

Earl Grey as Biographer

At one of the clubs the story is being told that Earl Grey, the distinguished Englishman, who was recently here in connection with fuel oil corporation matters, has contributed and still intends to contribute some memoranda and correspondence that is to be made use of in a proposed and authentic biography of the late King Edward. Whether the titled visitor made any direct statement to that effect, I do not know. A prominent Britisher and professional man is credited, however, with the statement to loan certain papers for use in a biographical story of King Edward's reign. It is known the earl has voiced the opinion that what has been written about the late king since his death has been unauthorized and in many cases distorted because of the limited general information of the authors and their incorrect and meagre knowledge on this or that subject. As the story runs, the earl is responsible for the statement that in due time a secretary of the late king will compile the data from a biography under the direction of King George and several of his intimate advisers. This particular book on the character and achievements of the late reign is expected to make its appearance within the next two years. As the clubman in question has asked me to suppress his name for fear of possible future embarrassments I simply set forth his statements in their bare outline. I know he dined with Earl Grey when he was here, there only being three at the table, and he is generally credited with knowing what he is talking about.

Heiress' Heart Doesn't Warm

One of the bridal attendants at the nuptials this week of William Roth of Honolulu and Miss Matson of this city was Miss Marguerite Doe of Santa Barbara, one of the great heiresses of California. Half a dozen eligible fellows in the north and south have been devoted suitors for the hand of this young lady but her intentions are still darkly wrapped in the future. Miss Doe has for some time been living quietly with her mother in a new and pretty home in Montecito Park, a choice residence section of the Santa Barbara county. Some tempting property on both sides of Market street at Ninth belong to the young woman, together with a lot of choice securities that make a pretty annual penny in the way of interest. A few there are who are quite dogmatic in asserting that Miss Doe is the wealthiest single girl in the state. Perhaps that may be but there are others who say they know she is about third in that very pleasant race or distinction. About a million dollars was offered for one of her unimproved properties about ten days ago. If I am not mistaken, I think it was declined by her agent. That gives some idea of what she possesses. Miss Doe has a pretty bungalow in the south where she spends most of her time. There it is where several of her ardent admirers are to be found. Some of them are without bank accounts and their matrimonial race is considered a hard one by those who have been observing that of late the Californian heiresses have all been selecting rich husbands.

Street Railway Monopoly

On several occasions since the city assumed the control and operation of the Geary street railroad, the Knave has speculated about when the time would come when there would be serious talk of a combination in some form between the municipally owned system and that of the United Railroads. That period has come at last and sooner than expected. This week President Jesse W. Lilienthal of the United Railroads Company has expressed interesting views on the subject. He perceived that eventually the city will own all the street roads, it gradually taking the United Railroads' lines as their franchises expired provided the theory is not accomplished sooner in some other way. His tentative plan is for the city in the near future to assume ownership, giving a separate company an indeterminate franchise to operate the United Railroads, the profits to be divided between the city and the holders of the United Railroads fair obligations or debts. Mayor Rolph and his influential advisers are more than interested in the willingness of Lilienthal for some sort of deal. What will be done cannot be foretold. But certain it is that whether any deal is made or not the United Railroads watered stock will have no financial value. Unquestionably the United Railroads' bonds, together with that it assumed when it was formed as a new combine of city roads, are just. Lilienthal, of course, wants these debts taken care of. As I have stated elsewhere, Brown Bros. and R. G. Hanford originally formed the United Railroads. They made a good profit. The new owners after them, Ladenburg, Thalmon & Co. and Patrick Calhoun have made little or no profit, strange as the statement may appear to some people, and their prospects as stockholders now are nil. But enough on that score. Lilienthal, who is much in the public eye at present, is the third president of the concern, Arthur Holland of New York having been the first under Brown Bros.; then came Calhoun. Lilienthal is a man of probity and ability. As a lawyer and financier, he is abreast of the times and has a high code of honor. E. R. Lilienthal, one of his brothers, is a very successful business man and is largely identified with the Northern Electric Railway. The late Philip N. Lilienthal of the old Anglo California Bank, was the third brother. He was killed in an accident after the 1906 fire. For years he was the best known of the three. William H. Crocker reflected the general opinion of him when in speaking of his untimely end he remarked: "San Francisco can ill afford to lose so good a citizen and honorable a man."

Educator Was State Maker

The sudden death of Dr. Joseph E. Stubbs, president of the University of Nevada, deeply grieves his many San Francisco and Oakland friends as well as the large following of friends and admirers he had all over Nevada. Dr. Stubbs had planned to retire as the head of the university in June of 1915. He and his brother, John C. Stubbs, the famous railroad traffic official now living in the old family home of Ashland, Ore., had arranged for a year's leisurely tour of the world in 1915 and 1916 after about a month ago. They contemplated starting from this part for the Orient a year from next August after spending five or six weeks in San Francisco to visit the exposition and study some of its many interesting features. A third brother died in Oakland several years ago. David D. Stubbs was his name, he being the youngest of the three. He was long connected with transpacific affairs out of this port. Unlike his brother John C. who went back after his retirement from business to the old Ohio home to live to please his wife, Dr. Stubbs intended after his retirement and world tour to spend the remainder of his days in Nevada. He went there about twenty years ago, helped in its modern development and was a strong believer in its future.

Woman May Foster Drama

The talented and socially dominant Mrs. William Miller Graham of Santa Barbara has been making her headquarters this week at the Fairmont. One of her friends tells me she is very busy completing arrangements for her ambitious and artistic scheme of having a new playhouse in the southern seaside town and resort, one that she and her close and sympathetic friends hope will be to Santa Barbara what the Little theater has been to New York. According to what is being said, Mrs. Miller's husband has provided most of the finances for the undertaking and David Belasco, the New York theatrical manager and successful playwright, has given her many valuable suggestions. It is even reported he will take the opportunity late next summer to visit the new theater and aid in some of its plays as a director for a week. So all in all the enterprise fairly promises to supply a high order of esthetic amusement for the large leisure and culture class in that vicinity. All of its members have faith in the ability of Mrs. Miller to develop the project to a complete fruition in every respect. And no doubt now none will be disappointed in view of the lady's knowledge of the theater in New York, Paris and London, and her former career in the British metropolis as a society leader whose functions took high rank for the character of the entertainments offered the guests.

THE KNAVE.

TO DIRECT MUSIC THROUGH MOVIES

Weingartner, E'en Though Banished, Can Still Wield Baton.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BERLIN, May 30.—Invention is about to mock the decree of a Prussian court which some three years ago made permanent an injunction restraining the famous Felix Weingartner from conducting an orchestra within a radius of thirty miles of Berlin. The local admirers of Weingartner, who gladly have been making the pilgrimage to Furstenwalde, a city just outside the forbidden circle, to see their idol conduct, are to see him again in Berlin concert halls leading an orchestra. He will not be present in flesh and blood, but by means of the cinematograph his animated picture will actually direct the orchestra.

The banishment of Weingartner came about through proceedings brought against him by Count Von Hulsen-Haeseler, director of the Royal Opera House, for breach of contract. Friends who shared his indignation suggested the idea of bringing the famous conductor back to Berlin on a moving picture film, but the cinematograph firms declared that technical difficulties of synchronization were insuperable. Eventually, however, experiments were made, employing one of the city's well known orchestras which was led by Weingartner at a picture. Weingartner Nikisch and other prominent conductors witnessed the experiments and declared them a complete artistic success.

The narrow canvas is stretched over the conductor's stand, and the audience sees his back while his face is turned toward the orchestra, making the illusion complete.

The idea makes it possible for the conductor himself to study his own picture in experiment until he secures an ideal manner of directing. It will also make possible for millions of music lovers to see the work of a conductor whom they might not otherwise see, and it will preserve for future generations every feature of these masters of their art. Nikisch says: "What tremendous thing it would have for this generation if it could see and hear how Richard Wagner conducted the notable presentation of the Ninth Symphony in Bayreuth forty years."

DANGERS OF RADIUM.

Physicians attending the use of [illegible] quite as much attention in Germany as the curative value of the substance.

At a recent Congress on Diseases of the Internal Organs, at Wiesbaden, Professor Werner of Heidelberg University declared that the difficulty of confining radium treatment to the diseased tissue made the use of radium dangerous in the treatment of cancer and other tumors. Instances had been noted where the radium attacked and destroyed healthy tissue and where preforations and bleedings followed. Ill effects were also sometimes caused if the diseased tissue treated by radium could not be removed. Poisonous changes might occur with fatal results. With cancerous growths in the mouth, larynx and throat, Professor Werner seldom found any permanent improvement through radium. Satisfactory results were obtained, however, in treating tumors of the thorax, and some were completely cured. There was also some improvement in diseases of the bladder, but no permanent cures. Tumors in the spleen, on the other hand, were most effectively treated with radioactive substances.

Professor de la Camp, of the University of Freiburg, reported at the same meeting that patients with tumors of the lungs had died after treatment by radium.

At a meeting of specialists for ear and throat diseases, held at Cologne, Dr. Cronenberg, the chairman, pointed out that while the association had not rejected radium, the experiments by various speakers had shown negative results. The treatment of deafness was discussed particularly and the reports were in the same negative catagory

ARCHBISHOP WAS BLACKSMITH.

Archbishop von Bettinger, of Munich, who is soon to be made a cardinal, is a man of very humble origin. His father was a poor blacksmith at Landstuhl in the Bavarian Palatinate, and the future cardinal spent a part of his early years at the forge with his father.

During his career as priest and bishop von Bettinger has taken an active interest in politics, zealously promoting the cause of the Clerical party. He was made Archbishop of Munich seven years ago and since then he has become a great favorite of the Bavarian court, and of Count von Hertling, the Prime Minister. His appointment caused much talk at first owing to the fact that the new Cardinal was to take rank, in all social functions at the court, in advance of all the Bavarian princes of the blood, this preference, however, was afterwards waived by the Pope, and now the princes are happier.

MUSIC PUPILS TO BE PRESENTED AT CONCERT

Mrs. E. M. Prentiss is arranging to present a number of her advanced students in a piano recital to be given in Kohler & Chase Hall, 16 O'Farrell street, San Francisco, on Thursday evening, June 4th, at 8 o'clock. The young ladies who will participate in the recital are Miss Maude C. King, Miss Almeta Z. Sutcliffe, Miss Mabel Gustafson, Mrs. F. C. Packard, Miss [illegible] E. Rose, Miss Marian Rogers and Miss Edna Hill. Miss Prentiss will assist at the second piano.

Two weeks ago the junior class appeared in recital, and children from 4 to 12 years of age displayed exceptional ability in tone work, technique and interpretation of difficult compositions. A large attendance is promised for the coming recital from both sides of the bay and friends and relatives are requested not to carry [illegible]

'PEG O' MY HEART' RUN IS CLOSED

Wonderful Success Shown in Near Record Season of Play.

NEW YORK, May 30.—One of the memorable events on Broadway, perhaps second only to the farewell appearance on the New York stage of Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson, occurs tonight at the Cort theater when Laurette Taylor closes her memorable sixty-seven weeks' run in "Peg O' My Heart." The remarkable staying qualities of that Oliver Morosco production is one of the most brilliant successes in New York's theatrical annals.

"Peg O' My Heart" was the first attraction in John Cort's playhouse in West Fortyeighth street, opening that theater on the night of Friday, December 20, 1912. With the exception of Good Fridays and Sundays, the touching Irish play has been presented every day from that date until tonight, its final repetition. With the closing performance, Miss Taylor will have done "Peg" six hundred and four times, exclusive of special performances, such as those given for benefits and one private performance given at the request of Mme. Sarah Barnhardt when she was in this country on her last vaudeville tour.

But while "Peg" has had a tremendous run, endearing herself to the hearts of millions, and has been the most successful play in the memory of this generation, the run is not a record run. Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown" had a run of 690 times at the Madison Square theater and "Adonis" ran 651 times at the Bijou theater.

"Love's Labor Lost" would be a far more fitting title than "A Scrap of Paper" for the Victorian Sardou piece utilized at the Empire to bring Uncle John Drew and Niece Ethel Barrymore together as co-stars after so many years. The fact is that "A Scrap of Paper" is hoary with age and green with mildew; it is ancient in plot, lines and business. It offers nothing whatever for the talents of Miss Barrymore and John Drew.

STARS NOT TO BLAME.

It was patent to those who saw the play that both stars worked their hardest to do something with the material given them but they made a sorry showing, for all that. Miss Barrymore was her usual self and Drew was as debonaire as ever, but notwithstanding, they could not "put it over."

Whatever the cause, whether it can be blamed on the movies or on the general blase of character of present day theatergoers, a mere name is growing to stand for less and less on Broadway.

This has been very noticeable in the fag end of this, "the worst season ever." Names, even the best of them, have not drawn. Take "A Scrap of Paper," for instance.

It bore the names of Ethel Barrymore and John Drew, old time favorites, but that could not make a successful run. Even Maude Adams, favorite that she is, could not attract her usual following. "The Legend of Leonora," while a charming farce, was too subtle for the average Broadway mind, and toward the end of that play's run the attendance was discouraging.

In brief, the time has come, and some of the astute managers realize it, when there is little in a name. It must have "the goods" behind it to make it go. The people want diversion and entertainment and they will not go where they do not get it.

"ELECTROCUTION" ENDS

New York theater goers are pretty wholesome minded folk, take them by and large, and they do not like the gruesome, especially in these first days of summer. They demonstrated this effectively at Hammerstein's when an alleged playlet called "Electrocution" died in its infancy. The audience, by their unmistakable signs of disgust and disapproval, killed the thing at the first public performance.

"Electrocution" was heralded as a sensational revelation, with a shock in it. Instead of that, it was only gruesome and insipid. It harrowed the feelings without giving the people something new to think about. A shock that galvanizes the public into new thought and action is commendable, but an unpleasant sensation that leaves no good in its wake is not to be tolerated. And it was not tolerated. "Electrocution" made its public debut at a matinee, after one private performance and it did not appear in the night bill.

MUTE BALKS POLICE; BURGLAR, NOT FAKER

NEW YORK, May 30.—Because the Jersey City police believed that Frank Wilson, arrested as a suspicious character yesterday, was not deaf and dumb, as he had written on a pad, they took him to the City Hospital and had the physicians prepare him, apparently, for an abdominal operation. Though he saw the glittering scalpels and other instruments, Wilson did not speak. Other tests were applied, but he still remained mute. Then he was taken to the Seventh Precinct police station, where Lieutenant William Maxwell got behind the man and fired his revolver near Wilson's feet. Wilson didn't budge, but a few seconds later looked around in surprise when he sniffed the smoke of the revolver.

The police then decided that Wilson really was deaf and dumb. He is twenty-[illegible] years old, and said he lived in New York, but gave no further address. After he was searched, and one of the skeleton keys found on him was tried in the door of the house in which he was arrested. Wilson was held on a charge of breaking and entering.

BAD TEMPERED GHOSTS COST BELIEVER $7500

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—Kelsey Marriott of East St. Louis, formerly postmaster at Browns, Ill., who filed suit yesterday in the St. Louis Circuit court to recover $3000 alleged to have been paid by him to Mrs. Augusta Pelinski of 4151 Kossuth avenue, a clairvoyant, said today that he had paid Mrs. Pelinski and other clairvoyants $7200 in all to locate a hidden treasure near Browns.

They did not locate the treasure and the reason they gave, he said, was that more money was needed to keep the spirits in good humor.

There is a tradition around Browns that more than a hundred years ago the Indians or the French buried $200,000, wrapped in a bearskin, in an open space at the foot of a hill between the timber and the bank of the Bonpas Creek. Marriott often heard the old residents talk about the treasure as they waited twelve miles away, who frequently drove into the case. They still have faith in for their mail. He had a friend, L. D. over in his automobile. They talked it the existence of the treasure, but their Leach, a business man of Golden Gate, over and decided to call a clairvoyant faith in clairvoyants is shattered

Newbro's Herpicide

Is the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff

WITHOUT dandruff the hair must grow as nature intended, except in chronic baldness, which is incurable. Dandruff is a contagious disease. To eradicate this contagion and keep it out of the scalp intelligent care and a suitable remedy are needed. We can supply only the remedy which is NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE.

A Woman to Be Pretty Must Have Pretty Hair

Beautiful locks have a subtle charm, for the poet says, "fair tresses man's imperial race ensnare." The unpoetic and intensely real dandruff contagion makes the hair dull, brittle and lusterless with later dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE eradicates this enemy of beauty and enables the hair to resume its natural luster and beauty.

Almost marvelous results sometimes follow the intelligent use of HERPICIDE. It overcomes excessive oiliness and makes the hair light and fluffy. HERPICIDE contains no grease or dye. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Discriminating ladies who have used NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE speak of it in the highest terms, for its almost magical effect upon the scalp, and also for its excellence as a regular hair dressing. It is delightfully fragrant and refreshing.

Send 10 cents in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Dept. 112B, Detroit, Michigan, for sample.

Two Sizes—50 cents and $1.00. Sold and guaranteed at all Toilet Goods Counters.

When you call for Herpicide, do NOT accept a substitute.

FREDERICK S. STRATTON ENDORSED BY NEARLY EVERY NEWSPAPER IN DISTRICT

Remarkable Showing Made by Candidate for the Appellate Court; Looks as Though He Will Be Elected by an Almost Unanimous Vote

The following excerpts from the Press in those counties composing the First Appellate District to the Judgeship of which Mr. Frederick S. Stratton of this city aspires, are herewith produced. Not more than one-half of the papers in the District can be referred to, and only a small portion of the laudatory comment of is taken from each. This is for the reason that to print the commendation would occupy the entire edition of THE TRIBUNE.

Attorney Stratton thus far has the united support of every paper published in Alameda county, Contra Costa county, Marin county, Monterey county, San Benito county, and San Mateo county, together with very favorable reference from most of the papers published in San Francisco, and in the other counties comprising the First Appellate District, without a single note of dissent [illegible] committee consisting of the leading attorneys of San Francisco and of Oakland, who have formed a committee in his behalf. The citizens of San Francisco and of Oakland, who have formed a committee in his behalf. The citizens of San Francisco have likewise formed a committee favoring his candidacy.

Perhaps the situation could be summarized in the language of Honorable Victor H. Metcalf, Secretary of the Navy under ex-President Roosevelt. In a letter dated May 24 addressed to Mr. Charles Eells, chairman of the attorneys' committee, he states as follows:

"Mr. Stratton is a man whom I hold in the highest esteem, and I not only think favorably of his candidacy but want to be enrolled as one of his warm, active supporters. He will, in my judgment, make an ideal judge and I do not think there will be any question as to his nomination and election. Do not hesitate to call on me at any time in Mr. Stratton's behalf."

The following are some of the excerpts:

Santa Cruz Sentinel, April 2, 1914.

Fred S. Stratton, former collector of customs in San Francisco, is a candidate for the bench in the first District Appellate Court, to succeed the late Associate Justice Samuel P. Hall.

Mr. Stratton was elected state senator from Alameda county in 1897. While in the legislature he succeeded in doubling the income of the University of California, introduced and secured the passage of the constitutional amendment exempting Stanford University from taxation and introduced and saw passed a constitutional amendment exempting churches from taxation. He helped draw the primary laws of California and always has taken a prominent part in the politics of this state. He was collector of customs in San Francisco from December 1, 1900, to August 18, 1912, being first named by President McKinley, twice appointed by President Roosevelt and reappointed by President Taft.

Stratton was a graduate of the first class of Hastings College of law and is a graduate of the University of California.

Martinez, Cal. Standard, April 4, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, for many years collector of the port of San Francisco and whose residence here is among the notable homes of this section, will be a candidate for appellate justice to succeed the late Samuel P. Hall.

This announcement is made by his friends and confirmed by Mr. Stratton. It was because of the urging of his friends that he has consented to make the race for the appellate bench.

Senator Stratton before becoming collector of port under President McKinley in 1900 served as a state senator for two terms. It was while a member of the state legislature, and he introduced the constitutional amendment which exempts Stanford University from taxation and exempts church property from assessments.

Before taking the position of collector of port Mr. Stratton was a law partner of Judge Morrow. He is a Californian and was graduated from the University of California with the class of '81. Other members of the class who have become prominent are Attorney Seth Mann and W. B. Storey, vicepresident of the Santa Fe Railroad.

He was the author of the Stratton primary act while in the state senate.

The Antioch Ledger, April 4, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, former collector of port, San Francisco, is a candidate for judge of the Appellate Court, and being first in the field, will no doubt be one of the leading figures for that position, as he has an excellent political record and also possesses judicial ability.

Martinez Cal., Gazette, April 2, 1914.

Mr. Stratton is a candidate for judge of the Appellate Court and will unquestionably make a strong fight.

Concord, Cal., Transcript, April 9, 1914.

Hon. Frederick S. Stratton of Oakland, collector of port of San Francisco during the administrations of President McKinley, President Roosevelt and President Taft, and one of the most eminent and popular attorneys in the state, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the California district court of appeals, first appellate district.

Attorney Stratton is a native of Oakland and by education and training is familiar with every phase of the legal structure of California. He is well and favorably known in Contra Costa county, as he owns a farm at Alamo, where he spends much of his time.

Livermore Herald, April 8, 1914.

The Honorable Frederick S. Stratton, who was collector of port of San Francisco during the administrations of President McKinley, President Roosevelt and President Taft, following a lengthy legislative career, has announced his candidacy for the seat on the bench of the district court of appeals now occupied by Judge John E. Richards of San Jose under appointment of Governor Johnson to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Samuel P. Hall of this county.

Mr. Stratton is a lawyer of fine ability and possesses the judicial temperament to a high degree. He long ago demonstrated as a legislator his inherent honesty. He would make an ideal justice.

Courier, Walnut Creek, Cal., April 9, 1914.

The Honorable Frederick S. Stratton, collector of the port of San Francisco during the administrations of Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, and one of the most eminent and popular attorneys in the state, is a candidate for a seat on the bench of the California District Court of Appeals, First appellate district. Mr. Stratton has purchased a home in our beautiful San Ramon Valley and thus become one of us and it was with pleasure that his admirers signed the petitions asking for his appointment to the post.

He has entered the race for the place occupied by Associate Justice John E. Richards of San Jose, who was appointed by Governor Hiram W. Johnson to fill the vacancy created by the death of Associate Justice Samuel P. Hall of Oakland. [illegible] in San Francisco and includes the east bay district in its jurisdiction.

Being a native of the Golden Sate by education and legal training familiar with every phase of the legal structure of California, Attorney Stratton is considered by his host of friends and admirers to be particularly qualified for the judicial office he is seeking from the electorate. He was born in Oakland and has seen the present beautiful and progressive city grow from a comparatively straggling village. He was educated in the old Swett grammar school, the Oakland [illegible] California, graduating from the last named institution with high honors in the class of '81. He worked his way through the university, earning from $18 to $25 a month setting type in a newspaper office.

Stratton's first law partner was W. C. Morrow, at present judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco; and he is a brother of Professor George M. Stratton, head of the department of philosophy of the University of California, and of Dr. R. T. Stratton, a prominent physician of Oakland. Immediately following the catastrophe of 1906 Stratton was appointed a member of the Red Cross committee of San Francisco and the Oakland relief committee of San Francisco and the Oakland relief committee, and in this capacity assisted largely in the distribution of $14,000,000 for the relief of the sufferers of the terrible calamity. Stratton is a member of the order of the Native Sons of the Golden West and keeps up active interest in the welfare of the State University. He is a prominent member of the alumni of that institution and has the distinction of having been twice honored by an offer from President Roosevelt of the assistant secretaryship of the United States Treasury, which he felt constrained to refuse because he had no desire to leave his home for Washington society.

In 1897, Stratton went to the state senate from Alameda county and while he was a member of the California legislature he was the father of many important measures. This was his advent into political life, and from the date of his election as a senator until his retirement from the federal office he recently surrendered, Stratton's record was one of distinguished public service based upon progressive ideas and marked by unflinching integrity and unswerving fidelity to the public. While serving in the legislature Attorney Stratton put through the measure which doubled the State University tax from one cent to two, thus providing a substantially increased revenue with which to build up the university to its present gigantic proportions. He also wrote and put through the bill which exempted Stanford University from taxation and wrote and fathered the bill which established in California primary elections. Afterwards he drafted every amendment to this law passed by the legislature up to 1909, and also all the constitutional amendments necessary to meet the new order in the election laws through their evolution to the direct primary law ever introduced in the legislature and which, after many amendments, finally developed into the present measure.

Stratton has always been a Republican of the progressive type, and during his political career he has trained with the champions of liberal government. He was the leader in the movement which defeated Daniel M. Burns for the United States Senate, thus directing a political fight that since has become memorable in the history of the State because of the far reaching benefits that have been derived from that contest. He also was the author of the legislative measure twice introduced and finally passed which exempted church property from taxation in this State, and throughout his entire [illegible] was necessary constantly to draw upon his knowledge of the law in the discharge of his duties.

As collector of the port of San Francisco his work for the most part was judicial in character, he having to decide practically all questions officially submitted to him according to the law of the land. And during all of this period he took an active part in the business of his law firm so that at no time was he ever inclined or permitted to become lax in legal research. By temperament Attorney Stratton is as well qualified for judicial duties as he is by ability and study.

When the first announcement was made that United States Senator George C. Perkins would not try for re-election, Stratton's friends asked him to become a candidate for the toga, but he refused to consider the matter. Then when Representative Joseph R. Knowland came out for the senate delegations of Stratton's admirers and friends called on him and insisted that he enter the race for congressman.

Again he declined the invitation, making it clear again that Washington life possessed absolutely no charms for him. This spring his persistent friends suggested that he should become a candidate for the bench of the State supreme court, but again Stratton declined, giving as his reason that he preferred to remain at home. When these same friends proposed his candidacy for the appellate bench, which would keep him among his neighbors and with his family, Stratton took kindly to the proposition and after consultation with his law partners and other advisors he decided to make the race.

"In view of the fact that the office I am seeking," said Stratton today, "would be most congenial to me, I have decided to make the race."

Hayward, Cal., Journal, April 14, 1914.

Hon. Fred S. Stratton of Oakland, is a candidate for a seat on the bench of the California district court of appeals, first appellate district. He is eminently qualified for the position, and being one of the best known public men in the State will have strong backing.

Hayward, Cal., Review, April 17, 1914.

Hon. Fred S. Stratton of Oakland is a candidate for a judicial position on the bench of the appellate court. He has a host of friends in this end of the county who would be glad to see him on the bench.

San Jose Times-Star, April 18, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, collector of the port of San Francisco for 13 years, during the administration of McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, has announced his candidacy for judge of the first appellate district, California district court of appeals. This position is at present held by John E. Richards, of San Jose, who was appointed by Governor Johnson to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Samuel P. Hall of Oakland.

The election will be held in November and Mr. Stratton already has begun a vigorous campaign throughout the eight counties included in the first appellate district. These counties are San Francisco, Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Fresno, San Benito and Monterey.

Fred S. Stratton, one of the most distinguished public men of California, who years ago was associated with Judge Morrow in the practice of law, and who has been Collector of the Port of San Francisco during the administration of Presidents McKinley Roosevelt and Taft, has announced himself a candidate for a seat on the bench of California, District Court of Appeals, First Appellate district. The court to which he aspires sits in San Francisco, and includes the east bay district in its jurisdiction. He is without doubt one of the best-known public men of our state, possessing exceptional ability for the office, and his candidacy is given most enthusiastic support in our valley.

Santa Clara (Cal.) Journal, April 22, 1914.

Hon. Frederick S. Stratton of Oakland, Collector of the Port of San Francisco during the administrations of President McKinley, President Roosevelt and President Taft, and one of the most eminent and popular attorneys in the state, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the bench of the California District Court of Appeals, First District. Mr. Stratton has been active in public life in the bay cities and at Sacramento since he became a member of the Senate in 1897, and during all these years through that incumbency and as Collector of the Port, his public work has been distinguished by progressive ideas and marked by unflinching integrity and unswerving fidelity to his trust. His experience as one of the leading lawyers in the country fits him eminently for the position he seeks. The first appellate court sits in San Francisco, and includes the east and bay districts, a territory which Mr. Stratton calls home, whose judicial cases he can competently handle because of his familiarity with conditions contingent upon the work.

Berkeley (Cal.) Gazette, April 23, 1914.

A meeting of attorneys favoring the nomination and election of Frederick S. Stratton for judge of the First District Court of Appeals, was held recently in San Francisco. Stratton was not present at the meeting, but sent a communication in which he stated that he would make his contest in a dignified manner, and wholly along non-partisan lines.

Stratton was graduated from the University of California with the class of '81 and was formerly collector of customs. He has also served as State Senator from this district, and is a brother of Professor George M. Stratton and father-in-law of Professor Carleton H. Parker, both of the University of California faculty.

An executive committee of thirty-five was selected who indicated in writing their acceptance of the trust on behalf of the bar of San Francisco, and an executive committee of fifteen also was selected on behalf of the bar of Alameda County, their written consent likewise being given. Charles P. Eells was elected chairman of the meeting.

The executive committee selected on behalf of the San Francisco bar favorable to Stratton was: Warren Gregory, Charles F. Eells, Seth Mann, Frank Otis, T. C. Coogan, J. C. Campbell, Oliver Ellsworth, Henry Eickhoff, Milton J. Green, Frederick W. Hall, John S. Partridge, Oscar Sutro, ex-judge Ralph C. Harrison, William H. Gorrill, H. A. Powell, [illegible] Frank P. Deering and Warren Olney, Sr.

On behalf of Alameda county, the names are: Ex-Judge John Ellsworth, W. A. Dow, J. W. Clark, George W. Reed, Robert E. Fitzgerald, Cary Howard, Sam Bell McKee, Arthur G. Tasheira, William R. Davis, Harmon Bell, M. C. Chapman, Abe P. Leach, eGorge D. Metcalf, Edward K. Taylor, George T. Wright.

The appeal to the citizens and to the members of the bar will be made altogether through the executive committees as named.

Richmond (Cal.) Record-Herald, April 23.

A meeting of many attorneys favorable to the nomination and election of Frederick S. Stratton to the District Court of Appeals, First District, short or unexpired term, was held in San Francisco last evening. Mr. Stratton was not present, but sent a letter in which he stated that he would make his contest in a dignified manner and wholly along non-partisan lines.

Further, while citizens might express, as they have, their preference, no clubs would be organized, as such action might be misunderstood. An executive committee of twenty was selected who indicated in writing their acceptance of the trust on behalf of the bar of San Francisco, and an executive committee of fifteen also was selected on behalf of the bar of Alameda county, their written consent likewise being given. Charles P. Eells was elected chairman of the meeting.

The executive committee selected on behalf of the San Francisco bar favorable to Mr. Stratton was: Warren Gregory, Charles P. Eells, Seth Mann, Frank Otis, T. C. Coogan, J. C. Powell, William Thomas, Alexander T. Vogelsang, Frank P. Deering, Warren Olney Sr.

On behalf of Alameda county the names are: Ex-Judge John Ellsworth, W. A. Dow, J. W. Clark, George W. Reed, Robert E. Fitzgerald Cary Howard, Sam Bell McKee, Harmon Bell, M. C. Chapman, Abe P. Leach, George D. Metcalf, Edward K. Taylor, George T. Wright.

The appeal to the citizens and to the members of the bar will be made altogether through the executive committees as named.

Richmond (Cal.) Independent, April 22.

Fred S. Stratton, formerly Collector of the Port of San Francisco, and now seeking to have the voters of this district place him on the appellate court bench for this district, states that the judgeship fight will be a dignified one under the new law as the candidates will be non-partisan.

Alameda (Cal.) Times-Star and Argus, April 24, 1914.

The recent announcement of the candidacy of Frederick S. Stratton of Oakland for a seat on the bench of the California District Court of Appeals, First Appellate District, which was given place in the Times-Star, has served to call forth many remarks in Mr. Stratton's favor. He has a large number of personal friends in Alameda who are quietly urging his campaign onward.

The position he seeks being judicial he will make a non-partisan campaign for it.

Stratton is a native-born son of Alameda County, Cal., and gained his education in the public schools, high school of Oakland and University of California. He served as State Senator. Then he was appointed by President McKinley Collector of the Port of San Francisco, being reappointed by Roosevelt and Taft. That position is largely judicial in its duties, and Stratton's regime was a success according to general verdict of the entire Mercantile community. That he will prove to be an able and efficient Justice of the Court of Appeals is the confident belief of all who know the man and his equipment for duties of such position.

Eastern Contra Costa Herald, April 24, 1914.

Hon. Frederick S. Stratton has announced his candidacy for a seat on the bench of the California District Court of Appeals, First Appellate District. He has entered the race for the place occupied by Associate Justice John E. Richards of San Jose, who was appointed by Governor Hiram W. Johnson to fill the vacancy created by the death of Associate Justice Samuel P. Hall of Oakland. The court to which he aspires sits in San Francisco and includes the east bay district in its jurisdiction.

Respecting this gentleman, a county exchange says: "Mr. Stratton could have been governor of California had he been willing to accept the nomination of the dominant politicians of the time on their terms; but he had too much honor to become the state's executive as the vassal of such lords. As collector of the port of San Francisco, which he held since the days of McKinley, he demonstrated his administrative qualities and inaugurated many reforms which accrued to the improvement of public service. He was born in Oakland, reared in its schools and is a graduate of the State University. He is in part a Contra Costan, for he has a beautiful country home at Alamo, where he finds enjoyment in the yeomanry of tilling the earth. He measures much like W. C. Van Fleet, the upright occupant of the federal bench and as a member of the appellate bench he will be in position to enforce regard for the law from those who are over-zealous in its enforcement as well as those who infringe upon its limitations.

Richmond (Cal.) Terminal, April 24, 1914.

Hon. Fred S. Stratton, able jurist and a good fellow, well and favorably known in the bay cities, stands a fair chance of being elected to the District Court of Appeals, First District, for the short, or unexpired, term. His friends predict his nomination and election.

Fresno (Cal.) Republican, April 24, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton has announced his candidacy for the short term on the First District Court of Appeals. He is a son of former Surveyor General Stratton and was one of the early graduates of the Hastings Law School. He became associated in the practice of law with Judge Morrow and Judge Latimer, prior to his appointment as collector and also served a term in the state legislature from Alameda.

He has announced that in this campaign the letter and spirit of the new law is to be observed and it will be a strictly non-partisan campaign. Stratton is well known and admired in Oakland, where he makes his home.

Santa Clara (Cal.) News, April 28, 1914.

F. S. Stratton, collector of the port at San Francisco for the past thirteen years, is a candidate for Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals. This office takes in eight counties, including Santa Clara. Mr. Stratton was a member of the Senate for four years and father of the Stratton primary law.

Santa Cruz Evening News, April 27, 1914.

Hon. Frederick S. Stratton of Oakland, collector of the port of San Francisco during the administration of President McKinley, President Roosevelt and President Taft, and one of the most eminent and popular attorneys in the state, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the bench of the California District Court of Appeals, First Appellate District. He has entered the race for the place occupied by Associate Justice John E. Richards of San Jose, and was appointed by Governor Hiram W. Johnson to fill the vacancy created by the death of Associate Justice Samuel P. Hall of Oakland. The court to which he aspires sits in San Francisco and includes the east bay district in its jurisdiction.

He was born in Oakland and has seen [illegible] lage. He was educated in the old Swett grammar school, the Oakland High school and the University of California, graduating from the last-named institution with high honors in the class of '81. He worked his way through the university, earning from $18 to $25 a month setting type in a newspaper office.

Stratton's first law partner was W. C. Morrow, at present judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in San Francisco, and afterward he formed the law firm of Stratton, Kaufman & Tor- [illegible] partner continuously. He is a brother of Prof. George M. Stratton, head of the department of philosophy of the University of California, and Dr. R. T. Stratton, prominent physician of Oakland. Immediately following the catastrophe of 1906, Stratton was appointed a member of the Red Cross committee of San Francisco and the Oakland relief committee and in this capacity assisted largely in the distribution of $14,000,000 for relief of the sufferers of this terrible calamity. Stratton is a member of the order of the Native Sons of the Golden West and keeps up active interest in the welfare of the State University. He is a prominent member of the alumni of that institution and has the distinction of having been twice honored by an offer from President Roosevelt of the assistant secretaryship of the United States Treasury, which he felt constrained to refuse because he had no desire to leave his home for Washington society.

In 1897 Stratton went to the State Senate from Alameda county and while he was a member of the California Legislature he was the father of many important measures.

As collector of the port of San Francisco his work for the most part was judicial in character, he having to decide practically all questions officially submitted to him according to the law of the land. And during all of the period he took an active part in the business of his law firm, so that at no time was he ever inclined or permitted to become lax in legal research. By temperament Attorney Stratton is as well qualified for judicial duties as he is by ability and study.

San Rafael (Cal.) Tocsin, May 9, 1914.

Fred S. Stratton of the law firm of Stratton, Kaufman & Torchiana, a former partner of Judge W. C. Morrow of this city, and for many years collector of the port of San Francisco, has announced himself as a candidate for a seat on the bench of the California District Court of Appeals for the First Appellate District. He has entered the race for the place now occupied by Associate Justice John E. Richards of San Jose, who was appointed by Governor Johnson to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Associate Justice S. P. Hall. The court to which he aspires sits in San Francisco and includes Marin county in its jurisdiction. Mr. Stratton is regarded as one of the most learned lawyers in the state and is eminently qualified for the position to which he aspires.

Watsonville (Cal.) Pajaronian, May 13, 1914.

Hon. Frederick S. Stratton, ex-collector of he port of San Francisco, and candidate for one of the judges of the Appellate Court, First District, is a prominent attorney of the metropolis and stands high with all who know him.

Watsonville (Cal.) Register, May 13, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton has announced his candidacy for the District Court of Appeals. The executive committee favorable to the election of Mr. Stratton to the bench includes some of the best known lawyers of California. The district comprising the jurisdiction of the court includes Alameda, Contra Costa, Monterey, San Mateo, San Francisco, Santa Cruz, Fresno, Marin, Santa Clara and San Benito counties. In all of these counties Mr. Stratton is well and favorably known. He is the receiver of the Ocean Shore Railroad.

Until recently Mr. Stratton was collector of the port at San Francisco, serving during four Republican administrations. He is a native of Californa, and has received a thorough legal training.

Salinas (Cal.) Index, May 13, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, a prominent attorney of San Francisco and Oakland, is a candidate for judge of the Appellate Court, First District, and is highly recommended for the position by many of the prominent members of the California bar. Mr. Stratton has served as collector of customs of the port of San Francisco for twelve years. He was first appointed by President McKinley, was reappointed by President Roosevelt and again by President Taft. It is a matter of record that his construction of the statutes and of the departmental rules governing his office were to the last degree, fair and just, and when his decisions were appealed they were uniformly upheld. His qualifications for the bench are conceded and his election would be a deserved tribute to an able lawyer and a worthy gentleman.

Hollister (Cal.) Free Lance, May 13, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, predecessor of J. O. Davis, as collector of the port of San Francisco, has announced his candidacy for judge of the First District Court of Appeals. This district includes Alameda, Contra Costa, Monterey, San Mateo, Santa Cruz, Fresno, Marin, San Francisco, Santa Clara and San Benito counties and Mr. Stratton is personally well known throughout the state.

He is already a prominent and well known figure in California, both in official circles and in private life, for in addition to holding the office of customs collector at San Francisco for thirteen years, he served in the State Senate from Alameda county a number of years ago. Mr. Stratton is a member of the law firm of Stratton, Kaufman & Torchiana of San Francisco and he was formerly associated with Judge Morrow and Judge Latimer in the practice of law.

Mr. Stratton is suited for the position he seeks, both in legal knowledge and experience, and his personal success in life has placed him above any financial influence that might be wielded upon a less fortunate member of the judiciary.

In seeking the office of judge of the District Court of Appeals, Mr. Stratton is making a personal sacrifice, as he had planned to go into retirement following [illegible] insistence of those who are familiar with his life history and qualificatons has caused him to announce his candidacy for the position.

Salinas (Cal.) Journal, May 14, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, until recently collector at the port of San Francisco and formerly State Senator from Alameda county, has announced that he is a candidate for the bench of the First District Court of Appeals, short term. Fred Stratton has long been prominent in Alameda county politics and his standing as a lawyer is acknowledged. His judicial ability and integrity were fairly tested as collector of the port. He was a law partner of William W. Morrow of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals until Judge Morrow was appointed to that bench. Mr. Stratton's aspirations are worthy of consideration.

Frederick S. Stratton, candidate for the judge of the appellate court, first district, is prominently known in political circles throughout California, having been appointed collector of customs of San Francisco by Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. He is running on his record as an official, on his record as an attorney and confidently expects strong support at the polls in the election.

Santa Cruz, Cal., Surf, May 14, 1914.

Frederick S. Stratton, former collector of the port of San Francisco and candidate for judge of the district court of appeals, is well known throughout the State, and has many friends in this city. At present he is the receiver for the Ocean Shore railroad and is practicing law in San Francisco.

Hollister, Cal., Bee, May 15, 1914.

Mr. Frederick S. Stratton is a candidate for nomination to the office of judge of the first district court of appeals, which includes this county.

He is a lawyer of great prominence and for 12 years was collector of customs in San Francisco. Before Judge Morrow was elevated to the federal bench he was his associate. In politics he is a Republican, and was a leader in the movement that led to the memorable defeat of Dan M. Burns for the United States Senate. Mr. Stratton is a native son, his father having been surveyor general at one time, and is endorsed by the best elements at the bar for his integrity, his legal knowledge and his sense of fairness.

Boulder Creek, Cal., Echo, May 15, 1914.

Hon. Frederick S. Stratton, formerly collector of the port of San Francisco under President Taft, is now a candidate for the nomination for appellate judge for this district to succeed the late Judge Hall, whose unexpired term is now being filled by Judge John E. Richards of San Jose. Mr. Stratton has a long and good record to his credit as a public official.

Gilroy, Cal., Advocate, May 16, 1914.

Mr. Frederick S. Stratton is a candidate for the place occupied by Judge John E. Richards of San Jose, who was appointed by Governor Hiram W. Johnson to fill the vacancy created by the death of Associate Justice Hall of Oakland. Mr. Stratton is a prominent attorney of San Francisco, and is endorsed by some of the most eminent men in the State.

Gilroy, Cal., Evening Gazette, May 21, 1914.

F. S. Stratton is a candidate for judge of the first district court of appeals for the short term. Mr. Stratton makes a good impression on the public and we know of no reason why he should not receive the hearty support of all parties for this non-partisan position. In both legal knowledge and experience Mr. Stratton is well fitted for the position he seeks and his success in life has placed him beyond the reach of financial interference.

Martinez, Cal., Standard, May 21, 1914.

It is a gratifying sign of the advance in political evolution when a man of the caliber of Frederick S. Stratton seeks place on the bench of the appellate court. He measures large in the election reforms that have been wrought in this State, to the discomfiture of the crooked politicians and bribe paying corporations. He was the author of the Stratton primary act, which he introduced while a member of the State Senate from Oakland, that put the rock rollers out of commission and the heeler into limbo and the citizen into possession of his own.

He was fought by every political jugler in the State, but against them all he forced legislature to put his measure on the statute books. On his retirement from politics he entered into legal practice, the best and cleanest of it, and not political skull-duggery. Mr. Stratton could have been Governor of California had he been willing to accept the nomination of the dominant politicians of the time on their terms, but he had too much honor to become the State's executive as the vassal of such lords.

As collector of the port of San Francisco which he held since the days of McKinley he demonstrated his administrative qualities, and inaugurated many reforms which accrued to the improvement of public service. He was born in Oakland, reared in its schools and is a graduate of the State university. He is in part a Contra Costan for he has a beautiful country home at Alamo where he finds enjoyment in the yeomanry of tilling the earth. He measures much like W. C. Van Fleet, the upright occupant of the Federal bench and as a member of the appellate bench he will be in position to enforce regard for the law from those who are over-zealous in its enforcement as well as those who infringe upon its limitations.

"GREEN MIKE" STATUE GUARDS CITY HALL

"Green Mike" isn't as undignified as his name, given him by the police department, sounds. He was placed, this week, on the lamp post before the City Hall, on Washington street, and stands with wings outspread, as if guarding the building.

"Green Mike" is a bronze figure of an angel, with wings erect, and a sword, presented as if toward any intruder approaching the building. He was fashioned after a well-known statue in a Paris gallery, and surmounts the most elaborate lamp cluster in the city's street light service, there being five lamps in the cluster. The bronze has turned green with the weather.

WOMAN TURNS ON GAS IN QUEST OF DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Ill and despondent, Mrs. George Kutsch, 45 years of age, of 4040 Twenty-sixth street, turned on the gas early this morning and was found in an unconscious state. She was taken to the Central Emergency Hospital and has a chance of recovery. The woman's husband is at present in Portland and she has been worrying over his absence. Mrs. Kutsch has three daughters, two of whom were at home at the time.

SCROFULA ALL OVER BOY'S BODY

Around Mouth, Ears, Eyes, Arms and Legs. Big, Dry, Leathery Blotches, Always Angry Red. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Plummer, Idaho.—"My boy broke out with sores all over his body. It was called scrofula. It seemed to be mostly around his mouth, ears and just above his eyes, then on his little arms and legs. As it went along it got to be dry mattery sores and they left big dry leathery blotches just such as a big burn would make, always angry red. He would try and scratch himself and then it would leave big dry scabs and be burning and red. We had to keep him wrapped up in soft linen on account of the irritation. He was very fretful, more so at night.

"I tried all kinds of powders and washes, also did all I was told and it would only relieve him a short while and come right back again. He was about eleven months old when I first got the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed him twice a day, used the Cuticura Soap freely, patted him dry, then used the Cuticura Ointment. After the second day I noticed he was not so fretful so I began to hope. We began to sleep at night. By the time he was eighteen months old all blemishes had disappeared and he was cured." (Signed) Mrs. C. M. Davis, Aug. 19, 1913.

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry thin and falling hair and remove crusts, scales and dandruff, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most effective, agreeable and economical. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuousity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your drugstores keep these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror.

Genuine Heroes.

All but blood will tell! It takes a real thoroughbred to face death without a whimper. The cur whines and the coward sobs when the Grim Fellow beckons with irrevocable finger, but your genuine man looks him square in the eye and passes to his fate without a murmur, ofttimes with a smile. Glory be for the indomitable spirit that exists in the hearts of those who can look on Death without a tremor; who can face the King of Terrors without fear. Allusion is made in the first instance to Lawrence Irving, actor and son of the late Sir Henry Irving, who, with his wife, perished in the disaster on the lower St. Lawrence, when the ill-fated Empress of Ireland went to the bottom with approximately 1000 souls on board. Read the story of a brave man's fate and doff your hats in respect for the memory of one who faced his end with all the fortitude that has characterized the best men of this old world from the faint dawn of speech to the attainment of the higher faculties.

ing to save his wife, who perished with him.

"I met him first in the passage-way," Abbott said, "and he said calmly, 'Is the boat going down?' I said it looked like it.

"'Dearie,' Irving then said to his wife, 'Hurry, there is no time to lose.'

"Mrs. Irving began to cry and as the actor reached for a life belt the boat suddenly lurched and he was thrown against the door of his cabin. His face was bloody and Mrs. Irving became frantic.

"'Keep cool; keep cool,' he warned her, but she persisted in holding her arms around him. He forced the life belt over her and pushed her out of the door. He then practically carried her upstairs. I asked if I could help and Irving said, 'Look after yourself first, old man, but God bless you all the same.'"

Abbott said he left the two, man and wife, struggling. Abbott got on deck and dived overboard. He caught hold of a piece of timber and looked around. Irving by this time was on the deck. He was kissing his wife. As the ship went down, they were clasped in each other's arms.

Magnificent! Magnificent! An end more glorious than that of the soldier falling at the instant of victory with the bugles singing a song of triumph on his dulling ear and the colors of the flag painting a picture for his dimming eyes! The one is inspired by the passion of the hour, the frenzy of the fight, the glory of the moment, the other has nothing to sustain him but the compensation of the thought that he is dying in an effort to save a loved one. Who says that peace hath not a victory even more renowned than those achieved on the field of slaughter?

And then this man, Sir Henry Seton-Karr. There was another who deserves immortal fame. Listen to this story by a survivor:

> M. Darling was saved by a life belt that might have saved Sir Henry Seton-Karr. "My cabin was opposite Sir Henry," said Darling, "and when I opened my door we bumped into each other in the passage-way. He had a life belt and he offered it to me. I refused it, but he said, 'Go on, old man; take it and I will get another.'
>
> "I told him to save himself, but he got angry and actually forced the belt over me. He then hurried me along the corridor to the door. Apparently he went back for another belt, but a moment or two after he had left me the ship went down. I was picked up."

Equally sublime was the death of this man. Bare your heads in reverence for them and thank Infinity that you belong to the same race, for they were heroes both and as such entitled to the greatest reverence.

Useless Legislation on Eggs.

A State Senator of Rhode Island has prepared a bill compelling all dealers to label cold storage and fresh eggs so that buyers can readily discern the difference. What a tedious process!

Why do these sapient easterners refrain from turning their eyes westward occasionally and thus avoid trying to cure all the ills to which the flesh is heir by legislative enactment—although candor compels the statement we of California are not prepared to shy any bricks on this account—and from the inventive genius on the western slope learn greater wisdom?

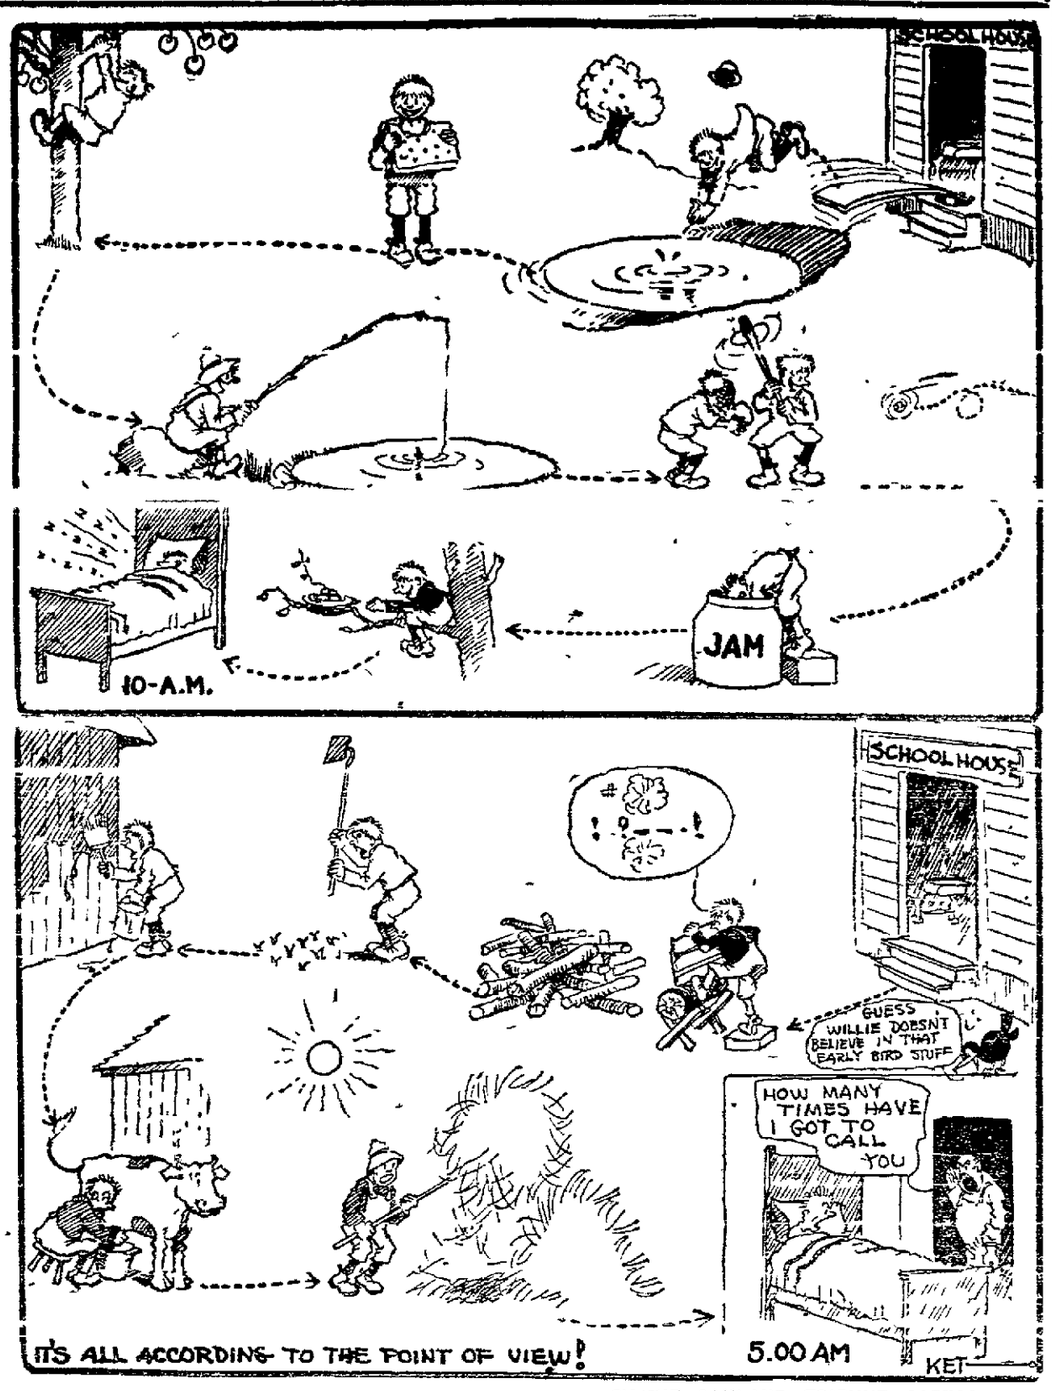
This query is prompted by the receipt of information from New Almaden, in Santa Clara county, a neighborhood famous for its immense production of quicksilver, where a person of the euphonious name of Tom Grimes—not Thomas. Tom—has perfected an apparatus, the use of which automatically dates each egg as laid—unless perchance the biddy "steals her nest" somewhere out of reach of its influence. This device—a patent for which it is understood application will soon be made—provides for a separate nesting place for each hen, which is connected with the machine—the nest, not the hen—and the moment the egg is laid it is seized gently, but firmly and stamped in manner something like this: "Laid by Brown Speck, 11:14 a. m., May 25, 1914" in indelible letters, thus furnishing a record that cannot be disputed. Or if it is desired to number the fowls instead of naming them the inscription would be "Leghorn E-28, May 25, 1914, 10:04 a. m." or something similar.

Here we have something practical, something calculated to protect the seller and the purchaser—not to mention the hen—it is understood that with the birth of each cackleberry the fowl is "rung up" all the same as transactions on a cash register and at the end of the season the record is complete.

In the light of the conditions mentioned, why rely on legislation [illegible] problem in an intelligent manner?

We are glad Mr. Grimes has invented this device and with its [illegible] he predicts for him a fame greater than that achieved by Rip Van Winkle in the old song, "The Good Old Man [illegible] An Old Great Coat All Buttoned Down [illegible]

WILLIE'S VACATION



Pioneer Merchant Called to Rest.

Thousands of Californians will mourn the passing of Samuel N. Wood, pioneer merchant of Oakland and San Francisco, notwithstanding the fact that he was an old man and death was not altogether unexpected. For he was one of the old Californians of early days and by thrift and industry built up a business that meant much for the State.

Mr. Wood came here in 1856. He did not join in the rush to the mines as did thousands, but established a mercantile business for the furnishing of supplies for those who elected to engage in the work of wresting the hidden treasures from the earth. It was in the early sixties that he opened a great business house in San Francisco, wholesale in its character and in 1893 he founded the establishment on Market street bearing his name. He continued in trade until the great fire, where he suffered losses, but he did not hesitate to resume and in addition branched out in this city. Through life he manifested great ability and his dealings with his fellowmen were marked by the strictest integrity.

He was one of the rugged characters to whom California owes in a large measure its present stability and prosperity, for he and his companions may be credited with having laid the real foundations of a great State. These old men are becoming fewer and fewer as time passes, and when one falls asleep after a life of toil it is but natural that those who have watched and profited by their careers should express their regrets.

SOAPSTONE AND TALC

The United States leads the world in the production of two very useful minerals—talc and soapstone—both of which are closely allied in their composition. Much of the joy and comfort as well as the success of life depends on the use of talc to smooth the rough places and lessen friction of all kinds. The cool and soothing toilet powder used by nearly everybody from the cradle to the grave is made of talc, which also absorbs grease from silks and other fabrics, bleaches cotton cloth and cleans up things generally.

The largest amount of talc, however, is used in the manufacture of paper of many kinds, from roofing to writing paper, not simply to give it body and weight but to improve the quality of the paper, give it a smooth finish, and make it better adapted to receive printing ink.

The demand for talc is steadily growing in the United States and the production has responded. The total output of talc in this country in 1913, according to the United States geographical survey report, was 149,271 tons, valued at $1,280,020, a gain of nearly 12 per cent. in quantity and more than 18 per cent. in value as compared with that of 1912. New York is not only the banner state in the production of talc but in 1913 it had the largest output of its history, exceeding by 10,000 tons the largest previous annual production.

With the exception of a small amount (952 tons) produced in California, the entire output of talc in the United States comes from a comparatively narrow belt of crystalline rocks running through the Atlantic States from New York to Georgia.

Soapstone is used for making laundry tubs, griddles, and the like, and the industry is for the most part distinct from the talc industry, although one company in Virginia produces both soapstone and talc. Four states—Rhode Island, North Carolina, Vermont and Virginia—produces soapstone but Virginia, with six producers, has an output many times as large as all the others combined. The total output of soapstone in this country in 1913 was 26,562 tons, valued at $628,077. This is a gain of 581 tons in quantity, and $18,597 in value over that of 1912.

[illegible] soapstone, but some talc is imported from Canada and a small amount is exported. With large supplies of talc and soapstone and an increasing demand the talc and soapstone industry is likely to experience continued expansion for some time to come although keen competition is greatly reducing the profits.

TO RESCUE OF TANGO

While dancing rarely gets the support of the critics particularly the modern tango, the hesitation whirl, and the Brazilian maxixe physicians are coming out in favor of these dances as a social exercise.

Dr. R. Kendrick Smith, of Boston, recently said that from a standpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number the present dance craze is periodical literature. The result is that revolutionary movement which is going on today, arousing middle-aged people from a deplorable physical and mental state resultant from lack of lively [illegible]

The adult portion of the American people have neglected the dance and as a result there has been a distinct injury socially, physically, mentally, and even morally. The normal human being is a sociable animal and requires some method of physical expression of its emotions. The most primary instinct for such expression is the dance, which for centuries was the earliest expression of religion and in many instances constituted the whole religious service of the people.

[illegible] of Europe has danced itself into health and vigor and joyous contentment. Americans have become nervous wrecks by spending their evenings and spare time over eating and sitting in chairs at motion picture shows or reasoning cheap periodical literature. The result is round shoulders, big belts, rearsightedness, asthmatic wheezing and a startling increase of hardening of the arteries, kidney diseases and others of that deadly group of penalties for violations of nature's laws for the normal life of the human animal in that critical period between the exuberance of youth and the decline of old age.

G. Hepburn Wilson, editor of the Modern Dance Magazine, besides advocating the social benefits from the modern dances, says many movements in the dance incorporate neuro-muscular co-ordinations which are at the root of the will to work, act and think. In the dance are waist and abdominal muscles do most of the work, and it is these muscles which largely support the body. "The motions which gradually massage away adipose deposits hampering the heart action, facilitate the circulation of the blood in the gastric regions and help digestion, apply particularly to figures of the tango, made up of swings, curves, subtle windings in and out, forward and backward courtesies, the winding step, scissors step, all done in slow, graceful, [illegible]

The maxixe develops the abdominal muscles, the hesitation whirl develops muscular control and balance. The tango exercises arm and chest muscles, muscles of the neck, and stimulates the mind and facial expression." As a part of the present movement for physical culture and modern dance therefore seems to demand its share of recognition.

Short Sermons for Busy Readers

"THE WHY OF CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP"

In these words Christ taught that each man should pay what he owed to the civil government. If it was taxes, or submission, or service, teaching, persuading or voting, a man owed the discharge of every such obligation to the government from which he might be enjoying certain benefits. In the same breath Jesus taught also that in our relationship to God we should also render what was due. The principle is that life has many relationships and in them all a Christian must do his part. In the function of citizenship we are permitted to discharge from time to time, how can a Christian refuse to bear his part of the burden, and so fulfill the law of Christ?

There are two classes of men who would exclude th Christian, and especially the Christian minister, from any participation in politics, or, what I prefer to call the functions of citizenship. The one is the malefactor who prefers to have a free field to himself where he may exploit the common man for his own selfish purposes. He draws a circle for the Christian, labels it "the spiritual region" and tells him not to trespass outside of

The other objector is the representative of a small number of Christians, well meaning, but confused as to the scope of what is spiritual. They refuse to vote or to use the machinery of government to bring about the welfare of the region in which they live. They say that the Christian's whole service should be by the use of prayer, the teaching of the Bible and the spiritual regeneration of men, and we are not to meddle with elections or election machinery. It is quite true that such are right in maintaining that prayer and dependence upon God, and the spiritual and moral regeneration of men, are the most too much of these. We shall fail of good citizenship if we depend wholly upon our own plans and strength and wisdom.

PROVE FAITH BY WORKS.

The confusion of these good people is that they do not see that the praying man of faith must prove his faith by his works. If the faith stays shut up in the man and comes not forth in hopeful, helpful effort in every relation of life, one may suspect that it is what Saint James calls a 'dead faith." It is not possible to shut up a man's spiritual life in a water-tight compartment of his being for fear that it may leak out into other compartments of his life. When a man is called to be spiritual, he is called to let the strong, pure life given him of God permeate his every relationship and yield fruit in every region of life whither he may be rightly called. We find ourselves citizens of a form of government that makes each man a ruler as it makes him also his brother's keeper. The making of a righteous vote or the depositing of a righteous vote may be made the counterpart of prayer. They pray God for good government, and a part of his answer is to put the instrument in their hands for securing it. But they refuse to use the instrument, and keep on praying. They pray, 'Thy Kingdom Come," and then leave the machinery of government to those who would rule Christ out of everything, and delay the time when He shall rule from sea to sea. The relation we have to our fellow men in citizenship is a spiritual relation as well as a political relation. It is a spiritual relation to a man that impels me at the risk of my own life to jerk him back from the edge of a dangerous precipice. It is the same [illegible] take out of his easy reach the tempting glass of liquor with all its dangerous social precipices. The ballot and the means to the ballot in the hands of a Christian is not an unclean, but rather a most sacred thing for the accomplishment of that for which he prays.

CHRISTIAN HISTORY.

This position is fortified and upheld by Bible precedent and Christian history. Moses was skilled both in the science and the practice of [illegible] praying, God-depending man. Isaiah uttered his denunciations against the evil political influences of his time, and particularly against the drink traffic. It is a wonder that the brewer and distiller do not publish for us an expurgated edition of the Bible, with all the politics of Moses, Isaiah, Jeremiah, John Baptist and others left out, just to keep us preachers from using their so-called unspiritual matter.

Read history and know what the monk, Savonarola, a deeply spiritual man, was the truest statesman Florence ever knew. Read again and know that the Magna Charta, the basis of the liberties of the English speaking people, was wrested from King John by a body of men whose leader was Stephen Langton, a minister of the gospel. John Knox was no less a man of God because he insisted in his sermons that the spiritual and moral and natural rights of man should be written in the laws of Scotland, and respected by its rulers.

The Christian further ought not to fail to vote because he knows how immeasurable a man's worth is above the dollar. It is sad to think that any Christian could let the argument of money loss influence him for a moment.

[illegible] Christ's teachings of brotherhood and service. The measure of brotherhood and service given to us by the character of our government is incorrectly the result of the spiritual impulses he set in motion. Shall we, by the neglect of the ballot, fail to use and improve his gift?

The Christian ought to exercise to the full his right of suffrage and persuasion when he realizes that most political questions have a moral phase to be settled by the ballot. Surely no one can assume to rule us out when a political question has a moral quality, such as has the question relating to the drink traffic.

But Christians must not have any part or lot with that politics falsely so-called which means bribery, trickery, deceit, graft and low down machinations. These are not necessary parts of the "science and art of government."

'CREATION 'FILMS TO RETURN HERE

Idora Park to See Big Free Offering in Movie Pictures.

The photo-drama of Creation is dedicated to the people of the world by the International Bible Students' Association in an effort to stimulate an interest in God's word.

It was started in New York city and is now showing in many of the principal cities of the United States. California is getting her share of this splendid production, Creation having been shown in San Francisco, at the Macdonough in Oakland, in Los Angeles and in many of the smaller cities and towns. Its popularity in Oakland at the Macdonough theater was so manifest and the appreciation so assured that an arrangement has been made during the month of June to present the Creation photo-drama at Idora park.

Beginning Monday night, June 1, and thereafter every afternoon at 2 and evening at 8 o'clock, will be shown this splendid Biblical history. No collections will be taken and no admission charged.

The program will be changed daily. The drama is in four parts, each two hours long. Miles of films, most of which are hand-colored, and hundreds of beautiful hand-colored slides trace this interesting history in a most splendid and instructive manner from creation to the present time. The immense popularity of this production guarantees splendid enthusiasm and appreciation at Idora park.

ASSOCIATION LARGE.

The International Bible Students' Association operates under a British charter and has offices at Lancaster Gate W., London. Its American headquarters are at 17 Hick street, Brooklyn. The association is supported by voluntary contributions. It has a large staff of lecturers and its activities extend to all the principal cities of the United States and Europe. The object of the association is, through various means, to encourage Bible study, and in the exhibitions at Idora it hopes to be especially helpful in this regard.

Careful investigation made by public librarians, who have given picture shows in connection with their work, has shown that the attending of these exhibitions stimulate the demand for literature.

The experiments tried in the borough of Queens with the moving pictures reveal the interdependence between the films and study of secular affairs. It is the belief of the promoters of this novel enterprise that the witnessing of representations of Biblical events will stimulate interest in the Book of books among those who have hitherto been indifferent to religious matters.

SHOWS EARTH'S BEGINNING.

The photo-drama of Creation begins with the earth being without form and void, the ages of the nebula and then to the formation of the globe and the waters on which rested the darkness, the creation of the animals, the coming of man, the story of the garden of Eden follow, and then comes the great procession of events, which brings man to the year of grace, 1914.

EMPRESS OF RUSSIA MAKES RECORD TRIP

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 30.—The Canadian Pacific steamship, Empress of Russia, arrived at Vancouver today. She made the passage from Yokohama to Victoria in the record time of eight days, eleven hours and thirty-one minutes, beating the Empress of Asia's record by eight hours and twenty minutes. Among the notable passengers on board were William W. Rockhill, formerly ambassador to Turkey, and G. E. Anderson of Illinois, United States Consul at Hongkong.

ROBBED OF HIS COIN; WOMAN DISAPPEARS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Miron C. Thompson, who resides at the Irwin Hotel, accepted the invitation of a woman acquaintance to join a little party in the Hotel Sorrento, 360 O'Farrell street, last night. Those present began playing games and Thompson finally took off his coat. Early this morning, about to leave, he discovered that he had been robbed of $17, and that the woman who had extended the invitation to him, had suddenly departed.

'LAW 'IS NO LAW; BUT IS SURPRISE

Washington, D. C., Shocked at Funeral Statute Developments.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—After years of observance, all Washington was shocked by a police court ruling that a "law" preventing vehicles from driving through funeral corteges is no law at all. The judge, in a case charging violation of the "law" pored through dusty tomes and found that almost everybody had been observing an injunction not prohibited. Street cars, automobiles and wagons, uniformly have refrained from bolting through funeral processions. Superstition and custom, however, are enforcing the "unwritten" law making funerals immune from interruption.

Representative Carlin of Virginia is boosting a campaign to provide a regular, established "summer capital" for the President, to be kept up by the government. The Mount Weather, Va., weather bureau station is the site urged by Carlin. It is situated in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains just a few hours' ride from Washington.

Abandonment of the Mount Weather station has been recommended by Secretary of Agriculture Houston. Carlin suggests that the building be remodelled to make an ideal, cool, mountain resort for the President and his family every summer. Now the President pays his own bills. The expense to President Wilson is considerable in leasing "Harlakeden," Winston Churchill's home at Cornish, N. H., for the summer. Its great distance from Washington adds to the expense and also detracts from its utility, particularly while the President is anxious to keep close to Washington during the Mexican crisis.

INSURGENT RAGSDALE.

As a rampant, rip-snorting "insurgent" Representative Ragsdale of South Carolina is attaining an A-1 reputation in the House. Just now Ragsdale is on the war path because the Democratic caucus of the House side-tracked the rural credit bill for the present session. He is outspoken in his criticism of President Wilson, his party leader, threatening all kinds of dire disaster for the party if it refuses to heed the demands of the American farmer for cheaper money.

Ragsdale first gained fame as an "insurgent" when he led the fight against the administration currency bill, when it was first reported without provision of loans to farmers upon cotton and grain warehouse certificates. He was the bell-weather in the fight which resulted in incorporation of the farmers' privilege in the bill.

Regulars in the Senate galleries have been enjoying, during the Mexican troubles, the awe with which visitors hear the announcement of a message from the President. Half a dozen times in the last few weeks a Senator has been interrupted in the very midst of his speech in which he has fairly flayed President Wilson or Secretary Bryan alive, by a gentle tap of the gavel of Vice-President Marshall.

Wondering whether the Senator speaking is to be called down for treason or some like crime, the visitors begin congratulating themselves that they are seeing history in the making.

"The Senator from Blank will suspend while the Senate receives a message from the President of the United States," says Mr. Marshall.

MESSAGE IN WRITING.

Meanwhile the Senate's assistant sergeant-at-arms has rushed to the door facing the Vice-President's chair. In which portal is also seen a young man holding papers. "A message from the President of the United States," chants the Senate dignitary, making an obeisance. "I am directed by the President of the United States to deliver to the Senate a message in writing," continues the young man, bowing again.

Whereupon the Republican Senator renews his attacks on the Mexican policy and the visitors are disappointed that no message declaring war, or something of the sort, is read.

The messages, which occur practically every day, consist usually of a batch of nominations the President has finally decided upon, and which he has sent down to the Senate for confirmation.

BIG COURT FOR FAIR COMPLETED

"Four Seasons" Inclosure Is Finished; First Exposition Work Done.

"So forth issued the season of the years,
First lusty spring, all light in leaves and flowers."

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—And so through the circuit of the year, with verse and color and painting and sculpture supplementing its architectural beauty one is carried by the Court of the Four Seasons, the first of the great Panama-Pacific Exposition courts to be completed.

The court proper is the work of Henry Bacon, noted New York architect, but the genius of many other artists has been enlisted to complete the perfect picture presented by it.

The court is today structurally complete and gives a satisfying foretaste of the aesthetic values that will be found in the finished exposition. The court is surrounded with a colonnade of Ionic columns, well set off by their background of travertine walls tinted a rich Pompeiian red and arches of a deep Italian blue. At the northern end of each corridor one gets a vista of the bay and the Marin county hills.

At the southern side of the court is the great niche or half dome surmounted with a statue of Harvest, the work of Albert Jaegers, who will contribute a number of other pieces of sculpture to the court. In each of the four corners of the court is a fountain to be decorated with figures expressive of the four seasons by Furio Piccirilli. The panels above the entrances to the several corridors will hold a series of paintings by H. H. Bancroft, the noted mural artist. There will be four sets of these paintings, one of labor and one of a pastime characteristic of each season. Two additional paintings by Bancroft will go in the interior of the great niche.

In the center of the court is a pool of still water reflecting the statuary at the sides, and at the northern entrance will be a great fountain decorated with the sculpture of Evelyn Beatrice Longman, one of the two women sculptors engaged upon exposition work.

The walls of the four adjoining exhibit buildings also form the walls of the court, but its colonnades and the arches and scheme of decoration gives the court the appearance of a separate creation, disassociated from any other structure.

This effect is heightened by the recesses created by the double colonnades which cuts diagonally across the four corners of the court. This plan of construction permits the sunlight to play directly down upon the four corner fountains. The light effect obtained is as remarkable as the effect of spaciousness given to the whole court.

The verse quoted above and similar verses expressive of the other seasons were selected from the old English poets by Professor Garnett of the University of California. They are inscribed on tablets above the entrances to the court and convey in words the seasonal ideas that are expressed in the architecture and the mural and sculptural decoration.

BIBLE CLASS GATHERS FOR MONTHLY SESSION

Members of the Emmanual Bible class of the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city gathered at their monthly meeting Friday evening in the parlors of the church, Twenty-fourth and Broadway, where they elected officers for the year. The business hour was followed by a banquet, which was served by the women of the organization.

VACATION ENDED BY NEGLECT

Enjoyable Outing Brought to Sudden Unpleasant Close by Toothache.

Misery and inconvenience often accompany what should otherwise be the most enjoyable time of the whole year. Many vacations are spoiled, many pleasant trips are interrupted and many enjoyable outings are brought to a sudden unpleasant close, all because that old proverb, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," has not been duly taken into consideration. And all these troubles and inconveniences are usually due to the unexpected—"toothache."

Why not have your teeth examined before you start on that vacation trip? Haven't you felt a twinge or two lately? How are those cavities?

Take a "stitch in time" and prevent any future inconvenience.

See me. I will examine your teeth free of charge. Don't wait until you actually feel the dreaded ache. Come now.

You know from your friends that my work is most reliable and my prices right—so don't delay but phone Oakland 1235 for an appointment.

Call on Dr. J. B. Schafhirt, the dentist, in the Macdonough building, corner Fourteenth and Broadway, room 8, or phone him at Oakland 1235, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., or if more convenient Sunday, between 10 and 12. Monday, Wednesday or Friday evenings 7 to 9. Dr. Schafhirt will make an appointment with you and tell you all about your teeth free of charge.

Dr. Schafhirt is known as "Oakland's Progressive Dentist," having been located in this city for many years.

MEXICAN REFUGEE LOST

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Miss Felice Camargo, 17 years old, who has been living for several months in the family of V. Tredilla, 2845 California street, disappeared last night under mysterious circumstances. The girl is a Mexican refugee and some fears are entertained for her safety. She left home to go downtown and it was later found that she had taken her belongings with her.

TRIUMPH, SAYS SUFFRAGIST LEADER

Lady Aberconway Says Parliament's Act Favors Women.

By ED. L. KEEN.

LONDON, May 30.—"It was a great triumph for the women's cause." This was the seemingly paradoxical comment made today by Lady Aberconway, leading advocate among England's titled women of female franchise, on the debate on the rejection of Lord Selborne's bill to give the parliamentary vote to the million of women in the British Isles who already have the right to cast their ballots in municipal election.

Although the measure was lost by a vote of 104 to 60, its most ardent supporters did not expect to be able to muster more than 30 in its favor; but Lady Aberconway had in mind the noteworthy legislative body in the question, rather than the result. Lord Selborne's purpose was merely to attract attention to the subject, and incidentally to emphasize the fact that the leaders of the House of Commons, more than a majority of whose members last year were pledged to vote for woman suffrage, tricked the women by not letting the measure reach the voting stage.

It was the first time in history that the Lords had even discussed the subject. A significant feature of the result, from the suffragist's standpoint, was the fact that party lines were obliterated. The bill, introduced by a unionist, was admittedly a Unionist measure. The present municipal franchise for women being based on property qualifications, the natural presumption was that the Unionists would benefit by this addition of a million electors. Yet the votes in favor of it were about equally divided between Liberals and Unionists.

LYTTON'S STATEMENT.

The position of the men advocates of the suffrage, whose zeal for the cause has not diminished by the reign of militancy, which they heartily condemn, is indicated in a statement made by the Earl of Lytton, the Conservative Peer, whose own sister, a follower of the Pankhursts, is now a confirmed invalid as the result of her prison experiences. "I have every reason to detest the action of the militants," said Lord Lytton, "because that policy makes infinitely harder the task in which I have been engaged. But while I deplore the folly and wickedness of it, I see also the tragedy of it. It has been my painful experience to be brought very closely in contact with the results of the militant movement. I have seen the sacrifice of health, the sacrifice almost of life itself, of some who are very dear to me. I have seen the expenditure of human qualities which I consider to be as rare and as precious as anything the nation posses, given to a cause which in itself is as great and noble as can be found, but given in such a way as to defeat the very object sought. It is nothing less than a tragedy that these magnificent qualities are being thrown away. But this does not deter me. I shall never slacken in my efforts to accomplish that which alone can put an end to this deplorable waste of courage, devotion and self-sacrifice."

Commenting upon the progress made in England in the past few years by the women's movement, Lord Lytton observed, "It has been phenomenal, unprecedented, and unparalleled by any other political movement in the country's history. In no other movement has there been shown such zeal, enthusiasm and spiritual force. Wherever women have been organized for trade, profession or occupation, they have expressed themselves in favor of woman suffrage. One hundred and seventy-nine city or town councils or other municipal bodies have petitioned for the extension of female franchise to the parliamentary vote, also fifty trade councils and thirty-five trade unions, and the principle is now supported by the Labor and Independent Labor parties, which embrace the whole field of the working classes of the country. The National Union of Woman Suffrage Societies (the constitutional organization) has 480 affiliated societies with 53,000 subscribing members, a total of 100,000 avowed supporters, and a yearly income of $225,000. In their pilgrimage from all parts of England to London last year, they held 480 meetings and collected more than $40,000 from sympathizers enroute. The Women's Social and Political Union (the militants) has 15,000 adherents, and an income of $15,000. They hold regularly from 200 to 300 meetings a week the year round. Altogether 3,000 petitions for woman suffrage have been presented to parliament, representing more than a million names." In Lord Lytton's opinion these statistics are quite sufficient to refute the oft-repeated statement by opponents of woman suffrage in England that there is no real demand on the part of the women of the country to vote.

INJUSTICE, HE SAYS.

Lord Lytton contends that the continued exclusion of women from the parliamentary vote involves a grave injustice. "If the women of England do not need separate representation as a class, then they do need separate legislation," he argues. "Fifty per cent of the single women, 30 per cent of the widows and 10 per cent of the married women of this country are wage-earners. This means that nearly five million English women—a third of the total population over fifteen years of age—are obliged to work in order to obtain the home which they are told is their separate sphere. Parliament regulates the labor of these women in every direction, restricts their employment, and deals with their industrial conditions generally, and it is only when they are told they are represented by the votes of the men with whom they are in competition. So long as this class is not specifically recognized by law and specifically disfranchised by law, parliament is not representative and our boasted theory of government by the people is a falsehood and a sham."

SHIPS FIRST PLUMS.

VISALIA, May 30.—The first carload of Tragedy and Clyman plums and yellow peaches to leave California this week. This early shipment makes a new record for Tulare county. Representatives of the shipping company pronounce the Redbanks plums the finest early fruit they have ever seen. Redbanks was the first on the market this year with early peaches and apricots and commenced shipping on May

AD MEN TO STORM EAST WILL ANNEX DOMINION

PRESIDENT WM. WOODHEAD OF THE ASSOCIATED AD CLUBS OF AMERICA, AND SCENE IN TORONTO, WHERE THE NEXT CONVENTION WILL BE HELD.

Led by William Woodhead, president of the Associated Advertising clubs of America, Oakland and San Francisco Ad club members are planning their visit to Toronto, Canada, where, from June 25 to June 28, one of the biggest conventions in the history of organized advertising will take place.

Complete details were issued this week by the national organization of [illegible] gram to greet the delegates at the Canadian city. Elaborate entertainment and business of importance is on the list of activities. Oakland will send several delegates with the rest of the Californians.

The session will commence on Sunday, June 21, when advertising men will fill the pulpits of the churches. They will preach lay sermons on matters of interest to the delegates and visitors. For example, Norman Hapgood, editor of Harper's Weekly, will speak in the Broadway Tabernacle Methodist church; Joseph H. Appel, director of publicity for Wanamaker's, in Jarvis Street Baptist church and Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson of New York City, will speak from the pulpit of the Parkdale Baptist church.

PEACE CELEBRATION.

In the afternoon there will be a mass meeting in Massey hall to celebrate the one hundred years of peace between United States and Canada.

The first general session of the convention will be called at 10:30 o'clock, Monday, June 22 in the Transportation building. William Woodhead of San Francisco, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, will open the convention and messages will be read from the king of England and the president of the United States. The national hymns will be sung and there will be addresses of welcome from Sir John Gibson, the governor of Ontario, representing the governor-general; from Sir James Whitney the premier of Ontario; from Mayor Hocken, from Mrs. A. M. Heustis, on behalf of the women of Canada in greeting to the women of the convention, and by William C. Rook, president of the Toronto Ad club. President Woodhead will respond to these greetings and will then deliver the annual address of the president.

IMPORTANT SESSION.

The afternoon session will be one of the most interesting of any of the general sessions. Under the supervision of President Woodhead, the trophies and prizes so eagerly contested for will be distributed. These include the famous Dallas Ladies' Trophy, the Boston Mileage Banner, the Baltimore Truth Trophy, the Printers' Ink Cup, Advertising and Selling's $1,000 prize for the best contribution on some phase of advertising and selling, and the reading of the prize essay. Then will come the committee reports, new business and the announcement of the members of the nomination board.

Early that evening, the Exhibit of Advertising Methods and Material will be open to visitors and to the general public. In the Gas building will be the Store and Window Displays, where also will be found the British exhibit.

Later, on Monday evening, the steamers Chippewa and Corona will take the visitors for a moonlight excursion.

On the morning of Tuesday, June 23, the nominating board will meet at 9:30 o'clock on the second floor of the Administration building. At the same hour the departmental sessions will convene.

The advertising agents will meet in the Horticultural building to hear addresses and discussion bearing on the fundamentals of their work. Agricultural publications will be at home in the Dairy building. A display will illustrate the vast field covered.

From 5:30 to 7 p. m. on Tuesday evening there will be a regatta and water sports, consisting of yacht races, single, tandem and fours' canoe races, motor boat races and an exhibition by the world's champion trick canoeist, Bruce Ridpath.

There will be a general session at 8 p. m. in the Transportation building with President Woodhead in the chair. Important addresses will be heard, for example, "The Average Woman Consumer—the Jury to Whom Is Directed Two-thirds of the Work of the Advertising Man." At 10:15 p. m. an educational conference will be held in the Transportation building.

The department will be hard at work in their various quarters all of Wednesday morning with addresses and discussions in their respective fields. In the afternoon, from 1:30 to 5 p. m. there will be a general session at which the nomination board will make its report, the vigilance committee work will be reported and discussed and educational topics will be covered.

The night of Wednesday, June 24, will be the period of the most pretentious and enjoyable entertainment [illegible] grand stand at 7:30 p. m., military tattoo will be held. On Wednesday night at that time, the soldiers will amuse the visitors with boxing contests, burlesques, combats at arms, fancy drills, songs, dances, fireworks and torch light dances. The fun will occupy two hours and a half.

The morning of the final day, Thursday, June 25, will begin with motion pictures and motion picture lectures in the Black Tent. The subject, generally, will be the value and uses of motion pictures in the advertising business.

FINAL SESSIONS.

The final departmental sessions (where the real work of the convention is done, just as the real work of Congress is done by the specialists in legislation in the committee rooms) will be held on Thursday morning. The final general session will open at 2 p. m. in the Transportation building and will be President Woodhead's farewell appearance after a year of striking success as the chief executive of the A. A. C. of A. The report and recommendations of the national commission, of the national committee on Publicity of National Committee on Exhibits will be made. There will be addresses from foreign delegates on behalf of their respective nations. The executive committee will announce the name of the next convention city, officers will be elected, pledges of fealty to the new administration will be given and the convention of 1914, after the benediction, will have passed into history. The last official meeting will be the session at 5 p. m. of the newly elected national commission.

FIRE HOSE ENDS HUGGING MATCH

Postmaster Drenches Ardent Reunion in Corridor of Building

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 30.—Postmaster John M. Davis has a hard and fast rule against flirting or spooning in the corridor of the postoffice.

A woman and man entered the corridor from opposite doors, and when they met there were exclamations of delight and much hugging, kissing, caressing and loving speeches for a few minutes, much to the amusement of the other patrons of the office and to the disgust and annoyance of the postmaster, who, after a reasonable wait for the pair to break away, ordered out the fire squad of the postoffice, who played a four-inch stream of water from the fire hose on them.

When they had gone Postmaster Davis learned that they were a couple who had been estranged, but who on meeting in the corridor by chance evidently mutually decided to kiss and make up.

MULE MAKES STALL UNCOMFORTABLE BED

S. LOUIS, May 30.—John Tushick, 74 years old, a farmer living at Oakville, six miles south of St. Louis, walked from a saloon in that town to Wilhelm Bros. stables nearby and at midnight sought sleep in a stall occupied by a mule. A few hours later John Warnbredt, a stable man, heard cries for help and found Tushick in the stall, kicked senseless.

George H. Boering, constable of St. Louis county, took Tushick to the St. Louis city hospital Tuesday morning. The man was bruised about the body and stomach and injured internally. Tushick said he had been drinking and did not notice the mule when he entered the stall. A kick in the stomach awakened him.

TWO-WHEELED AUTO USED IN LONDON

LONDON, May 30.—The first public appearance of M. Schidowsky's two-wheeled gyroscopic motor car in the streets of London caused immense excitement. The car carried the inventor, a mechanic, and Louis Brennan, the inventor of the gyroscopic mono-rail train.

The [illegible] car made several short trips, the speed never exceeding four miles an hour. No noise was audible except from the running of the engine and the regular striking of a small bell which kept count of the revolutions of the gyroscope.

When the car was at rest it rocked very slightly, so little as to be barely perceptible. The motion of the car is indistinguishable from that of an ordinary automobile. There is no rocking or unsteadiness.

CATCH 'GATOR AND HUGE YELLOW CAT OF 5 FEET

FLORENCE, Ala., May 30.—Price Packard and Jentry Wilson broke all fishing records in these parts when they returned after an evening's sport with 220 pounds of fish and a three-foot alligator. The latter attacked the boat but was killed without doing any damage. The largest fish, a yellow cat, was five feet long.

PROPERTY TO BE CONDEMNED FOR HIGHWAY

SANTA CRUZ, May 30.—A telegram has been received by District Attorney B. K. Knight, from the advisory board of the state engineering department, that resolutions have been passed, authorizing the institution of proceedings to condemn the balance of the right-of-way for the state highway in this county. There are two pieces to be condemned, Harrington ranch property in Scotts valley and the Weiseman place just outside the city limits.

SUIT HAD SPEED OF TORTOISE.

BOSTON, May 30.—After a delay of thirteen years, a suit for $2000 damages for the loss of ten Ecuadorean tortoises, which died while being shipped from San Francisco to Hyde Park, reached trial. The taking of depositions from witnesses in various parts of the world has caused numerous postponements. The suit was brought by a taxidermist against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, on the ground that the death of the reptiles was due to their detention in a freight car on an excessively warm day.

NEIGHBORS FEAR RICH WOMAN'S "BOARDERS"

ST. LOUIS, May 30.—Action to restrain Mrs. F. H. Ingalls, leader of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union forces in Missouri, and a prominent social and charitable worker, from conducting a boarding house in her costly home, was begun in the Circuit Court today.

Mrs. Ingalls refuses to say whether she is conducting a boarding house or intends to turn her fine residence into one.

To the suggestion that fashionable neighbors fear she intended to give shelter to women of the recently abolished "segregated" district in whose plight she is interested, she replied, "Those girls might be my guests later, but they are not [illegible] now."

A woman livin in the neighborhood said that a canvass of homes was made recently and five boarders were found in the Ingalls home. There is mystery as to the identity of the supposed "boarders."

THREE-LEGGED CHICK GROWS FASTER; WHY?

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 30.—Fred E. Blunden, treasurer of the local building and loan association, has a freak chicken which was hatched with three legs. The third leg has five toes, while the other legs have four toes each.

Blunden set a hen with fifteen eggs, nine of which hatched out. The freak chick is the healthiest of the lot. The third leg enables it to scratch up more food and worms than the other chicks, and it is growing much faster.

CARNEGIE PUTS $500 IN HER HOPE CHEST

PITTSBURG, May 30.—True to his pledge before the girls of the Central Library during his recent visit here, Andrew Carnegie, upon receipt of an announcement of the approaching wedding of Miss Ethel Kensey, of this city, wrote her the following note and inclosed a check for $500:

"Dear Miss Kensey: Cordial congratulations upon your approaching marriage. May you be as happy in your married life, and your partner also, as we are in ours; and remember that the aim should be 'to perform the duties of this life well. Troubling not about the other is the prime wisdom.' 'Home our heaven.' 'One world at a time.'"

About a week ago another Pittsburgh girl received a similar letter and check.

"SUICIDE" IS MURDER ATTEMPT, GIRL SAYS

CHICAGO, May 30.—Rosa Kite couldn't decide which of two suitors she would accept. Her indecision nearly cost her life Thursday. She was surprised in her home at 1045 West Thirteenth street by three armed men, tied in a bed and left to die after gas jets had been turned on.

months. She is 18 years old. She told the police one of the men looked like Jake Stanfield, who was "the most jealous" of her suitors, she said.

The police caught Jake. He denied having anything to do with the attack. A letter was left in the gas-filled room signed with Rosa's name, and telling of her love and determination to die. It is believed to have been forged. A lodger smelled the gas and rescued Rosa.

Good Logic, Mr. Merchant

Summer Advertising

The most valuable asset in advertising is age. It is something which cannot be rushed or bunched. It has no overnight competition. The new advertiser can't date back.

Advertising cannot take a vacation without a loss. The cumulated values of previous months or years immediately begin to shrink or evaporate. It will invariably cost more to make good the shrinkage than to omit the vacation.

Good advertising is a continuous performance before the same audience. No better definition was ever invented. It admits of no exceptions or variations.

Buyers are not so firmly attached to buying traditions during the Summer months as at other seasons. They go about more, enjoy more freedom, are interested more in variety. The new advertiser finds it easier to break in; the old advertiser finds it necessary to be more persistent and watchful. The province of advertising is to attract new customers, as well as to hold old ones, and the vacation season, more than any other, is the season of changes; the season, more than any other, when the advertiser can least afford to permit his goods and his service to be forgotten. The trifling purchase of July or August is often the forerunner of a much larger purchase in October or November.

LIPTON--CALIFORNIAN?

SKIPPER MAY YET COME

WILL HE BE A CALIFORNIAN? SIR THOMAS LIPTON, WHO TALKS OF LIVING AND GROWING TEA IN THE WEST.

Thomas Lipton, famous skipper, builder, racer of Shamrocks galore, and famed throughout the world, may soon become a full-fledged Californian.

He's talking of buying a home here—and what's more, is talking of it to the real estate men. He says that he likes England, and he likes Ireland—but California! That's the place! Ever since his visit here of a short time ago he has been a California booster.

Writing to friends in Los Angeles recently he said:

"If ever I changed my home, there is no place in the world I would prefer to your city, as I would never feel [illegible]re.

"You know that I am racing in San Francisco next April, when I hope to see you; in any case, I will come to Los Angeles and see my many good friends again."

In addition to the letter extolling the glories of Southern California, Sir Thomas Lipton has written another letter to a real estate dealer. In this letter Sir Thomas tells of a plan for growing tea near San Diego. He writes:

"I am sending over several hundred three-year-old trees. To protect them from the climate betwen Colombo, Ceylon, and California, I am having them put in glass shades. I am sending a nurseryman with them to look after them and an experienced tea planter to see that they are properly attended. It is an experiment, and if climate and conditions [illegible] I will send several thousand more trees over. I hope by next year to show the process of making good tea in California, and, if everything turns out as I hope, I will start growing tea on a large scale."

TARIFF HITS CALIFORNIA

Foreign Trade Injures Agricultural Men

(Special Correspondent of The Tribune.)

WASHINGTON, May 30.—It would seem that the citrus fruit growers of Southern California are not the only ones who are registering a vigorous complaint against the Underwood Tariff Bill. In the northern part of the state, the dairymen have awaken a chorus to the fact that the reduction in the duty on butter is resulting in the dumping of the foreign product into the United States at an alarming rate. Congressman Knowland has recently compiled figures of the importations of butter for the first six months under the new tariff law, as compared with the corresponding six months under the Republican law.

During the first half year, there was imported into the United States under the Democratic Tariff, 6,422,658 pounds of butter, as against 648,133 pounds for a corresponding period under the Republican Tariff, an astounding increase of 891 per cent. It is not surprising that California dairymen are complaining that the prices received for butter show a steady downward trend.

IMPORTATIONS OF EGGS INCREASE.

Chinese eggs continue to flow into the United States, and particularly into California, at an alarming rate. The total number of eggs imported during the first six months under the Democratic Tariff reaches the total of 4,169,388 dozens, an increase over the corresponding six months under the Republican Tariff of 484 per cent. These figures are being watched closely by the poultrymen at Petaluma and in other sections of California.

FOREIGN ALMONDS AND BEANS.

California almond growers are alarmed at the increase in the importation of unshelled almonds. There were imported during the past six months 4,552,646 pounds, an increase of 118 per cent.

Foreign importers are likewise reaching out for the California bean market. This will be interesting news to the farmers at Ventura and other southern counties. The foreign rivals of California have just started, but during six months they have managed to increase the importations 81 per cent, 987,794 bushels being imported.

California walnut growers are beginning to take notice of the steadily increasing importation of unshelled walnuts. 24,120,894 pounds reaching the American market in competition with the California product during the past six months, an increase of 79 per cent.

Democratic candidates, advocating President Wilson's tariff policy, will find it rather difficult, in making a canvass of Fresno and other raisin centers, to explain to growers how it happens that during the past six months 3,572,029 pounds of raisins were imported, an increase of 62 per cent over a corresponding period under the Republican Tariff.

The total value of lemons imported during the past six months amounts to $1,857,925, an increase of 60 per cent.

FOREIGN OLIVE OIL.

California's foreign competitors in the production of olive oil are making good progress in getting into the market under the provisions of the Underwood Tariff Bill, which certain Democrats in California are defending. True, they have only had six months in which their agents could work, but during this short period they have increased the number of gallons imported from 289,743 to 448,886, an increase of 54 per cent. The importations of edible olive oil shows an increase in gallons of 16 per cent. A 35 per cent increase is shown in the importation of olives.

Foreign fig growers have increased importations 16 per cent.

PREDICTIONS COMING TRUE.

These figures furnish conclusive proof that the predictions of the opponents of the Underwood Tariff Bill regarding its effect upon the industries of California are more than coming true. The bill has only had a six months' trial, and the agents of foreign importers have just begun to solicit the patronage in the United States of those who handle these products.

With all the importations, the consumers of the United States should keep in mind that they are purchasing at no lower rate, the difference going into the pockets of the foreign producers, and being taken largely from the pockets of California farmers.

COST OF LIVING INCREASING.

Congressman Kahn, in a recent speech in the House, pointed out that in the deficiency bill, increased appropriations were carried on account of the advance in the cost of rations furnished the army. Kahn cited this item to prove the failure of the Democratic party in living up to its campaign promises. Instead of being reduced the cost of living is steadily increasing.

AGAINST OLD SOLDIERS.

Veterans of the Civil war are beginning to complain bitterly at the treatment accorded them by the present administration. In the various departments many of the old soldiers are being dismissed, their advanced age being offered as an excuse, and all this done contrary to the provisions of law favoring [illegible] who served their country in its hour of peril.

Congressman Knowland of California recently registered on the floor of the House a most vigorous protest against this action and advocated the enactment of legislation to provide for their retirement, so that when dismissed they would not be thrown out upon the world. As far, retirement legislation does not appear to be included in the Democratic program. That party has been too busy surrendering American rights at Panama and at Columbia to give heed to legislation so unimportant as providing for old soldiers and other government employes who may have become incapacitated after long and faithful service.

Coupled with all this, has come the President's refusal to attend a memorial service in honor of the G. A. R. at Arlington Cemetery on Decoration Day. On top of this refusal, he has, however, accepted an invitation to unveil a monument to the Confederate dead early in June.

Nervous Wrecks from Sore Feet; Here Is Cure

The raging irritation from foot torture causes thousands of nervous breakdowns. Besides there is the pain, the haggard face and peevish disposition. Don't waste an hour, here is a treatment that will cure your feet quickly. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment, well known to best foot doctors, will give prompt results. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain [illegible] feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off, bunions, aching feet, sweaty smelling feet, get immediate relief. Use this a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it. A twenty-five cent package is said to be enough to cure the worst feet. Calocide compound prepared only by the Medical Formula Co., of Dayton, Ohio.

MULLINS SMITTEN; WHO'S THE LADY?

Supervisor Himself Doesn't Know, But She Certainly Can Fry Chicken.

Who cooked that chicken?

That's the question John F. Mullins, chairman of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, and one of the most eligible bachelors in Oakland, wants to know. Cupid has struck at the public official through the roast fowl. The road to a man's heart is his stomach, and Mullins has proved it. He wants to know which of the pretty girls who served the supervisors at dinner at the Manual Training and Commercial High School this week was responsible for that particular dish.

"Gee! That was sure some chicken!" declared the supervisor. "The girl that can cook like that will make a great wife for some man. What's her name? I'm not Roosevelt, but, by George, my hat's in the ring and so's my knife and fork. What's the use of being a bachelor if you can find a girl that can cook like that?"

The dinner was served by a bevy of pretty girls in the Domestic Science department of the school. Chairman Mullins, Supervisors D. J. Murphy and W. B. Bridge, Dr. C. A. Wills, superintendent of the county infirmary, Assistant District Attorney Manley Clarke and Principal P. M. Fisher were the guests. Mullins is the only unmarried man among the party—and his appetite was great—he admits it himself.

"I liked the cole and I liked the soup," declares the supervisor, "but that chicken! Lead me to the girl that cooked it. I love resolutions of intention and county claims—but this is the life."

Principal Fisher didn't know who it was; perhaps the whole class, he said. Mullins, however, still is asking about it.

PASADENA MODESTY IS LATEST BRAND

PASADENA, May 30.—Modesty, triple plated and enforced by the city commission—is to be the watchword of the new municipal swimming pool in fashionable Pasadena.

If you want to swim in the beautiful new pool — and everybody wants to swim at Pasadena in the summer time—you will have to follow the rules set down by the commissioner of public safety.

So, fair maids, when it comes to choosing your bathing costumes for this year, don't follow the edicts of Dame Fashion. For fashion says that silken tights, low necks, short sleeves and slinky silk skirts are to be the thing.

But not in Pasadena.

You must wear a skirt at least two yards around and it must reach below your knees; you must wear full blouses, stockings and shoes.

The city commission is now debating on a uniform costume to be established as the official and municipal bathing dress of the city. They are still a little undecided as to the exact length of the sleeves, the shape of the skirt and a few minor details, but modesty, not fashion, is to prevail.

The swimming pool, which is said to be a very fine one, was presented to the city by Mrs. S. W. Brooks of Oak Knoll.

It will be opened soon, with Commissioner W. J. Dougherty as official chaperon and Chairman R. L. Metcalf as final arbitrator and judge.

REPORT THEFTS.

A watch, a suit of clothes and an overcoat were taken from the room of P. Puccetti in the Angelus Hotel at Eleventh and Franklin streets, according to complaint made to the police. W. E. la Divere of 3328 Octavia street, reported the theft of a set of carpenters' tools from a new house in Hadden road.

PRIMITIVE HORSE TO BE SOUGHT BY SCIENCE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 30.—To seek more primitive forms of the horse, an expedition will set out from Peabody Museum at Yale University [illegible] month for the Bad Lands in the Rosebud Indian Reservation in South Dakota and later it will move to the big Bad Lands farther west.

Previous expeditions working in Texas brought to light many approximately perfect skeletons of the early horse, and according to today's announcement, the search will be mainly for the three-toed hipparion, protohippus and mesohippus.

VINE HILL SCHOOL HOLDS LAST SESSION

VINE HILL, May 30.—The closing exercises of the Vine Hill school were held yesterday morning with a large attendance of parents and well wishers of the children. The program for the affair was arranged by Ethel B. Bernier, the teacher of the school.

The certificates of promotion presented the boys and girls were tastefully tied with ribbon. The graduates are Elta Metherall and Chartie Pech.

ADOPTION RULE NOW IN EFFECT

Certified Babies to Go to Certified Parents, Is Court's Order.

CHICAGO, May 30.—The Chicago municipal court's certified babies hereafter will be awarded for adoption only to certified foster parents. This rule, placing on a strictly scientific basis the whole question of the disposition of babies coming under the care of the morals court, went into effect today. Persons wishing to qualify as parents by adoption will have to submit to tests by the municipal psychologic laboratory the same as the babies. There has been a waiting list of persons eager to obtain one of the "certified babies" ever since the system of certifcation was announced.

The order was issued as a result of an experimental test which showed that a childless married couple who were about to be given a blue-eyed baby boy were 17 years old mentally and would never be any older.

"Would-be parents must be prepared to demonsrate by laboratory tests that they are mature intellectually," said Judge Goodnow. "They must also be in harmony with the mental possibilities of the infant to be adopted, as shown by the laboratory examination. Enforcement of this plan will make the system for the disposition of babies by our court the most scientific and thorough that has ever been attempted."

MAURICE McLOUGHLIN IS OAKLAND RESIDENT

Maurice McLoughlin, United States tennis champion, winner of the Davis Cup, the California tennis star who astounded English champions, is now a full fledged citizen of Oakland.

He has often played tennis on Oakland courts; in fact at the time of his English victories he was considered almost as much of an Oakland player as he was a San Francisco player; but now he votes here.

McLaughlin recently moved into his new home on Lake View avenue. The new home is a charming place, designed by Architect James L'hommedieu.

McLoughlin recently moved into his land, being associated with the firm of Wickham Havens, who, by the way is to be pitted against him soon in a series of championship tennis contests. Havens himself is a tennis player of more than ordinary note, and one of the stars of the Claremont Club courts.

BERKELEY Gossip of Students and Residents in University Town AND Social and Personal Happenings of Day in the Island City ALAMEDA

CHARTER IS MADE OVER
DAYTON PLAN PROPOSED

BERKELEY MAY HAVE CITY MANAGER

Freeholders Suggest Amendments Altering Structure of Municipal Government.

Improvement in the form of government are advised in a set of ten amendments to the city charter drafted by the board of freeholders which framed it and which has been in weekly session planning its improvement for the past several months. Finishing their labors last night, the freeholders laid the result thereof before the mayor and council today.

The most fundamental change provided is the substitution of the city manager plan of administration, made famous by Dayton, Ohio, for the present commission form. To do this alternative amendments are proposed, the one establishing the manager plan, the other doing that and uniting the council and school board into one body besides.

A number of other amendments besides these are submitted to the council, which is expected in turn before long to lay them before the people for consideration at a special municipal election. A campaign has been quietly conducted here for several months in favor of the city manager plan, and much interest in it has been raised.

ORGANIC LAW ALTERED.

Nine other amendments are submitted by the freeholders, the most important of which provide for changes in the manner of administering the recall, referendum and initiative, for an increase in the salary of the auditor from $1800 to $2400 a year, for pensioning policemen and firemen and for reducing the intro-election interval.

In response to an invitation issued by Mayor Charles D. Henwood in January, fourteen members of the board of freeholders which had framed the existing charter met at the city hall for the purpose of considering shortcomings of the charter and proposing amendments. Those who attended the sessions were R. A. Berry, J. W. Flinn, Fred W. Foss, John M. Foy, Beverly L. Hodghead, Christian Hoff, Professor William Carey Jones, E. E. Newton, J. T. Renas, J. W. Richards, J. T. Short, J. L. Tisdale, President Benjamin Ide Wheeler and S. N. Wood.

The other member of the former board of freeholders, who was absent, was C. A. Plank, who has removed from Berkeley. Meetings have been held by this committee almost every week since that time to last night. The amendments now submitted are the result. The freeholders summarized these in their letter to the council as follows:

AMENDMENTS SERIATIM.

"Amendment No. 1 provides that the interval between the first and second municipal elections shall be reduced from three weeks to two weeks. This change has been recommended by the several municipal administrations and is believed, on all sides, to be desirable.

"Amendment No. 2 revises the provisions governing the recall, initiative and referendum, and sets forth in detail the procedure to be followed in putting these measures into effect. This amendment is identical with that which was proposed by us in 1911 to a former administration of the city. We believe the best interests of the community will be subserved by its adoption.

"Amendment No. 3 changes the name of the Civic Art Commission to that of City Planning Commission. This latter designation is in accord with a movement of the day.

"Amendment No. 4 changes the name of the Commission of Public Charities to that of Public Welfare Commission. This change was suggested by the Commission of Public Charities and meets with our approval. Commissions of the character proposed are believed by us to be serving great practical uses in certain cities of the country.

"Amendment No. 5 provides for some changes in reference to the meetings of the Board of Equalization, which have seemed desirable to the several city administrations in office since the adoption of the charter. We believe the amendment should be approved.

"Amendment No. 6 provides (1) for the establishment of a public betterment fund, which is to be used for the purchase of lands and the construction of permanent improvements. It is believed that such a fund accumulated from year to year by ordinary taxation will be of great advantage to the community and will obviate in many instances the necessity of resort to the issue of bonds; (2) the amendment provides for a small public amusement and entertainment fund. We believe that the city should afford some forms of wholesome amusement to the people, such as music by a band, and should be in position to extend, on occasion, entertainment to visiting official bodies.

"Amendment No. 7 provides that the limitations imposed by the charter on the completion of work under franchises shall not apply to extensions of service under franchises other than those for railroads of various kinds. Such is a proviso added to the Berkeley provision in the Oakland charter, and seems to us to be reasonable and desirable.

"Amendment No. 8 is submitted in two forms, 'A' and 'B'. 'A' provides for the introduction of the city manager system of municipal government. 'B' provides for the city manager system and further for a single board to serve as city council and board of education.

SUBMIT CHANGE.

"The City Manager system is being much discussed throughout the country, and seems to be claiming much attention in our community. It has been adopted in several cities, the most important being Dayton, Ohio. We have found that this plan could be incorporated into the Berkeley charter with relatively slight changes. It seems desirable to us that such a scheme should be presented to the people of Berkeley so that they may decide whether such a modification of our present government should be made.

"As to the additional subject proposed in 'B', namely, the merger of the Board of Education in the City Council, it seems to us that, if the City Manager system should be adopted, such a change would be for the best interests of the community. The City Council would, under such a system, no longer be an executive body, the members of which would be employed in exacting administrative and managerial duties, but would be largely a legislative body. Under such circumstances, the one board might perform the same kind of duties for the educational interests of the city as it would do for the business interests thereof.

"We [illegible] however, [illegible] Berkeley and the school district of Berkeley were made co-terminous. On all accounts we believe the extension of the limits of the city to include the whole of the school district to be desirable, and, if that can be effected, we recommend that 'B' rather than 'A' be submitted to the decision of the voters of Berkeley.

"Amendment No. 9 provides for the increase of the salary of the auditor from $1800 per annum to $2400 per annum. This increase is also provided for in Amendment No. 4, but as independent [illegible] necessary in the event

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY FREEHOLDERS.

1. Decreasing interval between elections from three to two weeks.
2. Revises recall, referendum and initiative petitions.
3. Changes city art commission to city planning commission.
4. Changes charities commission to public welfare commission.
5. Provides changes in board of equalization.
7. Limits application of extension of work under franchises.
8. Submitted in two divisions: (a) introduces city manager scheme; (b) introduces city manager scheme and consolidates council and school board.
9. Increases auditor's salary from $1,800 to $2,400.
10. Provides for pensioning of firemen and policemen.

that Amendment No. 8 should fail to carry. We regard the present salary of $1800 for the important office of Auditor as entirely inadequate.

"Amendment No. 10 provides that members of the police and fire departments who reach the age of 60 years and who have been in the service of the city for 25 years shall be retired on half pay."

POWERS TO BE AMPLE.

After much debate the freeholders passed up the matter of the salary of the city manager to the council, providing that the body shall choose or dismiss him at its will and that he may or may not be a citizen of this State at the time of his appointment. He is given very large powers and duties as follows:

"To see that the ordinance of the city are enforced.

"To appoint and remove, except as otherwise provided in this charter, all officials and all subordinate officers and employes.

"To exercise control over all departments of the city government and over all the appointive officers and employes thereof.

"To exercise supervision over all public utility companies so far as they are subject to municipal control; to keep himself fully informed as to their compliance in all respects with the law, and to see that all franchises granted by the city are faithfully observed.

"To attend all meetings of the council, with the right to take part in the discussion, but without right to vote.

"To recommend for adoption to the council such resolutions, ordinances and measures as he may deem necessary or expedient.

"To perform such other duties as may be prescribed by this charter or by ordinance or resolution of the council."

PORTER SCHOOL DEBATING TEAM GAINS VICTORY

ALAMEDA, May 30.—The debate on the tariff question, which was held yesterday afternoon at the Haight school between Foster Adams, Donald McDonald and Will Schetter of the Porter school graduating class for the affirmative, and Gordon McMahon, Stanley Levinson and Pettes St. Sure of the Haight school graduating class for the negative, was a display of mental ability and forensic powers with a well founded grasp of the subject from both sides. The honors were cleverly fought for, Porter school coming out ten points ahead, according to the decision of the judges, who were J. C. Paltridge, vice-principal of Washington school; E. Hubbard, vice-principal of Lincoln school and Will Volberg of the High school. The students were prepared for either side of the debate and only decided by lot the morning of the debate.

The students met their opponents' arguments with a readiness and grasp of the subject as well as an unhampered expression of opinion creditable to older heads, and future financiers, legal lights and statesmen were foreshadowed in the talents displayed by the six students, each differently gifted in mental qualities. The debate was instructive and in some cases lightened with a bit of humor, most entertaining to the class and the visitors. Included among whom were Superintendent of Schools C. J. Du Four, Principal George Furbush and several of the mothers of the debaters.

TIN CANS WON'T GO THROUGH CREMATORY

BERKELEY, May 30.—There are too many tin cans in Berkeley's garbage, according to City Engineer J. J. Jessup, who has appealed to the city council to remedy the difficulty. Of all the refuse consumed at the crematory one-third is not burnable, and of this about half is composed of tin cans. The city engineer submitted to the council a new ordinance relating to the segregation of garbage by householders. He would have them keep the tin cans separate from other garbage, directing the garbage men to collect them free of charge. Mineral waste he would have also separated, charging a small amount for its collection. Rates of collection proposed by Jessup for once-a-week collection are as follows: 20 gallons, 35 cents; 20-30, 45c; 30-40, 55c; 40-50, 65c; 50-60, 75c; twice-a-week, 20 gallons, 70c; 30-30, 90c; 30-40, $1.10; 40-50, $1.35; 50-60, $1.50; thrice-a-week, 20 gallons, $1; 20-30, $1.25; 30-40, $1.50, 40-50, $1.80; 50-60, $2.25.

CATHOLIC LADIES WILL HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

ALAMEDA, May 30.—The annual outing of the Catholic Ladies' Aid Society will take the form of a carnival at Surf Beach Park, Saturday, June 6, and will include afternoon and evening. There will be a country store and exhibitions [illegible] ing, swimming and other attractions for both young and old alike, afternoon and evening. The society is putting forth every effort to replenish the treasury upon which many demands have been made during the past year and are preparing ahead as well for the further demands which they will be called upon to respond to.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC HAS NEW ALAMEDA PHONE

ALAMEDA, May 30.—For the convenience of residents of this city the Southern Pacific Company has installed an Alameda telephone where all information can be obtained. The number is Alameda 1544. Heretofore Alameda residents have had to get North Park street station by ringing Lakeside 1420 in Oakland. There is now direct connection with the North Park street station by ringing Alameda 1544.

WATER QUESTION GIVEN ANALYSIS

Berkeley Socialists Hold Meeting and Listen to Stephen J. Kieffer.

BERKELEY, May 30.—Speaking for the Berkeley campaign committee favoring the creation of the water district by an affirmative vote Tuesday, Stephen J. Kieffer, an engineer, analyzed the situation before the [illegible] at the high school auditorium tonight. Other speakers at the meeting were J. Stitt Wilson, former mayor of Berkeley; Assemblyman George Gelder, J. A. Boyer and L. B. Magoon.

Kieffer said:

"Tuesday the voters of these cities will face the most vital question they have ever had to decide. The water question has reached an acute stage, and for the first time an opportunity [illegible] crete foundation for progress.

"The law provides for three elections. The first is Tuesday for the formation of the district. The second will be for the election of a portion of the directorate. The third will be to act on the recommendations to be later presented by the directors.

"The questions of general policy to be decided at this time are whether steps should be taken at this time to change conditions, whether public ownership is desirable, whether these seven cities should act as a unit, and whether we should proceed at this time.

EXPLAINS ELECTIONS.

"The second election, to come ninety days from now, will involve more specific policies, as to the platforms of the candidates for office.

"The third election will have to do with a specific proposition, that of voting bonds for a definite plant, the physical condition of which will be known, and at a definite price. This election will require two-thirds to carry.

"We are confronted by a critical situation. We must remedy the present condition. Public ownership is imperative and inevitable. We must certainly act as a unit. The present time is opportune. The act under which we are to proceed is an excellent vehicle for the purpose.

"Issues other than those actually involved in this election are confusing the people. The only question today is the formation of the water district. It is not a question of the purchase of the Peoples Water Company, nor could this question be involved or settled at this time.

ONLY TO CREATE DISTRICT.

"We are to vote now solely for the purpose of creating the district which will permit the cities east of San Francisco bay to study the water problem in a comprehensive way, and then after long and careful study and investigation to decide upon the best source of supply and the best means of distribution and submit the findings to the people at the polls for their final decision as to what shall be done toward the actual acquirement of a water supply.

"The formation of such a district is an absolutely essential step if ever a remedy to the intolerable conditions is to be presented through municipal ownership. It has taken two years or more to reach the point of gaining the opportunity of voting. If this opportunity is lost, other years will elapse before we can vote on the question again. These matters cannot be hurried. Why delay now?

WILL ARISE AGAIN.

"Opposition, in case this election fails and the matter is brought to a vote again a long time hence, will rise again, regardless of any amendments that may be offered in the effort to make a 'perfect' law. A perfect law never has existed and never will exist, as long as the opinions of men differ. Experience must be our best teacher, and to change the law before it has been tested would be merely to change the point of attack.

"The present law is an excellent vehicle. It provides the organization founded on those lines most approved by present day economists and after the plan of those cities which have been most conspicuously successful in the operation of water systems, the cities which have operated under an administration of the water system or an appointive commission, as in the case of Boston, New York, Detroit, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., and Rochester."

ALAMEDA COUPLE IS WEDDED ACROSS BAY

ALAMEDA, May 30.—A simple church ceremony united Miss Mabel D. Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wright, and Elmer W. Kehres, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Kehres of St. Charles street, who plighted their troth at St. Patrick's church, San Francisco, at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Rogers, with Miss Hazel Hanges as maid of honor and Hamilton Bell attending the bridegroom. After the wedding the bridal party enjoyed a breakfast at one of the popular cafes and then left for Santa Cruz on their honeymoon trip. They will make their home in this city with the parents of the bridegroom.

The attractive bride was prettily gowned in a fancy tailored suit of the new green, with becoming hat of black with the green touch in the broad ribbon and clusters of pink roses. The bridegroom is an electrician, engaged in the practice of his profession in San Francisco.

GIRL IS RUN DOWN BY BICYCLE IN ALAMEDA

ALAMEDA, May 30.—L. B. Inskeep of 1537 Twenty-fifth avenue, Oakland, according to a report at the police station, last evening ran down a 9-year-old girl on Park street, his bicycle knocking the girl to the street. She was treated by Dr. J. A. Riley and then removed to her home at 2263 Pacific avenue in the police ambulance. The little girl was not badly hurt.

[illegible] SUICIDE SHIPPED TO ARLINGTON

VALLEJO, May 30.—The remains of the late assistant paymaster, Emmet H. R. Tebeau, U. S. N., assistant to the general storekeeper at Mare Island, were shipped to the Arlington National Cemetery this afternoon for interment. Tebeau committed suicide at the yard yesterday by cutting his throat with a penknife.

BIG BENEFIT BEING PLANNED
GARDEN FETE FOR CHURCH

MERCEDES ANDERSON

WHO WILL RIDE HER TRICK PONY AT CHURCH BENEFIT IN FRUITVALE.

FRUITVALE, May 30.—A garden fete will be held by the Fruitvale Congregational church next Saturday in the grounds of Mrs. Henry Wetherbee, East Fourteenth street and Fruitvale avenue. The grounds will be illuminated with thousands of electric lights and refreshment and confection booths will be set up under the trees. Pony carts, a country store and a circus sideshow are among the amusements. A stage will be erected [illegible] of tents, where [illegible] tainments will be given afternoon and evening.

Mrs. J. S. Anderson and her daughter Mercedes will give an exhibition of trick and fancy riding. Little Mercedes has taken many prizes for her skill with her pony and her feats of horsemanship were one of the attractions at the state fair at Sacramento.

NOTED LECTURER TO BE AT SESSION

Professor Frank Boas Will Speak at University Classes.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, May 30. — For the approaching summer session of the university an exchange of anthropologists has been arranged between Columbia University of New York, and the University of California, of American universities second only to Columbia in size.

By this exchange Professor Franz Boas, the celebrated ethnological explorer and foremost authority on the American Indians, will lecture in Berkeley from June 22 to August 1. In exchange Professor A. L. Kroeber, head of the department of anthropology of the University of California, will go to New York to lecture in the summer session at Columbia.

Just at present, Professor Kroeber is in the mountains with Ishi, the aboriginal Indian, study of whom has yielded valuable knowledge as to primitive life in California. They are on a hunting trip in the Deer Creek country, where Ishi lived the life of an untutored savage until his first contact with white men, a couple of years ago.

Ishi is engaged in showing Dr. Kroeber [illegible] how he and his forbears, for countless centuries in the past, made fire without matches, [illegible] gunpowder, and carried on community life without knowledge or use of all the inheritance of what man's civilization. The summer field work of Dr. Boas, on the other hand, save for the six weeks he spends at Berkeley, is to be among the Indian tribes of Canada and Northwestern Montana.

Throughout the summer session, at Berkeley, Professor Boas is to lecture twice daily. In lectures on "An Introduction to Anthropology" to be given by Professor Boas at 9 o'clock daily, he will discuss the antiquity of man, the origin of races, the influence of heredity and environment, primitive culture, the earliest inventions, the origin of agriculture and of herding, the cultivation of plants, the domestication of animals, the development of the industries, the graphic and plastic arts, music, literature and the other arts of primitive man, the types of organization, the emotional and intellectual life of aboriginal peoples, their concepts of nature and their religious beliefs.

"The Indian of North America" will be described by Professor Boas in lectures at 11 o'clock. He will characterize the American races as to their physical makeup and their languages, discuss migrations and the dissemination of culture, and contrast the cultural types of the American aborigines, from the Arctic to California, from the eastern woodlands to the tropical jungles of Central America, where vast and splendid ruins bear witness to a vanished civilization.

German by birth, Professor Boas was trained as an anthropologist at Heidelberg, Bonn, and Kiel; explored Baffin Land, as a young man, spent many years in anthropological explorations in British Columbia, directed the operations and publications of the famous Jessup expedition to the North Pacific. For a number of years past he has been professor at Columbia and the curator of the department of anthropology of the great American Museum of Natural History in New York. He is also honorary philologist in the Bureau of American Ethnology of the United States Government, honorary member of a long list of foreign and American learned societies, and author of many volumes of scientific publications, treating of such matters as his experiences in Baffin Land, the Eskimo, the Chinook, the Indian Myths of America, "The mind of Primitive Man," etc.

LAST RITES FOR WEST BERKELEYAN

Funeral of Late Thomas Welch Is Held: Was Noted Pioneer.

WEST BERKELEY, May 30.—The funeral of Thomas Welch, who died Monday evening at the family residence, 2123 Fifth street, after an illness of more than a year, at the age of 69 years, was held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock from St. Joseph's church, Addison and Jefferson streets, interment being at St. Mary's cemetery. Besides a wife he leaves one daughter, Mrs. May Newell.

INJURED SO OFTEN HE WAITS FOR ACCIDENTS

BEDFORD, Ind., May 30.—Charles A. Martin, a retired farmer of this town, is a "watchful waiter." WAITRESS FIGHTS FOR POSSESSION OF COIN

SAN JOSE, May 30.—A fight in a lodging house hallway between a man and a woman for the possession of $5 which the woman had snatched from a restaurant till as payment of wages which she claimed to be due, was described to Justice of the Peace John T. Wallace yesterday morning by Lottie Morris, who swore out a complaint against W. J. Hardy, a restaurant keeper of 399 Montgomery street, charging him with battery.

Lottie Morris said that she had been working for Hardy for five months as a waitress. Yesterday she announced that she was going to resign, she states. She says that she then fell into a quarrel with Hardy over the amount of wages due her. She snatched $20 from the till. Hardy told her to drop it, insisting that he only owed her $15.

The waitress claims that he then pursued her out of the restaurant and into a lodging house. Here, she states, they had a fight in the hall. He finally paid her $15, according to the girl.

SPARROWS MOVE NEST AND EGGS, UNBROKEN

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, May 30.—Mrs. John W. Carey removed an English sparrow nest from a water spout over the porch of her home, and not wishing to destroy six eggs which were in it, she placed it in a nearby lilac bush. A short time afterward the sparrows began moving the nest back to the spout, bit by bit. Within 24 hours the nest and eggs were in their former place. Mrs. Carey is wondering how the parent birds moved the eggs [illegible]

HAYWARD SEES BIG CELEBRATION

Holy Ghost Observance Elaborate; Parade to Be Today.

HAYWARD, May 30.—Three days' Holy Ghost celebrations held under the auspices of Council No. 14, I. D. E. S., started here this evening. Members of the Council formed in parade order at the I. D. E. S. Hall, and headed by Serpa's union band, marched to the home of Joseph Nunes. From here the crown was carried to the hall by Queen Minnie (Miss Minnie Souza), escorted by the scepter-bearer, Annie Oliveira, and attendants, Magdalena Prioste, Mamie Deniz, Angeline Cardoza and Mamie Cardoza.

Winsome misses in white marched in the parade, which was followed by a fireworks display, concert music and dancing in the Armory and the I. D. E. S. Hall.

Tomorrow the grand parade will take place at 9:30 in which Portuguese societies will take part, including the I. D. E. S., U. P. P. E. C., Ladies of U. P. P. E. C., and S. P. R. S. I. The parade, headed by Serpa's union band, will form on Castro and B streets, and counter-march with the grand officers of the I. D. E. S. and invited guests, the mayor and town trustees to All Saints' Church, where high mass will be celebrated, after which all will march to I. D. E. S. Hall, where a banquet will be served. The members of the Portuguese societies and general public have been invited to attend a banquet Monday. The festivities will close Monday night with a dance in the I. D. E. S. Hall.

DREW GUN, IS CHARGE: OAKLANDER ARRESTED

RICHMOND, May 30.—O. E. Pettis of 5818 Shattuck avenue, Oakland, was arrested in this city Friday night on a charge of exhibiting a deadly weapon. Pettis, it is alleged, drew a gun on Joe King, a deputy sheriff after crashing into King's machine on San Pablo avenue, near Grand Canyon park.

King had stopped his machine in the road, and Pettis, it is claimed, steered into it, badly damaging the front. Pettis then started to drive on, and King reached into Pettis' machine and pulled out his spark plug. Pettis, he says, drew a gun and demanded the return of the plug. King exhibited his badge and placed Pettis under arrest. One of the Pettis party, unidentified, struck King from behind, but was knocked to the ground by King. The party was taken to the police station. King was released on bail and the rest released.

SAN LEANDRO HAS GREAT FESTIVAL

Holy Ghost Celebration Is Largest in History of City.

SAN LEANDRO, May 30.—The Holy Ghost celebrations which commenced here this evening, are held on an unusually elaborate scale this year. Preparations for the two days' festivities have been going on for several weeks under the su[pervision of] the Holy Ghost Society, and everything was in readiness for the opening ceremony in which Queen Mamie (Miss Mamie Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Rose), and her attendants were central figures. The attendants who acted as rod girls were: Miss Mary Silva, Miss Emily Phillips, Miss Beatrice Gonsalves and Miss Lena Furtado.

The celebrations started this evening with the carrying of the crown by Queen Mamie and her court, from the residence [illegible] to the Holy Ghost hall in Alvarado street. The parade was led by the San Leandro band and members of the society. Upon the arrival of Queen Mamie and the crown a display of fireworks took place, followed by dancing. The grounds around the hall were decorated in electric lights, flags and greens.

On Sunday morning a parade will form at the hall and march to St. Leander's Catholic church, where high mass will be celebrated, Father Miguel de Cruz officiating. High mass will commence at 10:30 o'clock. Following the services at the church, they will parade to the Holy Ghost grounds, where luncheon will be served. During the afternoon a concert will be held by the San Leandro band, and many useful articles disposed of.

This year's celebration is in charge of the board of directors, who are: Frank Dutra, Frank Cross, M. P. Rodrigues, M. S. Rogers and George Phillips. The other officers of the society are Joe P. Silveria, president; Frank C. Vargas, vice-president, M. E. Silva, secretary, and John Francis, treasurer.

ANNUAL CHERRY SHOOT IS HELD BY GUN CLUB

SAN LEANDRO, May 30.—Boxes of luscious black San Leandro cherries were the prizes for which marksmen from several counties competed this afternoon in the third annual "cherry shoot," held under the auspices of the San Leandro Gun Club at the club's grounds at Hunters' Inn.

Daniel Best, the veteran president of the club who never misses a shoot, was an enthusiastic competitor and his score showed his eye has lost none of its keenness. The competition consisted of ten different shoots and splendid scores were registered by the marksmen who came from Vallejo, San Jose, Hayward, San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and other centers.

First prize winners who each secured a ten-pound box of cherries were J. Flickenzer of Vallejo, C. H. Knight, San Francisco; F. Webster, San Leandro; C. Schilling and Mrs. C. Schilling, San Jose; M. O. Fuedner, San Francisco; R. Brickell, Vallejo; S. Jacobson, San Francisco; F. K. Burnham, Martinez; J. S. French, San Francisco.

Winners of a five-pound box of cherries, the second prize, were J. Flickenzer, C. H. Knight, C. Schilling, M. O. Fuedner Jr., L. B. Smith, San Leandro; R. Brickell, F. K. Burnham and R. Beckum, Berkeley.

A club shoot between teams captained by M. O. Fuedner and C. H. Knight resulted in a win for Fuedner's team by two birds.

The officials of the San Leandro Gun Club who superintended today's shoot were Daniel Best, president; F. Webstetr, field superintendent, and L. B. Smith, secretary.

RICHMOND, May 30.—The annual celebration of the Society of the Holy Ghost commenced last night at San Pablo. The festivities are being held in Maple Hall. The initial feature was a parade of the members of the organization, the central feature being the removal of the crown of the holy ghost from a private residence to the hall.

Today the crown will be removed from the hall to the church, where the usual ceremonies will be performed. Later it will be returned to the hall, and at the close of the affair will be placed in the home of some member of the Catholic parish, where it will remain for the ensuing year.

Dancing was enjoyed last night, and a barbecue will follow the church service this morning.

FACES TRIAL SECOND TIME WITHIN WEEK

RICHMOND, May 30.—"Slim" Kiefer, dismissed at the conclusion of a jury trial on a charge of battery this week, is again in the toils of the police, charged with disturbing the peace. Kiefer, with Bob Cleek, was tried this week on a battery charge, preferred by Huber Swanson. The jury disagreed and rather than be tried a second time the two pleaded guilty. Cleek was fined $75 and Kiefer released. It is alleged that Kiefer last night threatened to "clean out" a Macdonald avenue saloon.

HAYWARD 'COLTS' DEFEAT 'HASBEENS'

San Leandro's Former Stars Seen in Losing Contest.

HAYWARD, May 30.—The Hayward "Colts" showed they had some "kick" when they knocked Judge D. U. Toffelmier's "Has-Beens" temporarily off the baseball map in a memorable struggle on the Hayward diamond this afternoon. The game was played as a benefit to pay [illegible] ed by several hundred rooters from the two cities. Music was discoursed at intervals by the Hayward band.

The San Leandro nine, composed of veteran stars and managed by Judge Toffelmier, had a triumphal entry into Hayward in autos, accompanied by a crowd of supporters.

From the offset it was evident that the young blood in the Hayward team had the advantage of speed over their sturdy opponents, but the "Has-Beens" belied their uncomplimentary nickname by loosening out and exhibiting some of their old form. While the 21 to 15 win by Hayward was a fair criterion of the run of play, the visiting veterans made a breakaway on different occasions and looked as though they were to carry off the honors. "Wait until we get you on the San Leandros' diamond," say the San Leandro nine, who are longing for the return encounter, which will take place early in the summer.

Nine innings were played and both teams showed up well. Among the veteran stars in the San Leandro team whose play was conspicuous were Dr. C. A. Wills, A. S. Weaver, D. U. Toffelmier, Fred Schmidt and C. L. Best.

The lineup of the two teams was: Walter Ellis, catcher; William Oswill or George Oakes Jr., pitcher; W. Knightly, first base; Al Lacunha, second base; Professor Johnson, third base; Chief Riggs, shortstop; Captain J. J. Borree, left field; Dr. Thomas Long, center field; James Ramage, right field; James E. Geary, first scout; John Allan Park, second scout; Bud Haley (second Doc. Frost); manager, Charles Heyer; I. B. Parsons, bat carrier, and H. R. Robinson, water buck.

San Leandro—Parke Wilson, catcher; C. L. Best, pitcher; D. U. Toffelmier, first base; I. B. Ury, second base; J. Toffelmier, third base; Arthur Larsen, short stop; fielders, A. A. Rogers, J. W. Dignan, Fred Schmidt, Manuel Bettencourt and Dr. C. A. Wills.

Each team was accompanied by its ambulance corps and "camp followers." Along with the San Leandro nine went Marshal Joseph Peralta and Constable Manuel Borge as custodians.

The Hayward arrangements committee consisted of Rinaldo Reid, A. W. Beam, H. R. Robinson, Frank Freitas, Judge Prowse, Frank Mitchell, J. D. Armstrong, J. E. Welsh, E. K. Strobridge, H. E. Brunner, George Oakes, S. C. Smith.

Ambulance Committee — Dr. F. W. Browning, Dr. U. C. Billingsley, Dr. Galbraith, Dr. Alexander, Dr. Medos, Dr. Nelson and Dr. Long.

MARKSMEN TO MEET AT MARTINEZ SHOOT

MARTINEZ, May 30.—The California Gun Club with not less than 200 members in attendance will be in session here on three days of July 27, 28 and 29 for their annual shoot, according to the plans laid by F. K. Burnham, who will know on Monday definitely as to the decision of the directorate.

The traps will be set on the Bay View baseball park and a schuetzen fest for the trinity of days will be in progress with the cracking of guns filling the air about Martinez with melody.

Burnham has made tentative arrangements for the gathering and he is confident that the clay bird shooters will come as per schedule. He has gone so far as to consult with Mayor McNamara in order to make arrangements for the housing of the trigger men.

Instead of tents, it is proposed to arrange with the railroad company to supply Pullman sleepers for those who cannot be accommodated with rooms.

The railroad company will also be asked to make a rate of a fare and third from all points in the state on the occasion. The members of the club abide all over California and in addition to membership there are many not of the organization who will attend the session as sightseers and to enjoy the frolic and sport.

HOLY GHOST FIESTA PLANNED BY I. D. E. S.

CONCORD, May 30.—The next event to be held in Concord is the Holy Ghost celebration, to be held on the sixth and seventh of June. The several committees are working earnestly and expect to make the celebration this year, the best ever held in Concord. The main place of festivities will be in the I. D. E. S. park, in the Baldwin addition.

On Sunday, June 6, a parade will be formed at the home of J. B. Silvey, from where the crown will be taken to the I. D. E. S. park, and there it will be placed in a house made especially for the occasion. The Concord band will play during the parade. After the parade, there will be a grand ball in the I. O. O. F. hall and in Rosa's hall. The Concord band will play at Rosa's hall, while an orchestra composed of stringed instruments will furnish the music at the I. O. O. F. hall, where dancing in the Portuguese style will be the main feature.

On Sunday morning the parade will lead from the I. D. E. S. park to All Saints church, where mass will be celebrated. After mass, the parade will lead back to the I. D. E. S. park, where a grand barbecue will be served, to which all are invited to attend. After the barbecue, the sale of stock and of several other articles will take place. In the meantime, dancing on the platform in the park will furnish amusement for all.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WORKERS ENTERTAINED

CONCORD, May 30.—The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church held an indoor picnic Tuesday night in the church parlors in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Lee and children.

The church parlors were decorated to represent picnic grounds. Such signs as "Keep Off the Grass," "Don't Pull the Flowers," and "Lovers' Lane" and others were posted upon the picnic grounds.

Sides were chosen and a track meet held. Miss Linda Adams was captain on one side, and Miss Winnie Bollman captain on the other side. Relay, hurdle, and the "broad-grin," etc., were indulged in. Mr. Frater had charge of the track meet, and Miss Helen Smith and Mrs. Elworthy were the judges. Miss Winnie Bollman's side made the most points.

Rugs were spread on the floor, the guests were invited to be seated and the picnic lunch was served.

The picnic was brought to a close by all singing the old familiar songs. Miss Fay Soto presided at the piano. The duet by Miss Helen Smith and Miss Isabel Brown was well rendered.

INSURANCE RATE IN TOWN REDUCED

New Fire Apparatus Is Cause of Lowering of Costs.

SAN LEANDRO, May 30.—This city has been given a reduction of from 15 to 25 cents in its fire insurance rates by the Board of Fire Underwriters. The cut in the rates in the business section averages 20 cents and is due to the equipping of the [fire department with a motor] truck. The fire insurance rate schedule effects only the business section of the city. Comparison of the newly issued rates with previous rates shows practically no change in the residence section, which is lower than most towns of a like size in the country.

Property owners greatly appreciate the reduction which shows that the cost of the new fire apparatus was money spent in the right direction. While there had been talk of a reduction in the fire rates, the cut has been given unsolicited.

San Leandro has enjoyed a remarkable immunity from fires for a city of its size. Only three or four serious outbreaks have occurred within the past eight years. Fire Chief Bud Eber recently took up the matter of increasing the efficiency of the department by installing a motor fire truck and the proposal with the approval of the town trustees, a $5000 truck being installed in the firehouse in charge of Chris Hopper.

SPEEDWAY, Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—Breaking one world's record after another, Rene Thomas, French driver of the De Lage, a French car, won this afternoon the most spectacular mile race in the history of the Speedway. The triumph of France was all but complete, for other French drivers finished second, third and fourth. Of the six Frenchmen entered, only Boillot and Chassagne failed to get within the money. Thomas not only won the race, with its $20,000 prize, but also all the prizes offered for the leader at each 100-mile post.

The condition of Joe Dawson, who heroically risked his life to avoid helpless Ray Gilhooley, lying prone upon the track, was problematical tonight. He was driven very slowly in an ambulance to the hospital. Doctors said he may have internal injuries. His collar bone was broken, his shoulder crushed and he had repeated hemorrhages. His car rolled over and over again on the treacherous southwest curve. Dawson went out in his forty-first lap.

INJURIES NUMEROUS.

Injuries to others were slight. Barnes, mechanician for Dawson, received cuts and bruises over face and body. Chassagne, driver of the Sunbeam, was bruised when his car turned over. Mitchell, his mechanician, was cut about the face and head. Gilhooley, who lay unconscious before Dawson's on-rushing car, had bad cuts about his head. Bonani, his aide, received body cuts and bruises.

There was little change in position during the closing laps of the race. The immense American audience of over 100,000, which sighed with relief when the much-feared Boillot was forced out with a broken frame, became resigned to the inevitable when within the space of a few minutes the two most likely American cars, Bragg's Mercer and Wishart's Mercer, both ranking near the lead, were forced out by minor accidents.

OLDFIELD IS APPLAUDED.

Barney Oldfield, best known American driver in the game, received the greatest ovation of his career when lap after lap he held his own at fifth place. With four Frenchmen before him and a Belgian crowding him from the rear, the dean of the American pilots forced his White Stutz along.

Boillot did not drop out of the race before he had given his compatriot, Thomas, challenge for first place. First one and then the other led for many laps, with Thomas always nosing to the front at the 100-mile mark. Finally, when Boillot's car failed him and he slowly drew into the pit, he was heartbroken. This Frenchman is the most-feared driver of Europe and was the favorite in this race. He went out on his 147th lap, with nearly three-fourths of the race covered.

After the race, when the Frenchmen gathered in the pits, they saluted each other with kisses and embraces. Goux celebrated by breaking a bottle of wine over the nose of his car.

INTENSE MOMENT.

The most tense moment in the race came when Gilhooley's Issotta skidded, turned over and threw driver and mechanician unconscious in the middle of the track at a dangerous curve. Dawson's Marmon was approaching at terrific speed. The track was saturated with oil and very dangerous. Dawson knew that to avoid crushing the men before him he must sacrifice his chance to win and perhaps his life. But the Marmon swerved. It seemed to leap in the air. It came down with a crash of twisting iron and rolled over and over, while Dawson was thrown under one part of the car and his assistant under the other.

Gilhooley was the first to regain consciousness. He could not rise. He began pulling painfully toward the side of the course. Guards rescued Gilhooley and his aide. Dawson was carried to the hospital.

The incident recalled a similar one in the first speedway race. Knight swerved, saving the lives of two men and miraculously escaping serious injury. Knight, thrown from his car in another race, was struck by a car and killed.

SECOND MUNICIPAL RAILWAY LINE OPENED

SEATTLE, Wash., May 30.—With the opening to traffic here today of an electric line nine miles in length to Lake Burien, the second unit of Seattle's municipally-owned street street railway system was put in operation. Seattle now has about 13 miles of street railway under control and hopes in time to own every line in the city.

ESPERANTISTS HOLD BIG PICNIC

UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE IS SUNG

THELMA BROCK, 7-YEAR-OLD ESPERANTO ENTHUSIAST AND MEMBER OF THE BAY CITIES ESPERANTO CLUBS, AT THEIR OUTING IN MOSSWOOD PARK YESTERDAY.

Big Crowd Gathers to Discuss the Work of Bay Students

Ham sandwiches became something else and hard boiled eggs were called by a strange name, likewise coffee, doughnuts, cheese, pickles, cake and fruit were designated by appellations unusual in the ordinary category of picnic festivity when the Bay City Esperanto Clubs met yesterday afternoon in Mosswood Park for an outing. It was a strange tongue which visitors to the park heard about the tables and benches where the Esperantists gathered. "La Esepor," the international anthem of the organization, was sung as the picnickers sat down to lunch. There were addresses in Esperanto by a number of prominent students of the new language. Both old and young Esperantists discussed matters of the day in their language. The picnic was a unique affair, although the attendance was not so great as had been expected owing to the illness of one of the San Francisco teachers who had planned to be present with her large class of children.

H. B. Weaver, president of the San Francisco Club and recently of Sacramento, was present with his family, having made the trip from the capital especially to attend the picnic.

"The Esperanto movement is spreading rapidly throughout the world," said Weaver. "In North America of course there is not so much need of a universal language as in the countries of Europe which are close together and all of a widely different tongue. The clubs of the bay cities have grown immensely in the last few years and now have large memberships. It is only a matter of time when Esperanto will be spoken widely throughout the world."

According to the leaders in the local clubs, there is a movement on foot to hold a meeting of the "Tutpacifika Esperanto Kongreso" in San Francisco next year. A. S. Vinzent, treasurer of the Pan-Pacific Congress, was present at the picnic yesterday and spoke enthusiastically over the prospects for a convention next year which would be attended by delegates from all over this country, and many from foreign countries as well.

Miss M. D. Van Sloun, secretary of the San Francisco Esperanto Club, was one of the principal speakers yesterday. The picnickers sat down to a sumptuous repast under the trees at Mosswood. Among the other speakers during the afternoon were A. J. Baker, president of the Berkeley Club; F. E. Cornish, president of the Oakland Club; H. I. Stern, school director of Berkeley and Mrs. S. C. Rice of San Francisco. Prominent at the head of the table was the Esperanto flag, green with a corner in white containing a green five-pointed star. The members wore the Esperanto emblems.

One of the young Esperantists was Thelma Brock, 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. J. N. Brock, 867 Athens street. With her mother little Miss Brock was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Weaver, her uncle and aunt of Sacramento.

To Close New Zealand To Asiatics, Is Plan

LONDON, May 30.—A Christ Church dispatch to the Daily Mail says the government has announced it will introduce legislation in June stopping immigration of Asiatics to New Zealand.

QUARRELS OVER PHONE, THEN TRIES SUICIDE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Miss Hazel Fisher, who lives at the Serrento Hotel, telephoned to her sweetheart this afternoon, and receiving an unsatisfactory reply to her message over the wire, swallowed a quantity of iodine. She was hurried to the Central Emedgency Hospital and will recover. The quarrel with the young man of her choice was responsible for the attempt.

Squaw Killed Man, Is Charge of Indians

KLAMATH, Ore., May 30.—Alleged to have picked up Peter Phillips, an aged Indian, by his neck cloth and to have swung him around her head, causing injuries which killed him, White Cindy, a Klamath medicine squaw, was arrested at the Indian agency today. The alleged attack was made while the Indians were cleaning up the reservation cemetery for Memorial day. "White Cindy has the strength of three men," say the Indians.

King Meets Roosevelt In a Royal Audience

MADRID, May 30.—King Alfonso received in audience Kermit Roosevelt, together with Col. Joseph E. Willard, American Ambassador to Spain, Mrs. Willard and Miss Belle Wyatt Willard. His Majesty conversed for some time with Roosevelt, questioning him on his recent experiences in Brazil and listening attentively to the narrative of the explorations made by the party.

WOODEN HORSES FAIL TO GET GOOD HANDLING

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Joy riders on a rampage were undoubtedly responsible for the destruction and maiming of 50 horses on the ocean boulevard early this morning. The horses were on a merry-go-round belonging to Chris Stathis, 238 Lexington avenue, and their tails were amputated and ink thrown over the wooden bodies, rendering them useless. Also 18 rolls of music were destroyed and 20 pennies taken from the automatic piano.

POLICE AUTO WRECKED BY CAR

Officer Pinned Under Machine, but Escapes With Life.

Struck by a northbound Alameda electric train at Fourteenth and Franklin streets yesterday afternoon, Patrolman Jack Sherry, driving a large touring car belonging to the Police Department, had a narrow escape from serious injury or death. The automobile was badly wrecked, Sherry was thrown to one side and escaped with a few minor bruises.

He was driving the automobile west along Fourteenth street and, according to his story of the accident, heard no warning signal from the motorman of the train, which had just left the station bound up Franklin street.

The train was in charge of Motorman A. Christiansen and Conductor S. Bates.

A crowd collected about the overturned automobile thinking that the driver had been severely injured. Sherry emerged from the wreck without assistance. The front axle of his car was sprung, the radiator badly damaged and one of the wheels wrecked. The machine was hurled across the street from the force of the impact.

Veteran Barrister Is Summoned in Berkeley

BERKELEY, May 30.—N. E. Caldwell, for 30 years a prominent member of the California bar, died this afternoon at his home, 1505 Euclid avenue. He was 61 years of age. For the past four years he had been manager of the J. G. James estate, with offices in San Francisco. Before that he practiced for 26 years in Fresno, going there from Colorado, his native state. He had been ill a month, his death resulting from pneumonia.

He is survived by his wife and two sons, Cuthbert and Cedric Caldwell. The funeral will be held Monday at Fresno.

ATHLETES RUN AT SCOTCH GAMES

Ten Thousand Gather at Caledonian Club Celebration.

Ten thousand people gathered at Shell Mound Park yesterday afternoon to enjoy the annual games of the Caledonian Club and pay honor to Scotland.

The games were staged under perfect weather conditions, and some of the best material available on the Pacific Coast was in the competition, including George Horine, Eddie Pearson, champion jumpers, and Mallard, Club.

The native Scotch competitions were interesting, and as the entries were not limited to amateurs, the exhibitions of the Highland and other dances were of a high order.

Owing to the condition of the athletic field, the track events brought forth no records, but some of the races were very close and furnished the lovers of sport an enjoyable afternoon.

The elaborate costumes worn by some of the prominent Scotchmen of the bay section made a picturesque sight, as bagpipes led the parade around the track at the beginning of the exercises.

Prizes aggregating a value of $500 were offered to the winners of the field, dancing and bagpipe competitions. The summary:

OFFICER PHILIPS ON VACATION.

Policeman J. L. Phillips, of the lower Broadway squad, is off duty on a vacation of two weeks. He, with Mrs. Phillips, will visit a number of summer places in Lake county before returning to Oakland.

THOUSANDS HONOR DEPARTED

Graves Adorned With Flowers, Amid Song and Speech

That yesterday's Memorial Day celebration was one of the most impressive ever held in the history of Oakland is the report made by officers of the Grand Army of the Republic who directed the affair. The veterans, in their report, declare that the celebration far outclassed that of many years past, when the Grand Army was a far larger and stronger body.

The veterans, with the auxiliaries, and assisted by the War Veterans, Sons of Veterans and others, made Memorial Day in Oakland no [illegible] an occasion than in the other large cities throughout the nation where the veterans honored their dead.

The veterans were assisted by public and private subscriptions in their work, and expect to report expenditure of considerably less a sum than was given them.

Observance Held at Lone Tree Cemetery

HAYWARD, May 30.—"The thinning out of the ranks of the veterans is becoming more and more evident each Memorial day." Rev. J. H. N. Williams of Berkeley reminded his hearers in a Memorial day address at a ceremony held in Lone Tree cemetery this morning under the auspices of the Hayward Veterans' League, assisted by Company H, National Guard, the Hill and Valley Club and the Union Civic Center.

Since the last muster of old soldiers a year ago the Pension Bureau statistics showed that 50,000 veterans had answered the last roll call. Several familiar faces were missing from the little band of Hayward veterans which gathered around the graves of their old-time comrades, and the flowers strewn over the soldiers' plot by girls of the high school on new made graves.

The toll in life and money exacted by the Civil War is a lesson to the whole world, said Dr. Williams in his oration. Not even the bloodiest of modern wars had been carried on with such loss of life as had the struggle between the North and South. The Civil War had cost the country $700,000,000 besides many thousands of lives.

Eloquent introductory remarks were made by Commander E. F. Giddings, who also read General Logan's order No. 11, instituting Memorial day 46 years ago. A bugle call, the firing of a salute by Company H, a benediction and patriotic music completed the impressive Memorial day exercises, which were attended by a large number of the citizens. "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" was given by a double quartet of business men, including Messrs. Pratt, Beam, Sorensen, Park, McKown, Rodrick, Gray and Dias.

5000 in Attendance at Richmond Ceremony

RICHMOND, May 30.—More than 5000 persons from the bay cities this morning attended the memorial services at the Sunset View cemetery, near the county line. The exercises of the local post of the Grand Army, was officer of the day and delivered one of the main addresses. E. E. Grow of Stotsenberg camp also spoke.

The invocation of the day was offered by Rev. D. W. Calfee, pastor of the Wesley Methodist church of this city.

Members of the local circle of the Ladies of the Grand Army decorated the graves and led in the singing of patriotic songs.

A large delegation of the Richmond Lodge of Elks and the Point Richmond Aerie of Eagles participated, meeting the delegation from the patriotic organizations at the end of the car line. The several lodges and encampments paraded from the car line to the burial grounds, headed by the drum corps of the local Eagles' lodge. Ten automobiles were furnished by the Sunset View Cemetery Association for the transportation of the visitors to and from the grounds.

Oaklander Dedicates Poetry to Veterans

A feature of the Oakland Grand Army ceremonies at Evergreen cemetery was the reading of a poem, written by E. Bisbee Taylor, and recited by the author, as a portion of the Memorial day exercises. The poem follows.

THE VETERAN'S REVERIE.

O'er the bloom-laden orchard, over the vine mantled wall;
Over the field and the forest, far down where the ships come and go,
White-haired, he sat in the sunlight and thought of the long, long ago

SCENE OF THE BATTLE.

He lived again in the battle, where the sullen cannon roared
From the brazen throats, and the steel-girt mouth their missiles of death outpoured,
The hissing shot and shrieking shell like voices that spell despair,
Blent with the fearful sounds that rent the quivering, terrified air.
The fort in the distance seemed like a huge, fierce, growling couchant beast
With smoking breath, tongues of flame reveling in a gruesome feast.
They saw battalion after battalion charge, only to meet their doom;
They, too, were waiting their turn to charge for they knew their time would come.

THE CHARGE.

Fix bayonets! Forward! Then they charged. No time for prayers, hope or fear;
Closing the gaps made by shot and shell that struck down their comrades dear;
On where battalions had melted 'neath the enemy's deadly fire,
On, on, up the corpse-strewn hillside to feed Carnage's insatiate desire.

Over the breast-works, into the fort, desperate fighting, hand to hand
Steel to steel sword and bayonet, shouts and stern command,
Blow for blow, thrust for thrust, striking the foe down into the dust
Defending their flag and their country too, though die they must

Capturing the cannon, forward they press, naught else do they know or see,
Except the flag waving o'er them—the flag of the brave and the free.
Old Glory that glint on the hilltop, shot-torn and with life-blood stained,
Heart-thrilling the cheers. Ah! the joy, when the victory is proclaimed.

When the veteran is thinking over the past at the close of Memorial day,
How the fire of youth stirs his blood at the thought of victory.

As he thought of the wounded, dying and dead —two himself had slain;
One with the butt of his rifle, the other with bayonet thrust.
They fell with agonized faces upturned, to be trampled into the dust.

The sweet notes of the whip-o'-will as their evening song they sing,
Fall like the tones of vesper bells that angels gently ring;
And the rust'ling among the blossoms are like angels' whispering wings,
Wafting odors as from censor which unseen seraphs swing.

THE VISION.

Was it ethereal or earthly that came to him while he dreamed?
'Twas a presence fair—a woman—and a halo around her gleamed.
The radiance in her face and smile, in her luminous, glorious eyes,
Bespoke the Soul redeemed by Love, that God's Truth purifies.

[illegible] of Memorial day.
When the veteran wanders in dreamland, where fanciful thoughts have full play,

That she came with some purpose good, he seemed to know and feel,
That life's problems and its mysteries their meaning would reveal.
"Be thou a presence or a woman, thou wilt tell me right," he said.
For the infidels and scoffers say there is no God o'erhead.

"That His preachers in the battle are ever praying unto God
To help them in their slaughter, in shedding human blood,
'Till God's green fields and pastures, His mountain and His plain,
Are stained red with the life-blood of the wounded and the slain."

"That He takes mothers from their children, heeding not the orphan's wail and tears,
Bring death into happy homes, fills fond hearts with grief and fears,
Sends pestilence and famine, tornado, war and flood,
And that even Satan—fiendish though he be—is far more kind than God."

"Then tell me, gentle Presence, for thou know'st the Prophet said,
In Holy Writ, that woman's heel should bruise the serpent's head;
When war is spreading terror, when there's famine, pestilence and flood,
Sweet Presence, tell me if thou can'st, pray tell me, where is God?

THE MESSAGE.

"God is ever-present," she smiling said, "Omnipotent. Supreme.
And these evils are but the nightmare that obsess the Finite dream.
He sendeth not famine and pestilence, nor tornado, war nor flood,
For He's our loving Father, the ever-present Good."

"'Our Father in Heaven is infinite love and Heaven is here, within;
He knows not the horrors of the Finite dream War, Famine, Disease and Sin;
God is the Infinite Triune-Principle—Life, Truth and Love,
The Infinite Mind is All-in-All, within, round all, above."

"Truth brings the elements of real freedom, there's naught its power can withstand,
And it comes not in the horrors of War, that devastates the land
Not in the reeking saber-strokes, nor cannon mouth scorching breath,
Not in the deadly bayonet thrust, nor the battle's missiles of death."

"Thou did'st thy duty well, then heed not the scoffer's sneers and jeers,
The Ever-present Truth will set you free from all your doubts and fears,
Thou can'st not give, thou can'st not take, that which belongs alone to God,
For His Eternal Life is the only life—thus it is written in His word.

"Noble your purpose, brave your deeds when you set the Bondman free;
When you offered your life your country to save, in the cause of liberty;
And when each one of your nation breaks the chains by which they are bound,
The shackles of Malice, hatred and Sin—real Liberty will be found."

Then a new light will gleam from Old Glory, from its Red, its Blue and its White,
The light of Truth, that sets nations free—Freedom's Holy Light,
Its Stars will then shine with a radiance like the Star of Bethlehem
When the Heavenly Chorus sang at night,

Fair the forecast for their country, brilliant the lights that 'round Old Glory play,
Which the veteran sees in fair dreamland at the close of Memorial day.

And just as sure as sure can be, you were fast asleep.
We scatter'd flowers on the soldiers' graves, I went with Uncle Lee,
And, and, O! cooke, grandma says supper is ready, and I'm hungry as hungry can be.

[illegible]L GIVE ENTERTAINMENT
[illegible]PILS ARE IN THE PROGRAM

PUPILS OF THE LAZEAR SCHOOL, WHO TOOK PART IN AN ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN RECENTLY: LEFT TO RIGHT, VIVIAN MORDECAIR, MAMIE DE COSTA AND THELMA MASON.

Pupils of the primary classes of the Lazear school of this city appeared at their first entertainment given Friday afternoon in the assembly hall of the school, Park avenue and Elmwood street. Several hundred boys and girls took part in the program, which was arranged by the instructors of the first, second and third grades. The numbers included folk dances, songs and sketches. Miss Emma Kane, principal of the school, acted as mistress of ceremonies and presented the children.

Attired in white the girls gave an exhibition of the folk dances, which are now in vogue in nearly all the schools throughout the city. Among the folk dances were "The Shoemaker," "Hey, Little Lassie," and "Jolly Is the Miller." Among the songs were "The Swing," "The Bounding Ball," "Pussy's Home," and "Butterfly."

At the close of the program the visitors viewed an exhibition of articles made by the little folks. In the display were specimens of raffia work, and their free-hand drawing and baskets. Among those who took part in the dances were: Audry Merritt, Violet Mordecair, Lucy de Costa, Thelma Mason, Mamie de Costa, Vivian Mordecair and Eda Allaf.

EGYPT IS TOPIC OF LAST LECTURE

Affiliated Colleges to Hear the Last Talk on Land of Pharoahs.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The last illustrated lecture of the series on Egypt will be given on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the auditorium of the University of California Museum of Anthropology at the Affiliated Colleges. "Early Christian Egypt and Nubia" is the title of the lecture, which is to be given by Assistant Curator E. W. Gifford.

The rise of Christianity during Roman rule in Egypt will be traced and the customs and ideas of the times will be told. Readings from contemporaneous letters and accounts of business transactions, excavated in Egypt, will give the audience the local color at first hand.

The great Egyptian collection, gathered through the generosity of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst and on view at the Museum, not only deals with the Egyptians for four thousand years before the time of Christ, but likewise exhibits numerous specimens from Christian Egypt. A special selection has been made from these and placed in the Museum's weekly exhibit case, where they serve to illustrate certain of the points brought out in the lecture.

In case the audience exceeds the capacity of the lecture hall, as has happened with two recent Egyptian lectures, a second lecture will be given. Car line No. 6 takes visitors direct to the Museum without change.

SERVIANS TO CELEBRATE NATIONAL HOLIDAY

Elaborate preparations are being made for the great jubilee of freedom which the Servians of California are going to hold at Schuetzen park in Marin county on Sunday, June 28. Similar jubilees will be held by Servian people in all parts of the globe at the same time. The celebration is one of deep historic significance, as it betokens the dawn of national independence in Servia after five centuries of servitude to Turkey. Added interest attaches to the festivities because they are to be held on Videv-Dan, the holy day of the Servian bard. Videv-Dan, St. Vitus' day, in 1389, the Servian army was exterminated by the Turks, and every year since then the annual holiday has been observed with sorrow and prayers by the Servians. This year, for the first time in five centuries, it will be celebrated in a spirit of rejoicing, as it is believed that, as a result of the Turko-Servian war of last year, the Servian government will be restored to its former eminence.

The committee of arrangements for the local celebration consists of J. I. Mitrovich, George S. Ivelich, M. Gelavich, S. Gudely, D. Bubalo, T. Popovich, L. Radinovich, P. Zlakovich and [illegible] Chuchkovich of San Francisco, L. [illegible]ubibratich, M. Dutra, V. Radanovich, M. Zambelich and N. Samardzich of Oakland and M. Tomich of [illegible]ville.

FARM WORK WILL GET LARGE SUM

Rockefeller Fund to Aid in the Demonstrations of Colleges.

NEW YORK, May 30.—The general education board which administers the John D. Rockefeller fund yesterday announced appropriations totalling $1,400,000 to eastern universities and colleges and for the purpose of carrying on farm demonstration instruction and boys and girls clubs in Maine and New Hampshire.

A report covering a careful study of the status of rural education through the country was submitted to the board. It was pointed out that the state departments of education often lack the organization to make thorough surveys of rural schools and to organize state forces with a view to developing adequate systems of rural education. The board decided to support rural schools again attached to the office of the state superintendents of instructions and a general agent for the purpose of bringing about co-operation between the several states in order to initiate a country-wide movement for the general improvement of rural schools. An initial appropriation of $50,000 was made for starting this work in twelve or fifteen states, the states to be chosen by conference between the officers of the board and the state departments of education. For the support of supervisors of rural negro schools, $30,000 was appropriated.

The board was enlarged by the election to membership of George E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota.

BIG INCREASE SEEN IN CIVIL LITIGATION

FRESNO, May 30.—An examination made yesterday of the records in the county clerk's office to answer a passing inquiry reveals that there has been a notable increase in civil litigation during the year ending yesterday and a decided falling off in criminal cases.

The number of civil cases was sufficient to assign four cases per day for trial to each of the two judges for the 278 court days of the year. Of divorce cases there was a number sufficient almost to furnish one case for trial for every court day.

The total number of civil cases for the year is 1045, as against 833 for the year before, and 265 of the number were actions for divorce. Proceedings were instituted in 292 estates of the dead and 160 criminal prosecutions were commenced. Against the divorce record is one of 1110 marriage licenses granted for the year.

The juvenile court having to do with delinquencies of minors disposed of 109 cases, which is a falling off in the record. Besides the above court work, 300 declarations of intention were taken and 173 petitions for citizenship, taking no account of the examinations of insane, the issuance of hunting and fishing licenses, the registration of voters and all the other clerical work connected with the office.

START PETITION FOR ROAD WORK BONDS

PORTERVILLE, May 30. — Petitions calling on the supervisors to appoint a county highway commission were circulated here yesterday, the Porterville signatures being secured in a short time. About 100 names were assigned. The petitions are to be filed June 1st, to start proceedings in connection with the proposed issue of $1,000,000 bonds for good roads.

NO MORE WOMEN, PENITENT WAILS

Not for Year, While He's in Jail, Anyway; Afterward, Maybe.

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—Denouncing women as faithless, Clarence A. Lee, arrested and prosecuted by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Lee, when discovered in company with the "other women," today began serving a year's sentence in the city jail.

Lee pleaded guilty to a violation of the rooming house ordinance in hopes that he would be allowed freedom on suspended sentence. His wife, however, objected to leniency in any form.

"I am done with women forever," said Lee in his cell at the city jail today. "In a year from now, when I leave this place, I will have nothing to do with women. I know it sounds a little out of place for me to say this where I am, but it was a woman whom I once thought I loved that put me here.

WHAT RUDYARD SAID.

"You remember what Kipling said about the female of the species being more deadly than the male. No one ever wrote a truer line. A woman naturally is revengeful. She will never forget.

"She will forgive, but the thought of the trouble will remain with her forever. She will take it to the grave with her.

"Six years ago I met a girl I thought I loved. I believe I did love her at the time. We soon discovered that we could not live together. We agreed to part. I went my way, she went hers. We thought of divorce, but never acted. At first I sent her money, but I found that it was not doing her any good, so I stopped.

AN INDIAN MEMORY.

"I thought that everything between us was forgotten and buried. Then, four years after I had last seen her, I met her on the street. I was with Mrs. Laura Laycock. When she asked me to show her where we lived, I did. I did not know anything was going to happen. The next day she took us to the prosecuting attorney's office, and here I am. If that does not prove my argument that a woman never forgets I don't know what does.

"Women are faithless. Revenge is always before them. Never think you can get away from it. Sooner or later she will get you.

"I say I am done with women forever, but who knows? Probably when I am released I will meet my one true mate.

"But until then—no more of the female of the species. They are more deadly than the male."

GAELIC DANCERS AT BIG PICNIC

Well Known Stars Will Appear at Red Branch Affair

A great carnival of Gaelic dancing in which practically all of the expert Irish dancers in California will participate is to be held at Shell Mound Park next Sunday, June 7th, when the annual picnic and games of the Knights of the Red Branch take place.

All of the picturesque folk dances of the Emerald Isle will be demonstrated by native dancers, and pretty girls and graceful men will vie for the honor of being acclaimed the champion dancer of the Golden State. There will be competitive dancing events for boys, girls, men and women, and the Knights have arranged to award handsome prizes to the winners.

Among the best known of the dancers who will compete are the Misses Rena Taube, Frances Dougherty, Bessie Allen, Pearl Hickman, Clara Coyne, Eileen Keohane and Messrs. Dan Cotter, P. J. Kelleher, Edward Courtney, William O'Dwyer, John O'Connell and D. O'Mahoney.

In addition to the Gaelic dancing and other amusements and pastimes typical of the Irish people, there will be one of the biggest athletic meets of the year under the auspices of the Pacific Athletic Association. The two-mile handicap race for the Kelleher diamond medal will bring together the pick of the crack distance runners in this part of the State.

FRESNO CLUB READY FOR ITS HIGH JINKS

FRESNO, May 30.—The members of the Fresno Sequoia Club have begun preparations for their annual "jinks" and the committee in charge has made a solemn promise that this affair will outdo anything in this line ever before attempted by the club.

The "jinks" this year will be held on June 19, 20 and 21, at Pine Flats, on the Kings river, about 28 miles from Fresno. The spot was selected because there is a wide expanse of still water suitable for swimming. The club has long looked for such a place and believes this year that it has found the ideal spot.

One of the features of the outing will be a big barbecue on Saturday, June 20. A ball game is also to be staged on that day. There are other features, however, which will be kept secret until the time arrives to trek to Pine Flats.

The following committee, named by George P. Beveridge, president of the club, has charge of all the arrangements: W. O. Blasingame, chairman; W. J. Cleary, Frank J. Nolan, Ward B. Minturn, Dr. Harry J. Craycroft, L. A. Teague and A. C. Wheelock.

The "jinks" will be formally inaugurated on Friday, June 19, and will close with lunch on June 21.

"GUARANTEE LEGEND" TO SOON BE ABOLISHED

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Department of Agriculture postponed until May 1, 1916, the time when the new regulations abolishing the guarantee legend of the pure foods and drugs act will become effective. Recently the department decided that the legend (guaranteed by guarantor) under the food and drugs act," which has been commonly used by manufacturers, was misleading and deceptive and ordered its abolishment after May 1, 1915. The reason for the postponement was because of the fact that many manufacturers had already supplied themselves with large quantities of labels which could not be used up by May 1, 1915, and which would have caused heavy losses.

RECALL OF SUPERVISOR URGED BY GRAND JURY

SANTA CRUZ, May 30.—The grand jury of Santa Cruz county has given a report recommending that Joseph Ball, supervisor of the San Lorenzo district, be removed for inefficiency. It is claimed in the report of the investigating body that Ball has been grossly careless about road matters, and that the condition of the roads in his district is far below what it should be.

The report recommends that the board of supervisors as a whole take over the affairs in Ball's district until he shall have been "removed by recall or otherwise."

SCENIC DRIVES IN OUR BACK COUNTRY

Most Attractive Trips in West Easy for All Oaklanders

By EDMUND CRINNION.

Some of these fine clear afternoons when you are feeling mighty blue, want to get out in some part of the country where the wind is the sole trace of civilization, and can't make up your mind where to percolate for a short drive, head out over the tunnel road and follow the Orinda Park road, then follow up along the back ridge of the Berkeley hills, which you cross north of Berkeley, and then return home by way of Thousand Oaks and Northbrae sections around and in the university grounds and then home by way of College avenue.

Just for the sake of variety try this trip. In a scant thirty mile drive it embodies all of the scenery and variations usually found in a week's mountain touring and all in a few hours' spin. This route is without doubt one of the most picturesque automobile drives in the West. It traverses back country where at every turn of the road one is confronted with a view of different and apparently broader expanse of mountain, foothill range and canyon scenes. It crosses the hills out over the tunnel road, which in itself is a wonderful drive. Then drops gradually to the bed of the canyon below, and twitches abruptly along another canyon roadbed, it takes another quick turn to the left and follows a steady, steep and winding grade upward, along the back ridges of the hills, shooting you through scenery that you can in turn compare with Mendocino, Humboldt Lake and Napa county views. Then heads you almost directly into a sawmill scene so realistic that you begin to think you are in the mountains of Oregon, but before you can crank up your talking motor, you find yourself hurtled headlong onto a perfect boulevard with a panorama below that covers all of Berkeley, Richmond, the water of San Pablo bay, San Francisco and Marin counties with the Golden Gate itself dividing the scape. It all happens so sudden that to even speak at the time seems irreverant to one making the trip for the first time. When you finally get your breath, you will, for a few minutes, speak in a whisper.

Just one word of caution. Do NOT make this trip during or within a few days after a rain storm, for the natural roadbed is, when wet, one of the slick, slimy, skiddy varieties and nothing but chains on all four wheels or Nobby Tread tires, like which the pathfinding Buick Six, driven by G. H. McCutcheon of the Howard Automobile Company drove securing the data for this map was equipped with, could make the grades. In dry weather the average car can make the trip safely.

To make the trip set speedometer at naught at City Hall. Follow on out Broadway. Two and five-tenths take College avenue on left. Three and four-tenths turn to right on Claremont. Four and one-tenth turn to right past Claremont hotel. Four and two-tenths turn to left on up hill and over Tunnel road. Seven and two-tenths enter tunnel. Ten and four-tenths turn to left, road straight ahead leads to Walnut creek and road to right leads to Moraga. Eleven and four-tenths turn to left, road on right looks like main traveled road, but leads only to the de Laveaga ranch. At 12.7 take road to left up over steep grade. Orinda park on the right, road forks twice here with two branches leading to right down the canyon. Keep climbing on up steady grades to 15.3, keep straight ahead, passing through gate, road on the left up over hill is a private one and a short cut back to Berkeley. It is very steep, but can be negotiated. At 17.1 pass forks of the road—keep straight ahead. At 18.9 lumber camp scene. At 19, pass reservoir and roadfork on the right, and drop onto Spruce street boulevard in Berkeley. At 19.8 pass Highland drive pillars. Follow Spruce street. At 20.3 reach end of the street car line, follow Spruce street to 21.2 and turn to right. At 21.3 turn to left, 21.6 to left, 22. to left, entering College grounds. At 22.3 leave College grounds again near Greek Theatre entrance. At 22.5 short swing to right, thence to left down College avenue. At 23.9 cross Claremont avenue again and home by same road in College avenue.

GOODYEAR ISSUES BULLETIN SERIES

Valuable Information Placed at Disposal of Every Autoist.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company has issued a new series of what are known as "Tire Conservation Service Bulletins," for the purpose of enabling tire users, by proper care, to obtain more mileage from their tires. Goodyear believes that the only good customer is a satisfied customer and the company is for co-operation to obtain the utmost mileage.

There are eighteen bulletins in the series, with such title as "Why Tires Sometimes Go Wrong," "Under-Inflation—Its Consequences," "The Story of a Neglected Cut," etc. The subjects are covered concisely and clearly and the information made as practical and helpful as possible. The following brief quotations from Bulletin No. 1 give the spirit of them all:

"An automobile tire, like the human body, does a magnificent service if treated fairly; if abused, it wears out long before its allotted time. As a help to those who would get utmost mileage, we offer the following suggestions:

"1. Don't drive with under-inflated tires. See Bulletins Nos. 2, 4 and 15.

"2. Don't neglect the little cuts in your tread. See Bulletin No. 3.

"3. Don't encounter severe jolts. See Bulletin No. 4.

"4. Don't delay tire repairs. See Bulletin No. 5.

"5. Don't ruin your tubes. See Bulletin No. 6.

"6. Don't start or stop suddenly. See Bulletin No. 7.

"7. Don't drive with wheels out of alignment. See Bulletin No. 8.

"8. Don't fail to see [illegible] casing. See Bulletin No. 9.

"9. Don't run in ruts; or scrape against the curb. See Bulletin No. 10.

"10. Don't drive in car tracks. See Bulletin No. 11.

"11. Don't use chains—use All-Weather Tread Tires. See Bulletin No. 12.

"12. Don't allow your tires to encounter sharp obstructions. See Bulletin No. 13.

"13. Don't allow grease, oil or acid to touch your tires. See Bulletin No. 14.

"14. Don't allow clincher rims to become bent or rusty. See Bulletin No. 15.

"15. Don't let rust collect on the rims. See Bulletin No. 16.

"16. Don't carry spare tubes unprotected. See Bulletin No. 17.

STUDEBAKER WINS CLIMB.

In the first big hill-climb of the season, held at Atlanta, Studebaker cars won both in their class and in the free-for-all divisions, setting new records up the famous Stewart avenue grade and taking permanent possession of the trophy by virtue of their third consecutive victory in as many seasons.

The first woman motorcyclist of Bloomington, Ill., is Miss Hattie Sutherland.

WANT YOSEMITE OPEN TO AUTOS

During the past week the California State Automobile Association had 288 inquiries from tourists relative to entering Yosemite Valley by way of automobile.

The procedure in opening the Valley to [illegible] Secretary of the Interior at Washington, D. C., annually. This order has been expected for some little time but as yet has not been given. To the end of bringing about the opening at the earliest possible moment, President P. J. Walker sent the following telegram on the 29th:

"Within the last week we have had more than 200 inquiries as to the date of the opening of the Coulterville Road into the Yosemite. Can you see your way clear to order the opening under the old regulations at once.

[illegible] in addition to many other such requests, is hoped will bring about the opening within the next week or ten days.

In his recent record-breaking dash across the continent, E. G. Baker rode 64 miles on railroad ties, crossing bridges and trestles.

LEAKY RADIATOR AND THE REMEDY

Motorists having trouble with radiators are borrowing trouble at compound interest when they resort to the use of compounds and fluxes to temporarily alleviate the troble, according to A. E. Berg, head of the Berg Auto Supply Company and one of the first automobile

"Except in rare cases with radiators of a coarse large tubing the compounds when used fill the tubes choking them up solid. This lessens the cooling area of the radiator and makes it practically useless if the practice is persisted in. We have in our shops every week cases where the use of such preparations have run up expensive repair bills for the car owner, away out of proportion to the expenditure that would have been necessary for us to repair the radiator in first-class shape in the first place. Radiators [illegible] material for the auto owner to experiment with or alloy incompetent repair men to tinker on. Such practices invariably prove costly. The only safe rule for motorists experiencing radiator trouble is to bring the car as soon as possible to a first-class shop and have the trouble fixed properly once and for all."

KISSEL KAR TRAVELS SMITH MOUNTAIN ROAD

E. G. Davies of San Diego, California, describes a trip in a KisselKar "40" seldom attempted by motorists. Running from San Diego to Palomar Davies proceeded over what is known as the Smith Mountain road.

"The Smith Mountain road is scarcely more than a trail," says Davies. "It is extremely steep and tortuous and there are deep ruts nearly the entire distance. But from a scenic standpoint it is a glimpse of Paradise and well worth the trouble. After this trip I am confident that a KisselKar "40" will go anywhere with safety and certainty."

Dan Cupid again made use of the motorcycle recently when George B. Roston, an electrician of Baltimore, and Miss Kate Tharle, rode a two-wheeler to Annapolis where they secured a license and were married.

LOZIER

"Light Four"

$2250

"THE CHOICE OF MEN WHO KNOW"

LOZIER POLICY HAS MADE GOOD—there is no longer any question about that.

MEN, TEN TIMES MILLIONAIRES, have bought that $2250 Lozier Four—proof that such a car appeals not only to those whose limit is "around $2000," but that it appeals still more strongly to the man who knows values and reputations and, regardless of his means, insists on getting full value for his money.

SUCH MEN LOOK more carefully to the men and the policies back of the product than to the product itself. That is shown by the fact that the first three months' output of the Lozier Fours were sold before they were made and in many cases to persons who had never seen or ridden in a car of that model. They knew Loziers, though.

PEERLESS TRUCKS FOR MOUNTAIN STAGE WORK

Three Peerless trucks fitted with passenger bodies began on April 15 their second season's run between Sanger and Home, California.

These comfortable modern vehicles with compartments for passengers' baggage, well upholstered and easy-riding seats, resilient springs and rubber tires replace the kind of stage coaches that Buffalo Bill's Wild West show has made familiar all over the world.

Each truck carries 30 passengers. It travels every day 56 miles over a rough mountain road on which there are 35 miles of steep grades ranging from 15 to 32 per cent. They make all the grades at a very steady speed and are never delayed by overheating trouble which stops most of the motor vehicles that try to cover the road.

In speed, in carrying capacity, regularity of service and small cost per passenger carried, the busses are much superior to the means of transportation which they replaced. Under the extremely difficult conditions which attend their operation they carry 30 passengers a mile for 46 cents.

Your eventual solution of the tire question will be answered by the Cadillac

Standard of the World

Cadillac Means Dependability

What It Means to You:

Your satisfaction with a motor car is limited by its dependability. You can't enjoy a car that you can't depend upon all the time. Ask any experienced motorist and he'll tell you dependability is more important than everything else put together.

If you want dependability and your money's worth of automobile, there's only one car for you—the Cadillac. Its dependability is so well established that more Cadillacs are bought year after year than all other makes combined selling at the Cadillac price or higher.

But price has little to do with it. The majority of Cadillac owners can afford to pay twice the Cadillac price for a dependable car. Many of them have done it—and then have sold their fancy-priced cars and bought Cadillacs—to get greater dependability. Cadillac owners never have any anxiety as to whether their cars will run. You're sure when you buy a Cadillac. ASK ANYBODY.

The 1914 Cadillac with its Two-Speed, Direct Drive Axle, is years ahead of other cars in smoothness, flexibility and riding ease. You'll remark it before you have ridden half a mile. You are not conscious of the engine or of the road. The car just seems to float swiftly through the air.

OVERLAND AUTO ON STRENUOUS JOURNEY

Seattle - San Francisco Route Over Woy of Grant's Pass

A. W. Beck of New York arrived in San Francisco last week in his 1914 Overland car, having come from Seattle to San Francisco in ten days, which included a day layover in Tacoma, Washington, and several days at Portland. Mr. Beck is just completing a trip which has taken him in every important town in the United States.

In speaking of road conditions between Seattle and San Francisco, Beck says: "The roads from Seattle to Tacoma are in perfect condition and as far south as Chehalis are remarkably good, but from Chehalis to Napavine one encounters a very rutty stretch for some five miles and then fair roads to Kelso.

"At Kelso we were urged to ship the car to St. Helens, but this advice we ignored, going through to Kalama without absolutely any trouble at all, and while the roads between these two points are terrible in stretches, they are passable and with care an Overland car will encounter but little trouble. From Kalama we ferried to Goebel and from this latter point on into Portland the roads were fine outside of a five or six mile stretch between Goebel and St. Helens.

"Leaving Portland, outside of a few short stretches, the roads were reasonably good into Salem, then via Oregon City and Albany, but leaving Salem we had rough roads for some ten miles enroute to Eugene.

"From Eugene to Grant's Pass, Oregon, we traversed the much-dreaded Pass Creek and Cow Creek canyon districts and although we had been urged not to attempt this trip we were agreeably surprised to find our car go through with little or no trouble. Outside of a few miles here and there and from a rutty and rough standpoint, these canyon districts offered no setback. From Grant's Pass to Ashland via Medford the roads are hard to beat.

"From Ashland, Oregon, on to Redding, Cal., via Dunsmore, we passed over the much talked of and dreadful Siskiyou and Castle Crag mountain districts and as a proof of good road conditions we need merely say that we left Ashland at seven in the morning and in spite of an hour's stop at Dunsmore for lunch seven-thirty that evening found us eating our dinner in Redding.

"This picturesque stretch of 187 miles over what is perhaps one of the most dangerous mountain roads from a sharp curve and deep canyon standpoint in the United States was easy going. In fact, an Overland car is the only machine that I would attempt such a trip in, for a larger car could not possibly have made many of the sharp curves encountered.

"From Redding to San Francisco road conditions are very good, then via Red Bluff, Chico, Yuba City, Marysville, Sacramento and Stockton.

"Tire and general trouble conditions were unknown during our trip, for outside of one puncture we did not encounter a single mishap, and as much of my entire United States trip was made in an Overland I am positively convinced that this is the only real car to buy."

GOODRICH FACTORY WORKING 24 HOURS

Automobile tires turned out by the hundreds at midnight in a rubber factory which had nearly half a hundred acres of floor space running full blast at the witching hour featured a recent visit of 150 Southeast Kansas "boosters" to Akron, Ohio.

The alfalfa motorists (six cuttings a year from one piece of land) went through the East carrying growing crops in a display car to show that Kansas had not suffered from drouth—rainwater drouth, that is. They took in the factory of The B. F. Goodrich Company at night and spent three hours traversing part of the plant's seventy-five acres of floor space. They expressed astonishment that the factory was running twenty-four hours a day.

"Why do you have to make tires at night?" one of the "boosters" asked a guide.

"So the day shift can get some sleep," was the answer.

The visitors found shop signs in many parts of the Goodrich plant headed "Safety First" and cautioning employes to protect themselves and their fellow workers by using care in the handling of machines.

"That looks good to me," said R. R. Bittmann, president of the organization boosting Southeast Kansas. "If you put safety on the inside of your plant and the outside of your tires you've got a pretty good combination."

The delegation stayed a long time in the cord tire room, where the new Goodrich Silvertown Cord Tires were being made. They said they had never seen a tire made like that before, and all were extensive tire users.

"That looks like a 'top tire' to us," they said as they watched the intricate machines putting layers of rubber filled cord on the tires with an almost human deftness.

The visitors took away with them a vast assortment of Goodrich road maps, touring guides applicable to their own section and rules of the road.

FISHING TRIP IN COAST MOUNTAINS

Good Roads, Fresh Bait, Big Trout Very Hungry and Limit Catch.

The motorist who has been considering vacation fishing trips or week-end tours in which fishing is to be enjoyed can find no better time to make such trips that at the present time for the reason that from all sections come splendid reports of fishing. The fish are biting well and are of good size and a splendid sport is to be enjoyed.

Henry D. McCoy, of Chanslor and Lyon Company, and a party of friends spent the week-end at the Salmon Creek Club and reports that the fishing was more than excellent. Every one of the party secured their limit as allowed by the law.

"The fishing in Salmon Creek is about as fine as can be had in any part of the state and those who are members of the club or friends of members can have great sport there," says McCoy.

"The road really begins at Petaluma, the regular county road from Sausalito being followed to that point. From Petaluma the route is taken to Ely, Pengrove to Sebastopol. From Sebastopol to Valley Ford by way of Firestone and Stewart's Point the country is wilder as it leads to the coast.

"From Valley Ford we traveled on to the Estero American Creek, which flows into Bodega Bay. The roads at this time of the year are in splendid condition considering the recent rain which was quite heavy in this section.

"Those who enjoy taking pictures will do well to take a camera along on the trip, as it abounds in many pretty and interesting spots."

In the party in the car with Mr. McCoy were J. S. Harlan, E. L. Bosqui and John B. Colman.

NEW LOZIER SIX TO APPEAR SOON

Lozier Chiefs Visit Oakland Branch House Manager Chisholm.

Among the prominent visitors in the local automobile trade during the week was Frohman Speers, senior member of the Belding-Speer Motor Company, handling the Lozier cars in California. Speers, who has made headquarters in the company's Los Angeles branch, was visiting with Arthur Chisholm of the Oakland branch house. With Speers was L. H. Rose, the Lozier factory representative on the coast. Both men were enthusiastic over the prospects for the new high-grade four-cylinder car the factory has so successfully placed on the market. The trade conditions throughout the state are showing up much better during the past week, according to Speers, who also says:

"Before long the Lozier Motor Company will have in the hands of its dealers a new light six selling at $3250. This new car is a larger edition of the lightweight Lozier Six which has been on the market for over a year's time. The passenger capacity of this car has been increased and a number of other improvements have been made.

"The wheelbase has been lengthened from 127½ to 132 inches, allowing ample room for seven passengers. The car is equipped with vanishing seats very like those seen in the Lozier Light Four.

"The stroke of the motor has been increased to six inches, the bore remaining 3 7-8 inches. On block test the new motor shows a minimum of 65 horsepower."

PASTOR MISSES TRAIN AND WALKS 17 MILES

QUITMAN, Ga., May 30.—Proving that the notable exploits of the old-time circuit rider are not beyond the clergy of today, Rev. A. M. Rich walked seventeen miles to keep his engagement with his Quitman congregation at St. James Episcopal church.

Mr. Rich intended catching the afternoon train at Quitman from Valdosta, where he has his residence and is pastor of Grace Church. He missed the train, however, for the first time in nine years, he insisted. He determined to keep the appointment here and started out to walk the distance. It is seventeen miles by railroad and longer by the highway.

Mr. Rich arrived ten minutes late and none of his congregation was aware until afterward that he had walked.

SOME THANKSGIVING IN KANSAS THIS YEAR

WICHITA, Kan., May 30.—The [illegible] public County wheat crop situation, according to crop experts, is one of the most flattering in years. At this time the crop is farther advanced in growth than usual and the belief is generally expressed that harvest will be at least a month earlier than usual. The same conditions prevail over all of Northern Kansas, despite the fact that the crop was heavily pastured during all the fall and winter.

JAPAN TAKING TO AUTOS, IS CLAIM

1500 Automobiles Registered in Japan During Past Two Years.

The automobile has made rapid strides in the last two years not only in America and Europe, but in the far east as well. Henry W. Andrews, Yokohama agent for the Cadillac, who is visiting in California, brings glowing reports of the rapid advance the motor car is making in Japan.

"Two years ago," declares Andrews, "there were not 100 motor cars in Japan. This year more than 1500 are registered.

"The aversion to the motor car which was so apparent a short time ago is rapidly disappearing. Not many years ago the sight of a motor car on the streets of any but the large cities brought forth storms of protest, usually accompanied by stones hurled at the driver and occupants of the offending car. Happily this has entirely disappeared.

"The Nippon auto club, the pioneer automobile club of Japan, is doing good work in road mapping and posting. Maps of the roads suitable for automobile traffic have been made and guide posts are rapidly being erected throughout the islands.

"This club enrolls in its membership many government officials.

"The good roads movements is gaining great headway. Most improvements are being made with macadam. One stretch of macadamized road 107 miles long has been laid from Yokohama to Nikko.

"Asphalt has been used experimentally in Tokio, but has failed so far because of the many earthquakes.

"The greatest drawback for the American motorist in Japan would be the price of gasoline. It is easy to obtain, but trust or no trust, the price is 32 cents a gallon."

LOVELORN GIRL SHOOTS HERSELF; MAY SURVIVE

BEAVER DAM, Wis., May 30.—Miss Clara Zastrow, aged 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Zastrow, town of Calamas, attempted to commit suicide by shooting herself at the home of her sister, Mrs. William Waddell, last night.

Miss Zastrow, it is said, quarreled with her sweetheart, a man named Hughes, living in Calamas. She regained consciousness soon after shooting herself.

She was taken to Beaver Dam hospital, where physicians said her condition is critical.

$1200 worth for $950

—And a better car in the bargain

ALL values are judged by comparison. You size up the worth and quality of any one article, by comparing it with several other similar articles. Then, and only then, you are in a position to make the most practical, intelligent and economical choice.

Therefore, before you choose your automobile, carefully compare the specifications, quality and equipment of the $950 Overland with the description of any of the $1200 cars. You'll find no material difference.

For instance:

The $950 Overland has a wheel base of 114 inches. A good many $1200 cars have even a shorter wheel base than this.

The $950 Overland has a thirty-five horsepower motor. Do you know of any $1200 car that can give you more power?

The $950 Overland has 33 inch x 4 inch tires. Again the same—in both size and quality—that you find on most $1200 cars.

The $950 Overland has electric lights throughout—exactly the same as any of the highest priced cars.

The $950 Overland is as roomy, comfortable and as luxuriously finished as any $1200 car.

The Overland equipment is just as complete, and of just as high a quality as the equipment of any $1200 car.

The steels used in the Overland are of the very highest grade; in fact the metals and materials used in the Overland are of the same quality as those found in the most costly cars in the world.

The Overland is just as accurately and precisely produced as any car on the market—regardless of price.

The more you compare this $950 car with cars costing 30% and even 40% more—the more you are brought to realize that to pay more than $950 for this type of car is absolutely unnecessary.

The Overland costs you less, because of our greater production.

Other manufacturers must charge you more, because of their smaller production.

And that is why the Overland is outselling every other similar car made. We are delivering 5000 Overlands a month right now.

BUICK HAS THE LAKE TAHOE TROPHY

First Fully Equipped Auto Over Snowclad Sierra

The question of what car was to win the Silver Trophy Cup for 1914 offered by Tahoe Tavern, to the first automobile to cross the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains over the Emigrant Gap State Road under its own power, was answered last Tuesday when a 1914 B-55 Buick touring car, in charge of Joe Schmidli and Claud McGee of the Howard Automobile Company, drove up to the door of the popular lake resort.

The Tahoe Tavern cup is the most sought after trophy in this part of the state, and the conditions under which it must be won makes it the hardest imaginable test on every part of the car as well as the driver. The rules to be followed in competing for this prize are: The car must be fully equipped; it must make the entire trip over the Emigrant Gap State Road on its own wheels and under its own power; no paraphernalia to help engine to be used except that which is carried in car; the only time the motor is allowed assistance is when the road is impassably blocked and a detour is necessary; it must proceed on its own power, however, as soon as it is again on the road.

Complying with these conditions in every detail, the Buick has won the Tahoe Tavern Cup for three consecutive years, and has thereby proven the fact that it is as much at home in a contest over the snow as it is in a mud plug, a long distance endurance run, or on a race course.

A Buick of this same model holds the record between San Francisco and Portland. Another Buick of the same model holds the world's speed record for 100 miles for cars of its class. Two cars of this model tied for first place in the recent 3000 mile Tour of France reliability run out of 134 starters, and an exact duplicate of the Tahoe cup winner had the honor of being the first car over the road between Truckee and Reno in 1914.

McGee, who made the entire trip from San Francisco to the lake, gives the following interesting account of what is without doubt one of the hardest trips ever made by an automobile:

"When Fred Gross and I left San Francisco last week, we carried in the tonneau of our Buick a complete camping outfit and supplies to last us two weeks, as we realized that the winning of the Tahoe cup this year was to be a much harder proposition than ever before, as the unusually heavy snowfall of last winter and the continued hot weather of this spring had left the snow in very bad shape.

"The one difficulty, however, that we were unable to anticipate, was the weather we were to encounter after we reached the snow line. We had at least a sample of every kind of weather there is. The first night's camp was near Soda Station, and at just midnight we were awakened by a heavy peal of thunder and in less than five minutes the rain was coming down in sheets. It was then we congratulated ourselves on having a fully equipped car. It was only a minute's work to put the top up on the Buick and store our food supply in the tonneau. We then returned to our waterproof sleeping bags, and let it rain. The next morning the sun came out hot, and this and the rain of the night before made the snow so soft that progress was almost an impossibility, and after a mile and a half of the hardest kind of work we found a good place to camp and decided to wait for more favorable weather. About noon it turned colder and a hailstorm struck us about just to fill our cup of trouble full Gross received a telegram that he must return to San Francisco at once on account of sickness in his family. I was all alone that night and the next day, and it took turns raining and snowing, with a little hail and sleet mixed in. Schmidli came up to take Gross's place Saturday night. Sunday morning when we awoke it was raining harder than ever, and as there was no indications of better weather ahead, we decided to try and make Soda Station before night. The continued stormy weather had so softened the snow that there was practically no bottom to it, and to make matters worse the water running underneath it had made it full of holes which were not visible on the surface. Even now it is a mystery to us how the car even pulled through, but pull it did. Sometimes we would back up and take a run at a drift, and maybe make six inches headway; other times in making a run at a bad place the front wheels would drop out of sight in a hole undermined by water. It was then a case of throw the car in reverse and pull the front end out of the hole, but the worst of all was when the back wheels would drop into one of these water holes. The car would settle down to the running boards, and the only thing to do was to shovel out the snow till the back wheels could get traction on the ground, this usually meant that the car was setting on an angle of from 30 to 45 degrees when it was ready to pull itself out of the hole.

"In spite of the unfavorable weather and road conditions, the Buick arrived at Soda Station Sunday evening, and as the next three miles was an easier grade, we anticipated no trouble in making the Summit Hotel Monday morning. Once more we did not figure on the weather. The first sight to meet our eyes Monday morning when we crawled out of our sleeping bags was six inches of fresh snow, and more falling all the time. About noon there was a change in the weather and at last it was a change for the better. At 3 o'clock the Buick left Soda Station, and at 5 it was at the Summit Hotel; 3 miles in 2 hours may not seem very fast, and for once we were not in any fear of being arrested for speeding, but when the fact is taken into consideration that the snow was from 3 to 10 feet, and that the front and rear axles were buried all the time, it is to be wondered at that the car could make any headway at all.

"Monday evening was clear, and Mr. Gowling, manager of the Summit Hotel, assured us that we would have cold weather Tuesday morning, and we went to sleep with the thought that at last our luck and the weather had changed, and sure enough it had. Tuesday morning was clear and cold with a light crust on the snow. This gave the chains something to grip, and the Buick climbed the big drifts between the hotel and the summit without difficulty.

"The crossing through the snow sheds at the summit were blocked with 20 feet of snow, and in order to get onto the road on the north side of the sheds, it was necessary to cross directly over the top of them. This crossing was made at a point known to railroad men as the eastern end of tunnel 7. At this place the snow sheds join a round granite knob, and by driving the car up a steep narrow ledge it is possible to get within 12 feet of the top of the wooden shed, but this last 12 feet is the hard part. The roof of the sheds are built on a one to two pitch, and the chains on the rear tires almost wore the heavy planks which form the roof in two. The descent from the top of the shed to the road, a quarter of a mile below, was almost perpendicular, but by exercising a due amount of precaution, it was negotiated without trouble.

"It will never again be necessary to cross the top of the sheds as the S. P. Company and the State Engineer are now building a crossing under the railroad tracks. This crossing is located in such a position that it will be free from snow long before the summit is open. When we finally got back or the Highway above Donner lake we thought our troubles were over, but one more disappointment was in store for us. This last trial was in the shape of a snowdrift about one hundred feet long and when we arrived at the lower end of it the Buick faced an almost sheer drop of 25 feet. A consultation was held and Schmidli decided that he could drive down the face o fthe drift. This we did without accident, but it is safe to say that an automobile was never intentionally driven down a steeper place. This was our last experience with the snow and the Buick arrived at Tahoe Tavern a couple of hours later, where it and its crew were warmly welcomed by Assistant Manager W G. Allen, and C. W. Nelson of the Tahoe Rail and Transportation company.

"In spite of the hard going which the Buick encountered, not the least bit of mechanical trouble was experienced and the Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires certainly demonstrated that they would not rim cut as they were run absolutely flat for at least 20 miles and this with chains on. Upon our arrival at Donner lake they were pumped up to normal pressure, and there was not the least sign of the hard service they had just been through.

"The Emigrant Gap road will be free from snow and open to touring parties about June 15, and from what we could see of it below snow line, it will be much better this year than ever before. State Engineer Baxter is working along just below snow line, and the work he is putting in is all of a permanent nature. There are 35 men now working on the road between Truckee and Tahoe Tavern, and this piece of road is better than usual even at this early date."

MOTORCYCLE NOTES.

Because he preferred driving a motorcycle to an automobile, the chauffeur for the police motor ambulance of Quincy, Ill., has resigned his position as a motorcycle "cop."

A big motorcycle race meet is being arranged for June 6 by the Progressive Pittsburgh Motorcycle Club.

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company, of Chicago, has 62 motorcycles in everyday service.

ALUMINUM PROVES VALUE FOR AUTOS

"It is of interest to note the importance of aluminum as a construction material in the automobile," said Phil S. Cole, Oakland manager of the Haynes Auto Sales Company, distributor for the Haynes car in this territory.

"Pure aluminum is too soft and lacking in tensile strength to be used in the motor car, but when copper is added it has the double virtue of combining great strength with very light weight.

"The early use of this element by Elwood Haynes, pioneer auto builder, found it necessary to eliminate grey or cast-iron in making crank cases, owing to its extreme weight and the none too durable nature of its construction. Steel was even heavier and brass out of the question. After considerable waste of time and expensive experiment he found an aluminum alloy which contains 93 per cent aluminum and 7 per cen copper. It was made by melting the aluminum and afterwards adding, while still in the molten state, the proper amount of copper. The alloy furnished to the trade today is of practically the same composition, and so successful has it been that it is now in universal use among builders of better motor cars.

"It is estimated that during the year 1914 the American automobile manufacturers will use over 60,000 tons of aluminum. On every car there are about 75 per made of alloys of this metal. Among the most important of these are the before crank case, oil pan, steering wheel spider, vent tubes and transmission case.

"The tensile strength of the aluminum used in the Haynes car is about 30,000 pounds while the tensile strength of case iron, although three times as heavy, seldom goes above 18,000 pounds."

JUDGE PREACHES HIS OWN FUNERAL SERMON

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 30.—Frances M. Fowler for many years justice of the peace in this city, who is 76 years old and who expects to live the other twenty-four years, is taking no chance on the sermon to be delivered at his funeral, and proposes to preach it himself.

Mr. Fowler has just completed the sermon and repeated it into phonograph records so that at his funeral, instead of a pastor, the phonograph will be used.

Mr. Fowler says he wants none of the usual meaningless praise sounded over his coffin, preferring a brief history of his life be related together with something of his hopes for the hereafter.

BIRD TRAGEDY OCCURS FOLLOWED BY "WAKE"

GARY, Ind., May 30.—A tragedy in bird life occurred at Aetna. When Michael Debold placed a stovepipe on his lawn a curious pigeon that flew into the pipe emerged black with soot. The frightened bird flew to its roost, where its mates, mistaking it for an insolent crow, slew it. Later when the rain revealed the dead bird's identity, the other pigeons wailed pitifully over their mistake.

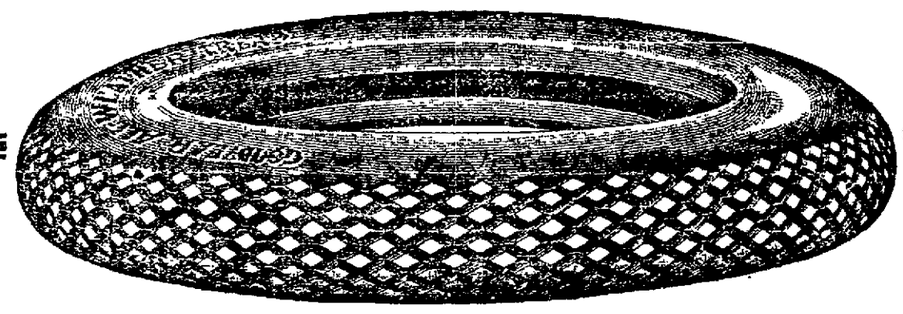
MARKED TURTLE COMES BACK IN FORTY YEARS

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., May 30.—Briggs G. Blake, a resident of South Williamstown, Miss., caught a turtle forty years ago and engraved his initials and the figures "1874" on the creature's back. Since that time he has walked over every foot of his farm many times and had forgotten all about the turtle. Consequently he was surpised when he found it near the same spot in which it had been captured almost half a century before.



Tires at One-Half

The One-Time Price for Goodyears

In 1909, No-Rim-Cut tires sold at nearly twice the prices of today.

Rubber cost has dropped since. But the great fact is that last year we made eleven times as many tires. In some single days we now build more than 10,000 motor tires.

This great demand has cut factory cost immensely. And our profit last year averaged only 6½ per cent.

16 Higher Prices

Now 16 makes of tires will cost you more than Goodyear prices—up to one-half more. And you are told, of course, that they are "quality tires."

But what is a quality tire?

It must, in these days, be a tire that can't rim-cut. And we control the only way to make a satisfactory tire of that type.

It must minimize blow-outs. We alone use the "On-Air" cure—at an extra cost of $1,500 daily. That's the only way to save the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.

It must resist tread separation. We alone use a patent method which reduces this danger 60 per cent.

And it must be efficient as an anti-skid. The most efficient is our double-thick All-Weather tread. And that alone gives an anti-skid all the smoothness of a plain tread.

This is Really the Quality Tire

Because of these features, No-Rim-Cut tires used to sell much higher than other standard tires. Because of these features, they have come to outsell any rival.

They hold top place in Firedom. And this matchless prestige, after all these years, marks them the quality tire.

No tire is worth more than a Goodyear. In four ways—the four we mention—no tire is worth as much. Ask any user—he'll gladly confirm this.

Buick LEADS AGAIN

On Last Tuesday, for the THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR, a BUICK has WON the much-coveted

TAHOE TAVERN TROPHY

Offered annually to the first car to master the snow-capped Sierra Nevada Mountains

UNDER ITS OWN POWER

and to reach the famous resort, via the Emigrant Gap State Highway. To win this trophy the BUICK was subjected to the severest imaginable test, being forced to buck deep snow and to plow through heavy drifts for a distance of 20 miles.

This test again proves the STURDINESS OF BUICK CONSTRUCTION and the power of the BUICK VALVE-IN-THE-HEAD MOTOR.

During the entire trip not an adjustment was made, and at the finish the car was running as smoothly as at the start.

COMPLETE BASEBALL DOPE FOR FIRST EIGHT WEEKS

Bayless the Run-Getter of Coast; Base Thieves Make Rowdy Elliott Victim

(By C. E. BRAZIER)

SACRAMENTO, May 30.—Happy Hogan has time and again this season made the boast that the strength of his Venice ball club lies in the men on the bench—that he can fill the place of any of his regulars with a man who will not weaken the machine. But runs win ball games and ball games [illegible] the figures of runs batted in for the first eight weeks of the Coast League race it would appear that a big part of the Venice machine is wrapped up inside of Dick Bayless' uniform.

In the first eight weeks of the season the Venice Club scored a total of 231 runs. By means of safe hits, sacrifice flies or infield drives that left no chance for a play at the plate, Bayless has driven in forty-four runs. And he scored twenty-six himself. A home run counts as a run driven in and also as a run batted in by a player. Bayless has made six circuit shots. Deducting these six from the total of runs scored or driven in, Bayless has figured directly in the scoring of sixty-six of the 231 runs that his club scored in the first eight weeks. With Bill Leard and Walter Carlisle running up around the top of the list as leading run-makers of the league, it is interesting to wonder how long they would maintain that position without the power of Bayless' bat behind to drive them around the circuit. For Bill Leard with twenty runs driven in is the nearest rival to Bayless in this department on the Venice Club.

Bayless has been most effective against Sacramento, either scoring or driving in eighteen of the forty-eight runs that Venice has scored against the Wolves. Bayless figured directly in the scoring of fourteen of the fifty-four runs the Tigers have made against Portland; fourteen out of sixty-eight runs against Los Angeles; nine out of thirty-two runs against San Francisco, and eight out of twenty-nine runs against Oakland.

Jerry Downs of San Francisco with thirty-two runs driven in and Rube Ellis of Los Angeles with thirty-one runs driven in are the nearest rivals to Bayless for the first eight weeks. The only other players in the league who drove in more than twenty-five runs were Kores, Portland, 29; Schaller, San Francisco, 27; Tennant, Sacramento, 26.

Classified by clubs, the players who drove in five or more runs in the first eight weeks of the race are as follows:

Los Angeles—Ellis 31, Maggart 24, Abstein 23, Page 18, Wolter 17, Johnson 14, Brooks 10, Metzger 5, Moore 5, Meek 5.

Oakland—Ness 20, Zacher 19, Cook 17, Hetling 15, Quinlan 12, Murphy 10, Middleton 9, Kaylor 8, Mitze 7, Guest 7, Alexander 7, Gardner 5.

Portland—Kores 29, Ryan 22, Rodgers 19, Doane 16, Fisher 13, Derrick 11, Davis 10, Lober 7, Krause 5.

Sacramento—Tennant 26, Coy 18, Shinn 16, Mohler 14, Hannah 11, Hallinan 10, Moran 10, Van Buren 10, Young 8, Klawitter 6.

San Francisco—Downs 32, Schaller 27, Corhan 24, Howard 20, Mundorff 18, Tobin 15, Fitzgerald 6, O'Leary 5, Schmidt 5.

Venice—Bayless 44, Leard 20, Elliott 16, Meloan 15, McArdle 15, Borton 15, Kane 13, Litschi 13, Hosp 8, Carlisle 7, Bliss 6, McDonnell 6.

As strong as he may be in the batting department, Dick Bayless is woefully weak in base-stealing. His record of only four stolen bases and ten times thrown out is the worst of any of the league regulars. In the first eight weeks Bayless registered his four stolen bases against catchers Lynn, Schmidt, Fisher and Brooks. He was twice thrown out by Alexander and once each by Schmidt, Clarke, Rohrer, Hannah, Boles, Mitze, Fisher and Yantz.

Bill Rodgers of Portland, although tied with "Pep" Young of Sacramento for total stolen bases, has the best base-stealing record in the league, having stolen seventeen bags and been thrown out only once. Young has stolen seventeen bags and been thrown out twice. Nig Clarke is the only catcher who has thrown out Rodgers, turning the trick on April 12th at San Francisco. Rodgers has stolen three bases each off Bliss, Elliott and Mitze; two off Rohrer and one each off Hannah, Schmidt, Alexander, Brooks and Boles.

Young was thrown out by Mitze of Oakland at Sacramento, April 12th, and by Elliott of Venice on April 16th at Los Angeles. Young has stolen three bases each off Elliott, Brooks, Arbogast and Boles; two off released Catcher Haworth of Portland and one each off Alexander, Schmidt and Clarke.

Walter Schmidt of San Francisco has the next best base-stealing record, having stolen fourteen bases and been thrown out two times. Schmidt was once thrown out by Elliott on April 4th at San Francisco, and once by Alexander of Oakland on April 21st. Twice Schmidt has stolen three bases in one game, the only player to perform this trick this season—the first time against Elliott of Venice on April 4th, and the second time against Haworth of Portland on April 12th. He has stolen three bases off Hannah and once each off released Catcher Perkins of Portland, Brooks, Meek, Boles and Alexander.

In the cases of the three leading base-stealers, Catcher Elliott of Venice has been the special victim, and this holds for other base-stealers, for Elliott has allowed more stolen bases than any other catcher of the league. Los Angeles registered six stolen bases against Elliott on April 8th: Portland and San Francisco have each stolen five bases in one game against Elliott. Los Angeles base-stealers have profited the most by Elliott's work behind the plate, having stolen a total of seventeen bases against him; Sacramento and Portland runners have each stolen nine against Elliott, and San Francisco five. In the first eight weeks of the season Elliott did not catch in a game against Oakland.

Of the regular catchers Boles of Los Angeles has the best record, having [illegible] than any other catcher has thrown out. Boles has found most of his victims in the Venice Club and his smallest number in the Sacramento Club. Eleven Venetians have been thrown out by Boles, nine Seals, four Oaks, three Beavers and two Sacramentans. Of the thirty bases that have been stolen against Boles eight each have been credited to the San Francisco and Venice Clubs, seven to Sacramento, four to Portland and three to Oakland.

With eighty-seven stolen bases, Los Angeles leads the clubs in total steals, and with only forty-six men thrown out stealing, the Angels have the best club record in the percentage of successful starts. Of the eighty-seven Angel steals twenty-three have been recorded against Venice, twenty-one against San Francisco, nineteen against Sacramento, fifteen against Portland and nine against Oakland. San Francisco catchers have thrown out more Angels than the catchers of any other club. Seal catchers have thrown out fifteen Angels, Sacramento and Venice catchers have thrown out nine Angels each, Portland catchers have thrown out seven Angels and Oakland catchers have thrown out six of the Dillonites.

By rating the clubs on a percentage basis in base-stealing instead of merely on the total number of stolen bases, there are several shifts in the order. San Francisco, second in the ranking on a basis of total number of stolen bases, ranks sixth on the percentage basis, the percentage representing the division of successful steals by the total number of starts, this total number of starts being determined by adding total steals and total men thrown out. Los Angeles, first on the basis of total steals, retains first place under out. Los Angeles, first on the basis of total steals, retains first place under the percentage system; Portland jumps from third to second place, etc. The figures follow:

CUBS WANTS GRANT.

CHICAGO, May 30.—Eddie Grant, Giant shortstop, is being sought by the Chicago Cubs, it was learned here today, and negotiations are now on with Manager McGraw. McGraw thus far has refused an offer to buy Grant outright, but countered with a proposition involving a trade of Cub players.

CLIMBING THE BASEBALL ALPS

BEAVERS CONTINUE TO BOOT GAMES AWAY IN NORTH

"Hi" West Allows but Two Hits, Yet Loses to Angels 3-1

PORTLAND, May 30. — Manager McCredie's Beavers continued their losing streak today by dropping both games of a double-header to Los Angeles. In the morning, the Angels hit Krause's offerings at will and galloped off with an easy victory, 4 to 1, while errors caused West's downfall in the afternoon contest. Although "Hi" allowed only two hits to five off Perritt, he lost by the score of 3 to 1.

Two glaring errors by Captain Rodgers, coupled with Perritt's fluke hit, gave the visitors two runs in the second inning of the afternoon game. Ellis reached first when the usually steady Rodgers dropped his easy fly. Johnson sacrificed and Metzger walked. Meek hit an easy roller and was safe when Cap let the ball trickle through his legs. Then Perritt hit a slow bounder in front of the plate, which Fisher grabbed too late to tag Ellis coming home. Metzger crossed the plate on Wolter's out, Rodgers to Derrick.

The Beavers started a rally in the sixth and it looked for a while as if they would at least tie the score, but Kores hit into a double play. Derrick singled through short and went to second on Rodgers' out. Doane beat out a bunt down the third base line. Ryan singled between first and second, scoring Derrick and putting Doane on third amid great excitement. Kores hit into a double play, Page to Johnson to Abstein. Two errors presented the Angels with their last run in the eighth. Wolter was safe on Bancroft's fumble, and Page sacrificed. Then Kores let Maggart's grounder get away, Wolter taking third, from when he scored on Abstein's fly to Ryan.

Portland threatened in the ninth, when Doane was given a life on Wolter's fumble of his fly. Ryan walked and Speas was put in to run for him. Kores, Lober and Fisher were easy outs.

The locals lost the morning games through their failure to connect with [illegible] without scoring, they finally put over a run in the ninth when Brashear, batting for Bancroft, doubled and went to third on Fisher's single. Brashear crossed the plate on Kores's grounder to Johnson. Ellis scored two runs for the Angels in the third, when he drove the ball over the right field fence with Maggart on base.

HARRY ABLES REPORTS TO DEVLIN, READY FOR WORK

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—Harry Ables arrived here from Texas yesterday, turned his "shooting irons" over to the constituted authorities and reported to the Oakland club.

And it's been such a short time since H. A. declared with some vociferation that he was through with baseball.

All of us are glad that Harry went behind the barn and changed his mind. [illegible] just right.

Ables had first planned to stop off a day here, take the night train for Oakland and "officially" report to Devlin in that city next week. However, he and the Oakland manager, it is said, managed without any loss of valuable time to arrange terms that were agreeable to both, and it is thought that the big left-hander will be in uniform today.

Ables appears to be in great shape. He has been whiling away the days on the Texas ranges, "punching" vicious cattle who wear long horns where their eye-[illegible] everything believed to be inimical to the pitching arm, including chewing tobacco. [illegible] good Havanas made from the highest grade of Cuban cabbage.

He is lighter than when seen here last—not in a color sense, but as regards adipose tissue.

If the Texas giant's south soupbone is as effective as of yore, and there is no evidence to the contrary, it will be necessary hereafter to hold Oakland in considerable respect.

DOLPHIN CREW FIRST IN TRIALS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30. — In the elimination trial to select the boat clubs which will compete at San Diego, July 4, for the Pacific coast championship, the Dolphin club of San Francisco, took first; the Alameda club second, South End club third. Time over scant mile and one-half course, eight minutes 48 2-5 seconds. These three crews will compete in the coast championship regatta.

ALEXANDER THE HERO OF BARGAIN DAY IN SOUTH

Oak Catcher, Wide Awake, Raps to Fence Ball "Slipped Over."

LOS ANGELES, May 30.—Oakland and Venice broke even in today's double-header, the Tigers taking the morning affair, before the smallest crowd that ever attended a morning holiday game [illegible] in the afternoon at a jammed attendance, 5 to 2.

There was nothing to the morning game except big John Powell. But four singles were made off him, and but two Oaks got as far as second base. Killilay wasn't hit hard, but had no chance to win in the face of the offensive support given him. Young Ramey and Fleharty just about reversed this order in the afternoon, only making it more so. Ramey was exceedingly stingy and allowed but three hits during the six frames he worked. However, he gave six passes, two of [illegible] directly, the other indirectly. In the sixth he walked two men and these, with a sacrifice, a long fly and a single, gave the Tigers their only two runs.

Devlin's men hit Fleharty pretty steady throughout and were never headed. Christian worked the last three innings in the afternoon, and didn't give the Tigers anything that looked like a hit. The niftiest piece of work in either game was Alexander's rap to the fence in the fifth inning, in the afternoon. After Guest had singled Fleharty tried to slip a fast return over and get Alexander in the hole. The latter was looking, however, and soaked the ball to center for a double, scoring Guest. The scores.

THIS PITCHER DID TOO WELL

PORTLAND, May 30.—The inside story of how Elmer Rieger came to Portland and Harry Gardner did not, was told by Walter McCredie in Portland the other day. The Portland manager had both of the men practically purchased. In fact he had counted surely on getting both men.

Gardner knew there was talk of his going to Portland, but on the day before Rieger started West he was sent into the box, and came through with a 1-to-0 victory. This caused Manager Friel to change his mind about Gardner, and the deal was declared off.

Gardner was told afterward of how his showing in that game kept him in St. Paul. As his home is in Portland, where he wintered last year, and he would much rather have played here, he was naturally disgusted when he learned it was his own good showing which worked against him.

Waivers were not even procured on Rieger until he had started West. Then the Cleveland and Louisville clubs refused to waive until they both learned he was on his way to Portland. Then both decided to drop their claims.

Contrary to general opinion, Rieger is not an old-timer or a has-been. He is only 24 years of age and in the height of his career. It is the general opinion of the Portland players he will prove a tower of strength to the Beavers and bolster the local staff up to the required strength.

PRESTO IS FIRST IN YACHT RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—A strong breeze whipping in from sea and a flood tide were the conditions under which the twenty-ninth annual regatta of the Corinthian Yacht Club was won today by the Presto.

The results were as follows:

Class N—Presto 2:25:25, Fulton G. 2:23: 2:46:50.

Class P—Rainbow 2:49:42, Kathleen 3: 15 56. Thistle did not finish.

Class Q—Amigo first, Starlight second.

AMATEUR & SEMI-PRO BASEBALL

Edited by "Bill Crosby"

O'Connors, Perlet, Ford and Steckmeyer form a quartet of outfielders that are hard to beat. They are playing a good game for the Standard Gas Engine club.

"Lefty" Ramsdell, the clever little southpaw with the Standard Gas Engine club, is going great guns and with a little better support should have won his game at Vallejo a week ago Sunday, when he held that aggregation to five hits. He is also good with the stick.

"Tub" Boardman is playing sensational ball at the keystone bag for the Standard Gas Engine club. His clever fielding has cut off many a hit.

"Hoops" Enz will do the twirling today at Suisun for the Standard Gas Engine team, while Steinbeck will do the receiving.

"Had" Payne still continues to play his usual heady game at short for the Standard Gas Engine club.

Eddie Trout, at third for the Standard Gas, is putting up a fine fielding game, but as yet is not hitting, but hopes to break in today.

The Tribunes No 2 will play the St. Ambrose Sunday afternoon at the levee grounds. "Slim" Bell will do the mound work for the Tribunes. The Tribunes No 2 have a strong team now, with Comeal at shortstop. He has been hitting the ball at a fast clip.

The Alamedas will this afternoon play the Wielands, of which Louis Lowenberg is manager, at Lincoln park in Alameda. The local team will have the same lineup, with the exception of Walter Croll at third. He has just returned from the northwest, having been released by the Calgary team of the Western Canada League.

This boy Burge, playing short for the Ashbys, is at present playing some ball. Last Sunday he secured four out of five and handled seven chances like a "vet."

Breslauer, the home team's second baseman, was out of the game Sunday on account of an injured knee. Three ligaments were torn and the knee wrenched in the game against the Carnation Mush club when Breslauer collided with First Baseman Burns. He might be able to play today.

Niles has signed Wittermeyer for the rest of the season. This lad has been hitting the ball for Newark this year, and a few years ago did the same thing for Martinez. It was his hit in the ninth inning last Sunday that won the game for Niles.

Rollie Totheroh was back at his old station on third for Niles-Essanay Sunday and played bang up ball, besides stealing three bags on Burroughs.

Dolan also got two hits and in one inning stole second and third. Fodder is batting this season and is speeding up on bags.

[illegible] in leftfield and made a pretty catch when the bases were almost loaded, thereby saving the home team from what might have been a defeat.

The Niles-Essanay team defeated the crack Pacific Leaguers last Sunday by the score of 4 to 3. The game was played at Centerville instead of Niles, as a carnival was being held there. Dolan only allowed four scattered hits, and but for a little wildness in the ninth would have won the game by a 3 to 1 score. The feature of the game, besides Dolan's pitching, was the hitting of Perry and Wittermeyer. Perry secured three hits but made the only errors made by the home team.

Wittermeyer scored the second run of the game by hitting out a home run and in the ninth he drove in the winning tally with a well placed hit. The score:

Julius Nelson has taken over the management [illegible] one of the fastest teams around the bay. This will be possible from him, as this order, the Order of Railway Employes, have teams in all the railroad cities in the state, and it is their intention of securing games with several of these clubs. Manager Nelson still has room for a couple of good men on his team, and any fast ball player desiring a tryout can see Mr. Nelson at 1030 Broadway.

After a layoff of a Sunday owing to wet grounds, the Bay Counties Industrial League will again give the fans some good baseball, according to this schedule:

Kahn Bros. at Napa, Crockett at Richmond, Benicia at Vallejo, Standard Gas Engine Co. at Suisun.

"Doc" Querolo, and with the addition of Lydiatt and Matheson to the club, Napa will have will have their hands full. Richmond still heads the percentage column with four wins to their credit, but Heine Kamerer, the Crockett manager, says "Look out today," for he is out to beat his neighboring city, and from the team he has lined up the fans will no doubt see a good game of ball in the oil city today.

The Standard Gas and Suisun are both out to win today and Manager Carrol is anxious to get out of the 500 list and Manager Mathias of the Standards is going to put a good team in the field today in order to try and break into the win column.

Vallejo and Benicia, old rivals at the game, will hook up at Vallejo and, believe me, this is going to be some contest. Vallejo will try out a new twirler today, and this may give Benicia a chance and it also may not. McClain will be on the mound for Benicia, and from past performances he should give Vallejo a good rub.

One of the fastest teams playing around the bay today is the Alameda club. Under the management of C. E. Risley the team has made a good record for itself, playing ten games and winning seven. Every team that has defeated Alameda was in turn defeated by them. Nothing but the fastest teams have been booked. The Alameda grounds are the best semi-pro. ball grounds in the state, owned by the city, Lincoln park, the home of the Alameda team, is crowded every Sunday with from 1000 to 1500 fans. Today Alameda will cross bats with the fast Wielands of San Francisco, Louie Lowenberg's crack team. Babe Danzig formerly of Sacramento, is twirling for them. The Alameda team's lineup will be as follows: Pitcher, Nelson; catcher, Ross; infielders, French, Bartell, Hollywood, W. Risley, Gay; outfielders, Pollard, Mackie, Bolt, Marlott. The record of the Alameda team is as follows:

Alameda 3, Barney Frankel 0.
Alameda 5, Burlingame 3.
Alameda 2, Whitlock Cordage 3.
Alameda 6, Calgary 5.
Alameda 2, Calgary 4.
Alameda 2, Whitlock 1.
Alameda 3, Fruitvale 6.
Alameda 9, Fruitvale 3.
Alameda 6, New Eras 3.
Alameda 11, Zamlock Stars 0.
Total won, 7; lost, 3.

Joe Devine, the popular young local player who has been covering the outfield for Yakima in the Western Tri-State League, broke his ankle and will be out of the game for a few weeks. Joe has been going good and is well liked by the fans.

BAY CITIES LEAGUE NOTES.

Under the able management of H. K. Townsend of the S. F. & O. T. Rys. the Key Route club will play a double header today. The morning game will be played at 10 a. m. with the Knights of Maccabees No. 17 at Fortieth and Grove streets. Steinmetz will be on the mound for the traction company and "Lefty" Lillott for the lodge boys. The afternoon game will be played on the Berkeley playgrounds at 1:30 p. m. with the crack Wawona club, managed by Charles Brainard. Hedemark and Samson will be the battery for Wawona, while Scott, Bender and Johnston will do likewise for the Key Routes.

The Great Western Power boys will go up to Concord on the O. & A. today to cross bats with Jack Soare's Concord pets. A good game is expected. The Power Company has one of the fastest teams playing amateur baseball around the bay. Manager Woodward will accompany the team.

The Rock Ridge nine, one of the leading teams of the Bay Cities League competing for the Fred E. Reed trophy, consists of the following players, who are all out for regular berths: Thomson, Legault, Tucker, Steinbeck, Hartwick, Lewis, Walters, Lawrence, Kitto and Wybeck. Arthur Taveira, well known in amateur baseball, will manage and captain the team. The Rock Ridge team will tackle Kurz' Alameda Federals this morning at Lincoln park. Big "Red" Coffee will be on the mound for Rock Ridge. Steinbeck and Tucker will hold him up. Manager Taveira would like to sign another pitcher and catcher. Call Oak 137, between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

The following schedule for Bay Cities League was adopted at the regular meeting Monday, May 25, at 8 p. m.:

Game C, May 31—Alameda vs. Rock Ridge, 10:30 a. m., at Lincoln park. Maccabees vs. Key Route, 10 a. m., at Fortieth and San Pablo.

Game D, June 7—Great Western Power vs. Alameda, 11 a. m., Lincoln park. Wawona vs. Key Route, 10:30 a. m., at Fortieth and San Pablo.

The next regular meeting will be held Monday, June 8, at 8 p. m., in room 204, Woodward building.

PARI-MUTUEL MACHINES FAVORED OVER BOOKIES

Suggestion Is Made That State Legislature Restore Sport

By LEE DEMIER.

It is generally conceded now that the only hope for the racing game where betting is allowed is to do away with the bookmaker and establish the pari-mutuel machine. There is a vast difference in the percentage deducted by the machine and the average percentage book figured by the bookmaker. The machines bring the players together, and they are betting against [illegible] rather than having the bookmaker "lay against" their wagers. A very small percentage only is deducted by the machine, and the odds are figured by the machine in accordance with the number of pools sold on each horse.

There is no such thing as running a race the night before with the mutuel machine in vogue. The temptation to lay up horses for a price is done away with, because the odds are controlled solely by the machine. The pari-mutuel system has been in vogue for a number [illegible] it was not popular, it is now considered superior to the old bookmaking system.

The pari-mutuel system of betting combined with a state racing commission is the only hope for the continuation of the sport of kings.

With the game in the hands of a state racing commission and run on a legitimate business basis, the state treasury through the medium of the pari-mutuel machine would be enriched by many thousands of dollars during the course of a racing season.

This would be an excellent time for the coming legislature to consider a safe and sane form of promoting a favorite sport. I refer to the adoption of the pari-mutual system of betting. This is a safe and sane proposition, the only safeguard ever invented for the betting evil that did all it was intended to do. The pari-mutual system wipes out crookedness in racing, because it wipes out the bookmaker and all plungers.

It is a simple proposition. For instance, 10 horses are in a race. The public has placed $5000 in wagers on that race, spread over the board.

In the old days the fellow with the race "fixed" for his own moneymaking purposes could flood the ring with wagers on his horse at the last moment.

Suppose that in the pari-mutuel example above he tries to plunge in the same way. He wants to place $50,000 on one horse to win. In ordinarly betting he must get the $50,000 down at favorable odds. But now if he places it on his selected horse he is making fierce odds against himself. If the $1000 already bet is on the other horses he is betting $50,000 against $1000 on one horse to win. Take out of the whole amount the state's 5 per cent, or $2300, the plunger is out just $1300, if his horse wins the race.

Ridiculous?

Why, of course it's ridiculous. But folish as it is this example shows why the pari-mutuel system kills heavy betting and eliminates crooked racing. Incidentally it eliminates the bookmakers. This adds enormously to the possibility of betting a few dollars now and then, for the sport of it, without having to walk ties going home.

There's no question about it, with the pari-mutual system enforced in this state racing would prosper and the development of the American horse would keep pace with the development of horses in other countries.

Manager Bill Finn of the Denver Racing Association writes that the association has announced the officials for its 19 days' summer meeting starting Saturday, June 13, under license from the Colorado State Racing Commission. The officials are: Presiding judge, P. A. Brady; associate judge, A. T. Dobson; racing secretary, Robert F. Leighton; starter, Eddie Tribe.

The Denver meeting will have plenty of horses for good racing is the opinion of Manager Finn, who would be satisfied with 350 horses.

Present estimates are that there will [illegible] the Colorado Derby, worth $2000, stabled at Overland Park by June 1, when the entries close. There will be about forty two-year-olds eligible for the Juvenile Handicap, a five furlongs event for two-year-olds worth $1000. The largest number of starters in any previous Derby at Denver was eleven when in 1906 Jockey Vickery won with Theo Case. The mile and a quarter distance of the Derby this year is the longest the horses have ever been asked to go in this event. The track record of 2:07, for this distance, was made in September, 1910, by Frank Lubbock.

President H. I. Wilson of the Butte Jockey Club writes he expects at least four hundred horses for the annual meeting, scheduled to open July 4 and close August 8. There are already one hundred horses occupying quarters at the Butte track and applications for stable accommodations are being received daily from owners who are planning to race there this season.

The horses that are quartered at the Butte track have not been asked to do much in the way of fast work as yet since the meeting is still several weeks in the future. Most of them have been getting steady preparation, however, and a few of them have been allowed to show their speed. Resurrection, a two-year-old filly, astonished the work watchers a few days ago by going on eighth in 12 2-5 upon the first occasion when she was asked to do anything.

* * *

William Singleton has seven horses going along. Francis G. has been sent along several halves in 50, fighting for her head. Watasch, Robert Mantell and Ada Anne are all doing well, but nothing has been asked as yet of Kinfolks or Dennis Stafford.

O. P. Romigh has eight horses. The pride of the stable is Manganese. The others include Rue, Frank G. Hogan, Kid North, Evelina, La Cazadora, Angelus and the two-year-old Miss James.

J. Hennessy has Sam Connor and Kingsley here. P. McKennip has Ernest H. and Quick Trip; Masterson & Sewell brought Lotta Creed and Motto's pride from North Yakima, Washington, recently.

W. L. Stansfield has six horses at the local tracks, including Tiddy Wolfarth, Kitty Stansfield, Anchalka, Carona and two maidens that are respectively brother and sister to Fred Bent, F. Neugent and Masalo.

D. S. Fountain is here with Rake, Keisetta and Miami. A. Neal has fourteen, of which Delaney and O'Konito took on much flesh during their stay in winter quarters.

Of Frank Howard's seven head, Jack Paine and Lyte Knight both show marked improvement in appearance. Mr. Howard is much enamored of a suckling colt by Rogon—Figent, foaled May 8. It is the first thoroughbred he has bred.

W. E. Cotton has a trio here in McAlan, Little Harry and Sheffield. The last-named has been gelded.

Duncraggan and Force, which were sent to Monteral, have been brought back here.

Decency, Letitia and Swart's Hill, in [illegible] worked halves faster than 49, and are further advanced than any of the other horses quartered here. The track is in first-class condition and there will be some speeding up in the near future.

The horses of the Chanticleer stable will be shipped here from Sacramento, Cal. in about a fortnight.

W. J. Dunn and William St. Vincent are due here in a week or two from Los Angeles, where they have had their horses since the close of racing at Juarez.

Manager Wilson has left for Kentucky to interest horsemen in shipping here.

MANY FAIR BOWLERS ASSEMBLE FOR MATCHES

Allen Defeats Taylor in Slow Match on Lakeside Green.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the O. S. B. C. recently decided when the auxiliary was organized that they would assemble on the Lakeside Park bowling green for practice on Mondays and Tuesdays. Yesterday afternoon was, therefore, ladies' day and a sufficient number of them formed full teams to occupy two rinks. They outnumbered the members of the parent organization two to one, the latter only mustering ten players, two of whom devoted themselves to the coaching of the ladies and after their retirement using one of their rinks for a singled practice game. The other eight laid out a third rink on which full teams of four players in each played a practice match of two bowls to each man, Skips, Major Henry Hume and T. Evans choosing sides by lot as the result of a toss of a coin. Hume, the winner of the toss chose Robert Dalzel Sr., James A. Smilie and William Paterson. Evans selected Dr. S. R. Sill, Rev. H. K. Sanborne and J. A. C. Macdonald. Rev. A. Allen and James P. Taylor came on the green at a comparatively late hour and devoted their attention to the instruction of the ladies in the mysteries of bowling until they retired from the green. The two then tackled a singles contest.

No such attractive a scene was ever before witnessed on the Lakeside Park green, the white costumes of the ladies making a picturesque setting against the green floor and banks and the somber attire of the men.

The Home-Evans teams played 21 ends on an exceptionally poor and uneven rink, which gave no opportunity for any display of skill in bowling, many of the heads being wide enough to wheel a barrow between the bowls without danger of disturbing any of them. Still the contest was close and no high scores were made by either teams, as the following record shows:

Evans team—
102 000 102 102 130 111 010—17

Hume team—
020 212 010 020 002 000 101—14

Up to the first half of the match the Hume team led, but in the latter half it became badly demoralized. They succeeded, however, in keeping their opponents down to a low score, the joint number of points of both teams being only 31 a the close of the match, although the Evans team scored on twelve ends of the twenty-one and made the only three-point end in the game, winning it by the small margin of three points.

The singles contest between Allen and Taylor resulted as follows:

Taylor ......011 120 000 200 011 030 000—12

Neither player was in good form, most of the ends terminating with open heads and the counting bowls remote from the "jack;" but Allen's majority at the close was 14 points to the good or over two to one. Both of these contestants are in the list of the eight competitors surviving the first three rounds in the Frank Brown singles cup tournament. Only one of the four singles in the fourth round has been played off so far, namely that between George B. M. Gray and Alex. Halley, which resulted in Gray's defeat. James P. Taylor was drawn in the fourth round to play against John Rankin, and Rev. Allen against Andrew Proctor. The third pair in the round to play off are Dr. E. R. Sill against James A. Smilie. It is expected all three pairs in this round will be played off this week and the semi-finals and possibly the final played off on or before Friday of next week so as to clear the deck for the second match between the Oakland and San Francisco Scottish Bowling clubs for the club championship which June 6, on the Lakeside Park green.

CLAREMONT CLUB SHIELD AND SWEEPSTAKE WON W. H. RHEIMS

By NIBLINGDICK.

The Decoration day tournament at the Claremont Country club for the Club Shield and Sweepstake brought out a field of forty-three golf enthusiasts, who reveled in perfect climatic conditions and a fast course. Some very good scores were turned in.

W. S. Rhiem proved to be the winner with a gross score of 84 less a handicap of 17, leaving him a net score of 67. F. A. Kales, 74, -6, -68, and W. W. Potter, 82, -14 and 68, tied for second honors. D. E. Perkins was fourth with 82, -14, 68.

SEALS FATTEN ON ENEMY; JIMMY SHINN OUT BY INJURY

Sacramento Drops Two Games Full of Hard Clouts and Errors.

By L. B. GROSS.

Five twirlers, three for the Wolves and two for the Seals, were offered as a sacrifice in the afternoon batting-fest contest at Ewing Field, but the Sacramento trio fared far worse than did the duo from across the bay and the Howardites got away with the second game of the [illegible] known at "Dutch," started the flinging for the sassy Sacs, while Barham, that nice young man from the Northwest occupied the mound for the transbay crew.

After five Seals had crossed the pan, Wolverton thought "Dutch" had received his share, and Arellanes was chased out to the rescue of Klawitter in the fifth frame with but one down and the bags bull. Before Arellanes could retire the Seals, four more runs had crossed the plate, and the game was on the safe side of the San Francisco ledger. Caldwell twirled the last two frames for the Wolves, and held the Seals [illegible] and no runs for the balance of the contest.

Barnham held the Wolves runless for four full innings, but in the fifth they got to him for a couple of tallies, while in the next frame after Wolvertons pack had walloped him for two more, and the bases were still full, with none down, Howard sent Pete Standridge to the rescue.

Bert Shinn, while chasing a foul ball from Fitzgerald's bat in the sixth frame, collided with the left field bleacher fence and dislocated his left leg. As a consequence, Shinn will be out of the game for a week or ten days, according to the doctor who was in attendance at the club house after the accident.

The Seals lost no time in kicking the skids from under the slipping Wolves, scoring two runs in the first inning on Cartwright's double to left field. O'Leary's single to center, Young's error, Schaller's out, and Howard's single to the infield.

In the second frame, after Clark had flied out to Moran and Barham had fanned, Cartwright drew a pass. O'Leary doubled to left, scoring both Cartwright and O'Leary. Downs was safe on Young's error, Schaller scoring with the fifth Seal run. No further scoring was done until the fifth, when the Wolves started their run getting. Klawitter, the first to face Barham, singled to center, and when Cartwright let the pill get past him, took third. Shinn walked and on a passed ball Klawitter scored, and Shinn went to second. Moran was an easy out, Charles to Howard, Shinn taking third on the play. Hallinan singled over Howard's head and Shinn scored, Coy struck out and Tennant popped to Downs.

Downs singled to left. Fitzgerald doubled to center, scoring Downs. Howard doubled to center, scoring Fitzgerald. It was at this stage of the game that Arellanes was sent to the rescue of Klawitter, but this failed to stop the run-getting on the part of the Seals.

Arellanes walked Charles, then Clark singled past Colligan and Howard scored, Charles taking third. Barham forced Clark at second, but Charles scored on the play. The next two outs were easy ones.

The next scoring of the game came in the first of the sixth, when Wolverton's hungry Wolves scored two more. Young's single to the infield, Colligan's walk, a passed ball, Hannah's walk, Shinn's single, and a sacrifice fly by Moran were instrumental in bringing in these two tallies.

In the first of the ninth the Wolves made their fifth and last run when Young singled to left and stole second, scoring a moment later on Hannah's single left. Wolverton as a pinch hitter in the ninth struck out and the game was over. The score:

Served Across The Tennis Net

by Nelson G. Welburn.

WHILE the arm chair scientists are duly engaged in a protracted debate over the merits and demerits of Roosevelt's remarkable tale of his recently discovered river in Brazil; while the A. B. C. diplomats grow weary and apathetic over the proposed peace plans for turbulent Mexico; while frantic John Bull ferociously snorts and rips the air with his minute pronunciamientos on the contemplated tolls system; while our American troops serenely dance the tango and hesitation [illegible] supreme and unperturbed, rests contented in her observation of the Central California championships tournament which is registering its last kick on the courts of McKinley Park at Sacramento today.

This event which was ushered in on Thursday morning last under the auspices of the Sacramento Lawn Tennis Club, is today terminating amid enthusiasm and excitement.

The important features of today's meet is the doubles and singles finals. In the doubles event the teams of William Johnston, Pacific Coast champion, and Clarence J. Griffin, Western champion, will compete against Ella Fottrell, State doubles champion, and John Strachan, national clay court title holder.

From present appearances the indications are that the doubles event will be cleverly won by Johnston and Griffin. This unique combination will endeavor to execute this trick against the crack and clever combination of Fottrell and Strachan.

Without doubt a great battle will ensue, treating the audience to an exhibition that would do justice to an international contest.

It is expected that Maurice E. McLoughlin, national champion, will play an exhibition match here today with either Strachan or Fottrell as his partner. Most likely they will compete against Johnson and Griffin.

McLoughlin's playing to date hasn't been any too good. That he is off form was clearly demonstrated Sunday last at San Francisco when he played with Strachan against Griffin and Johnston.

We are momentarily expecting a display of that brilliant form which characterized his wonderful playing in the past. But we presume that before he departs for his eastern competition in July, he will be well on edge and in fine fighting trim.

The championship singles event of today's meet seems well within the reach of the present title holder, William Johnston. While it is expected that Griffin, Fottrell, Strachan, and may be some unknown, will make things interesting and lively for Johnston, we nevertheless feel confident that victory is his.

Johnston has been showing good form of late, and if this same form is injected in today's contest, why, as heretofore stated, the prize is his.

The majority of the players are deeply interested in the men's championships handicap singles and doubles events. For this particular event the Oakland Tennis Club is ably represented by Edwin Mastick Otis, eGorge G. Finkenstedt, Charles Francis Stickney, William Porterfield Ellis, Carl Swenson and Nelson G. Welburn.

The Naglee Park Tennis Club is banking its hopes on Parton, Syer, Sweigert, Lueddemann, Costello, Maynard and Leib. San Francisco feels confident of Roland Roberts, E. H. Curtis, Bowie Detrich, R. W. Maples, Dr. Knowlton and James Code.

The University of California is relying upon Willis Davis to do the honors for them, while Stanford centers its hopes in Leon Sloss, J. H. Hutchinson and Kenneth Uhls.

The present champions of Central California are as follows:

Men's championship singles — William Johnston of San Francisco.

Men's championship doubles—Clarence J. Griffin and John H. Strachan of San Francisco.

Women's championship singles—Mrs. H. Niemeyer of San Francisco.

San Jose seems destined to receive the Pacific Coast championship tournament for the week beginning June 22. For the past week the tennis enthusiasts of that city have been ardently working to land this particular event. Nothing has been left undone, and today they feel confident hat the meet will be held there.

San Jose is a good town for an event of this character. Splendid hotel accommodations, pleasant climate, unsurpassable hospitality and an unlimited supply of good wholesome amusements.

We will candidly admit that the courts of Naglee Park are not the best to be found, still by careful rolling and judicious oiling they can be put into splendid condition. We feel positive that this advantage will be overcome with the result that this meet will prove the most successful held to date.

San Jose is to be congratulated upon its manifested willingness to hold this tournament, which speaks well of the enterprising caliber of its citizens. Its proximity to San Francisco and the bay cities will enable the players to reach home quickly in case of an emergency, and at the same time it materially reduces transportation expenses.

Play for the Sanu Francisco men's singles championship title will be resumed June 7. The inclement weather Sunday last was greatly instrumental in creating innumerable defaults, and the tournament at the present time is nearing the semi-finals.

The surviving players are William Johnston, Ella Fottrell, Fritz Guerin, Bowie Detrick, Roland Roberts and Al Rosenberg. This list comprises a strong aggregation of players, and before the final stage is reached, it is expected that unusual brilliant tennis will be displayed. William Johnston appears to be the one destined to win this event. His experience and cleverness will no doubt pave the way for this expected victory.

Stanford's tennis team of Lynn Murray and Herbert H. Hahn met their first doubles defeat at the hands of the Yale University team Tuesday last. Up to this time they had plowed through seven universities, not suffering a defeat, and apparently winning with great ease. They have yet to suffer a singles defeat. Even if such should be the case, their trip has been a remarkable tour of victories. Everywhere they silently demonstrated the fact that California stands supreme and pre-eminent, when it comes to the production of tennis players.

Mrs. H. Wood, Pacific Coast champion, demonstrated her superior qualities as a tennis player when she defeated the clever Mrs. H. A. Niemeyer, Central [illegible] championship of San Francisco this week in two straight sets by the scores of [illegible].

Mrs. Niemeyer made a desperate effort to stem the tide of defeat but the dogged determination of Mrs. Wood proved too great a combination. In the first set Mrs. Niemeyer fought with tact and vim, with the result that Mrs. Wood was compelled to exert herself to her fullest capacity. The second set was easily won by Mrs. Wood, and the fire that characterized Mrs. Niemeyer's playing in the first set was entirely missing in the second.

BRIGHT FEATURES OF THE HOLIDAY BILL

Stanford finished second to Chicago in the big Missouri valley meet, in which seven conference records were broken.

California scored eighteen points at the athletic games in Harvard stadium, more than such institutions as Harvard, Princeton and Columbia.

Rene Thomas in a Delage car won the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, establishing a new world's record for the distance—6 hours, 03:49. Duray was second, Guyot third.

New York Giants go into first place in the National League race.

Harry Ables joins the Oaks in Los Angeles.

The Question Box

To the Sporting Editor: In a game of ball, the catcher drops an easy foul fly, but later the batter struck out. Should the catcher be charged with an error? Would it have been differen if the batter had hit safely after getting a "life" after the dropped fly? C. S. GIBBENS.

The catcher should be charged with an error. It would make no difference what the batter does after the catcher drops the ball.

To the Sporting Editor: What is the record for the pole vault and by whom was it made and where?
HENRY GRAHAM.

M. S. Wright holds the record, 12 feet 2¼ inches, June 8, 1912.

To the Sporting Editor: In a game of ball with one out and a runner on third base the batter hit a fly along the first base line. The fielder tried to catch the ball but the batter interfered with him. The ball struck the batter and the runner from third scored. Should the run count, or how should the play be decided? [illegible]

The batter should have been called out and the runner sent back to third.

To the Sporting Editor: Are pitchers allowed to use the "crossfire?"—A Bug.
Yes.

To the Sporting Editor: Is it possible to make a double play on an infield fly?—Clarence Sorter.
Yes.

CARDINAL ATHLETES, IN FINE FORM, REGISTER 34 POINTS

Murray and Bonnett Break Conference Records at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, May 30. — The track team from the University of Chicago defeated eleven other universities and colleges in the Mississippi valley conference track and field meet here today, winning the meet with 44½ points.

Leland Stanford Jr. university came second with 34 and Colorado third with 15 [illegible] meet, but six conference records were eclipsed and two others were equaled. The first conference record to fall was that for the 440 yard dash, which Cowman of the Missouri school of mines broke. Cowman's time was 48 2-5 seconds.

The 220 yard low hurdles next yielded a new conference record. Murray of Leland Stanford university lowered the mark one-fifth of a second making the hurdles in 24 4-5 seconds.

Bonnett of Leland Stanford took a second off the conference record for the [illegible] one minute 56 seconds and Thatcher, the Missouri star, lowered his own record of 16 feet 5 3-4 inches in the discus throw. Then Barancik of Chicago took a fifth of a second off the conference records for the 220 yard dash.

The University of Chicago clipped one and one-fifth seconds from the conference record for the half mile relay and Boyd of Chicago lowered the conference record for the running broad jump by 7½ inches.

Half mile run—Bonnett, Stanford, first; Osborne, Northwestern, second; Carlson, Colorado, third; S. J. Stegeman, Chicago, fourth. Time, 1:56.

440 yard dash—Cowman, Rolla, first; Campbell, Stanford, second; Chace, Stanford, third; Iverson, Ames, fourth. Time, 48 2-5, breaking conference record by 1 3-5 seconds.

220 yard dash—Barancik, Chicago, first; Knight, Chicago, second; Cline, Colorado, third; Kaiser, Ames, fourth. Time, 21 4-5, one-fifth of a second under conference record.

Two mile run—Moss, Missouri, first; Stout, Chicago, second; Teeter, Kansas Aggie, third; W. T. Maakestad, fourth. Time, 9:48 4-5.

Half mile relay—Chicago, first; Drake, second, Nebraska third. Kansas fourth. Time, 1:29 3-5, breaking the former conference record of 1:30 4-5.

One mile relay—Colorado, first; Kansas, second; Chicago, third; Ames, fourth. Time, 3 minutes 27 seconds.

Running high jump—James, Northwestern, first; Frizzella, Kansas Aggie and Meyers, Nebraska, tied for second. Burris, Ames and Whiting, Chicago, tied for fourth. Height, 5 feet 9 5-8 inches.

Running broad jump—Boyd, Chicago, first; Helt, Kansas Aggie, second; Campbell, Stanford, third, Shearer, Drake, fourth. Distance 23 feet 6 inches, beating the conference record held by Wilson, Kansas, by 7½ inches.

Pole vault—Reavas, Nebraska, first; Crohn, Stanford; Thomas, Chicago and Lindstrum, Nebraska, tied for second, splitting points. Height, 11 feet 9 inches.

Discus throw—Thatcher, Missouri, first; Desjardien, Chicago, second; [illegible] Drake, third; Meyers, Nebraska, fourth. Distance, 126 feet 11 inches, breaking Thatcher's own conference record of 126 feet 5 3-4 inches.

Shot put—Bedeau, Stanford, first; John Reber, Kansas, second; Thatcher, Missouri, third; Schneberger, Northwestern, fourth. Distance, 42 feet 3 3-8 inches.

220 yard low hurdles—Murray, Stanford, first; Norton, Stanford, second; Ward, Chicago, third. Time, 24 4-5, breaking conference record by one-fifth second.

In the 120 yard high hurdles, Perry of Kansas was disqualified for knocking over the hurdle. The fourth place went to Vincent of Colorado. This ruling reduced the points for Kansas to five and gave Colorado six.

KLINE AND CURLEY ON KILBANE'S TRAIL

New York, May 22, 1914.

Sporting Editor, TRIBUNE.

Dear Sir:—I herewith challenge Johnny Kilbane to box my boy, Patsy Kline, from six to twenty rounds. As soon as Manager Jimmy Dunn is ready, I will post a forfeit to bind the match from six to forty rounds, if necessary.

Jack McGuigan was willing to stage the bout, also Jack Hanlon and Billy Gibson, but he would sooner box some dub for a few hundred and refuse $1250 for six rounds with Kline. Kilbane has enough respect for Kline and could not be dragged into the ring with a fifty horse power engine. The only excuse he gives for same is that Kline hits too hard.

I am willing to post one thousand dollars with your paper at any time that Manager Jimmy Dunn is ready, which I don't think is possible.

Respectfully yours,
DICK CURLEY, Manager.

PRIZE BABIES WILL CONTEST SHOW FEATURE OF EXHIBIT

ELABORATE PLANS ARE PERFECTED

Grocers' Pure Food Exposition Will Be a Notable Display.

While all manner of pure foods and household necessities will be exhibited by various manufacturers, both local and national, at the Grocers' Pure Food and Household Economy Show, at Lake Merritt, starting June 8, there are other features just as interesting to the general public as the exhibits; for instance, the daily afternoon baby shows. This and great care will be taken in judging the merits of the contestants. A competent and experienced head-judge has been selected who will select assistants from a class of graduate children's nurses. Mrs. Metta Tremp, who will direct the baby shows, has the distinction of being the most expert baby judge in the country.

Six silver cups will be awarded each day for the prettiest and best developed babies divided into three classes: Class 1, ages from three months to twelve months; class 2, twelve to eighteen months; class 3, eighteen to thirty-six months. Mothers are expected to have their babies at the Food Household Show any day during the two weeks between the hours of two and three o'clock. Previous to the baby judging, Mrs. L. Haines, the cooking expert, will give free instructions and lecture on economy in cooking. The large tented pavilion to house the show will be erected at Lake Merritt this coming week.

QUESTIONAIRE IS HELD AT CHURCH

Experts Are Heard on Child Life and Child's Care.

The Parents' Conference and Questionaire opened its session in the United Presbyterian Church Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, with prayer by the leader, Mrs. C. J. A. Jump.

Mrs. E. P. Bander answered query of "What Is the Best Method for Home Protection?" as being the use and teaching of the word of God and in godly living, quoting her authority from Deut., 11th chapter, viz.: "There shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and ye shall teach them to your children."

Mrs. H. C. Wilcox of Fruitvale gave a talk on "Food Values." The necessity of good, nourishing food, our bodies must be well fed to live right lives, she said. "Children are too early given solid food. Keep them longer on the milk, the food God furnished them. The Scriptures say, 'Milk for babes, strong meat for men.'

"Dr. Wiley says, 'Twenty-five per cent of the high cost of living is because we do not understand food values.'

"Foods rich in protean, viz., milk, eggs, fish, vegetables, cereals, are desirable; also nuts. These should never be eaten alone. Fruits stimulate the digestive tract and renovate, apples and oranges leading in value. Always put starchy food into boiling water.

"Lay your table as pretty as your time and means will permit and serve the food with a cheerful face. There is power in cheerfulness. Never reprove a child at the table. It hurts the digestion. The Scriptures say, 'A dinner of herbs, in love, is better than stalled ox with hatred.'"

Mrs. J. E. Wright spoke on "What Shall We Do While Waiting for the Doctor?"

Christopher Ruess gave an address on "That Child—How Should It Be Treated?" He said: "The number of children passing through the juvenile court has been greatly reduced. The development of playgrounds, amusements opened in our schools and churches; vocational, manual and domestic training give these results, when parents and child go together. There must be an education not all books, but vocational training to usefulness. There must be moral training in the schools as well as the Sunday school. We have been too busy to do things rightly. Training, discipline—all takes time.

"The parent must live closer to the child, reason with him, not use fear or violence. Children grow much through imitation. They will not ring true from artificial homes.

"A false keeping up of appearances makes them dishonest. Children are pretenders in dress and practice, the same as the parent. It is hard to tell them to be better than you are. They follow the law of imitation in habits and characteristics. We have just as good children as we have parents."

Prayer by Rev. Eugenia St. John closed the morning session. The afternoon session opened with hymn and prayer, led by Rev. James Ross.

"The Quiet Hour—Its Effect on the Home," was discussed by Rev. A. J. Kennedy. He said: "The chief difficulty of our generation is because it has lost its sense of God. This accounts for the loss of reverence, of belief in truth—the loss of authority in the home and church of truth," he said.

A symposium on the conservation of child life, led by Mrs. A. J. Kennedy, was full of interest, participated in by Mrs. E. Musselman, Mrs. B. B. Conner, J. E. Sibbert, Rev. W. Thornton, Prof. C. P. Finger. The subjects, "Institutions for Children," "Dangers Attending the Drug Habit," "Infectious Diseases."

NOTED PLANT EXPERT TO SPEAK AT DAVIS

DAVIS, May 30.—In connection with the Fruitgrowers' convention which is to be held at the University farm during the first week of June, there will be a rather notable gathering of the plant pathologists and entomologists of all the far Western states. Professor L. R. Jones of Madison, Wis., one of the greatest authorities in the world on plant diseases, will be present to discuss their problems with his fellow scientists, and a notable gathering is expected. Such subjects as pear blight, [illegible]

[illegible] pests and diseases of fruit will be discussed by some of the leading experts on these subjects. These meetings will be open to the general public and all [illegible] present will have an opportunity to learn many new things of the various subjects which [illegible] in addition to the [illegible] by addressing [illegible]

THEY'RE LAMBS; DON'T FLEECE 'EM

Such Is Advice of Banker Who Expects Migration From the East.

"Soon you will have hundreds of Eastern farmers out here; people who have dug from $5000 to $50,000 out of the ground. If you give them a square deal you will have good investors, and new citizens who will spend their money here. If you cheat them they will return home, tell their troubles and the Pacific Coast will have a black eye that it will take ten years to get over.

"These people are coming here with their little bank rolls, prepared to spend and to invest. They're coming with the idea that money—$20 gold pieces — grow on trees out here. They're suckers—of course, but treat them honestly and fairly and they'll spend their money in a way that will profit the state. That's my advice to the Pacific Coast."

So declared Bert Clarke of the National City bank, New York, who is visiting Oakland, looking into several business matters in which his bank—one of the largest in the United States—is interested.

IMPORTED KNAVERY.

"I am not referring to any particular district," declared Clarke. "The whole Pacific Coast must take this advice, or lose. I speak a warning from the bankers of the East. Form bureaus where investors may gain absolutely fair and unbiased valuations on whatever they want to buy. Don't allow thieves to fleece them. Incidentally, there will come thieves from the East, with the exposition visitors, and fleece them here, while they're spending money. California's going to get the blame for this. That ought to be enough.

"If you don't give these people a square deal you'll get their money—and they'll go back with such a howl it will be a long time before you get any more easy Eastern money. My advice is to have reliable bureaus to fix proper valuations, allow such information to be given country banks and others and sell good goods at right prices.

INDUSTRY, PLUS COIN.

"These farmers are coming out here to invest. They will go out into the country and seek ranches. They will even work while they are looking around. These small farmers will be the ones that will stampede out here for investments. They take a trip about once in their lifetimes. The big buyer waits until the rush is over and buys cheaply.

"Now, I know the coast can sting these people; but don't do it, and don't let anyone else do it if you value the reputation of your side of the country."

Clarke attended the Bankers' convention and visited a number of local bankers. He plans a tour of the state, looking after the interests of his institution.

MAY TAKE SPECIMENS OF SEAL FOR MUSEUM

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Secretary of Commerce would be authorized to have taken specimens of the Pribilof Islands fur seal for the collections of the national museum under a bill favorably reported by the [illegible] rine and fisheries. The Pribilof fur seal is poorly represented in the museum. "The National Museum now has one of the largest animal collections in the world," reported Secretary Redfield to the committee, "and it is strange that there is not a good representation of one that is so valuable and of such importance to the American people as the fur seal."

Boy Is Mangled by Car, But Escapes Alive From Wheels

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Izi Krish, 3½ years old, had a miraculous escape from death when a Folsom street car passed over him as he was crossing Twentieth and Folsom street this afternoon. The youngster became caught in the running gear after the motorman had made a vain attempt to stop. He was so tangled that it was necessary for the fire department to be called to raise up the car and rescue him. He was taken to the central emergency hospital, where it was found that both of his legs had been broken in a half dozen places. He will recover.

MUSICAL TREAT IS PROMISED

Centennial Church Will Hold Musical Evening on Thursday.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Centennial Presbyterian church, Twenty-fourth avenue and Foothill boulevard, has commenced the building of a tennis court on the vacant lot adjoining the church, and to assist in equipping it the members of the society have arranged for a concert and entertainment next Thursday night at the church. Notable talent will appear, among them being Miss Alice Davies, Oakland's favorite violiniste, Miss Rhoda Mitchell, well known as a reader.

The young ladies' double quartet of the church will also take part in the affair. Admission is free.

OPIUM PIPE TOPIC OF WOMEN'S DISCUSSION

SAN JOSE, May 30.—Justice of the Peace F. B. Brown's courtroom looked like suffragette headquarters all day Thursday, as almost a score of women followed one another in rapid succession as witnesses in the case of Mary Gardner, alias True Reed, charged with having opium pipes in her possession at 242 Post street.

Women who have been inhabiting the resort with the defendant during the past few weeks, women who inhabited it prior to her arrival, women who visited the place, women who never saw the place but who knew other women who had—all these went on the stand gave their testimony and departed.

The prosecution was trying to prove that opium pipes and a lamp had been found in the place; that no one who had ever lived there before had ever had such things in their possession, and that therefore the things certainly belonged to Mary Gardner. By night time the case had not been finished. F. A. Sutherland, inspector for the state board of pharmacy, swore to the complaint.

TAFT CAPITALISTS WILL START BANK

TAFT, May 30.—Plans for the installation of a second bank in Taft, which were started three months ago, and for a time dropped, now appear to be assuming form, much interest being taken by those interested. C. Z. Vanderhorck, cashier of the Bank of Maricopa, is at the head of the movement, and with C. C. Painter has been spending the past several days in Taft conferring with business men. Plans are now being made for a meeting of interested ones to be held early next week. As yet it is not known where the meeting place will be.

EXPERTS TO BE HEARD AT MEET

Noted Speakers to Lecture Before Fruit Men of State.

DAVIS, May 30.—In connection with the State Fruit Growers' Convention, which is to be held at the University Farm next week, there will be a great gathering of the plant pathologists and entomologists of all the western states.

Professor L. R. Jones of Madison, Wisconsin, one of the greatest authorities in the world on plant diseases, will be present.

Such subjects as pear blight, foot knot, walnut blight, codling moth, and other pests and diseases of fruit will be discussed by leading experts.

MEETING ON WALNUTS.

The growing interest in walnut culture in Central and Superior California has led to arrangements for a special meeting upon this subject on Friday, June 5, in connection with the convention.

At this meeting walnut growing and marketing experts from Southern California will tell of their methods and results and numerous walnut men from the upper part of the state will discuss the possibilities and proper cultural methods of their favorite crop.

FUTURE FIG INDUSTRY.

Many practical growers of long experience are expressing the opinion that the fig is destined to become one of the most important fruit crops of the great interior valley of California. So much interest is being displayed in this subject that a special meeting has been arranged at the convention.

On the afternoon of Wednesday, June 3, there will be held a special fig growers' meeting, at which meeting some of the leading growers of the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys will speak, as well as experts from the United States Department of Agriculture and State University. It is declared the general public will be surprised to hear of the progress which has been made in fig culture during recent years and the possibilities which this industry has in this state.

BERRIES AND OLIVES.

Expert practical growers of blackberries, loganberries, strawberries and other small fruits will tell of their methods and marketing, and other phases of the subject will also receive attention.

There will be a series of meetings lasting a whole day, Friday, upon this subject.

The unusual interest which exists at the present time in California in the subject of olive culture has led the state commissioner of horticulture to arrange for a full discussion of this subject by experts at the convention. Some of the best authorities of this state and Arizona will be present at the convention.

FRUIT CANNING DEMONSTRATIONS.

Professional and amateur canners will have an inning at the convention. Various technical phases and problems in the industry will be discussed by experts, [illegible] in home canning will be able to obtain instruction both in the theory and practice of preserving fruits and fruit juices. There will be demonstrations with the home canning outfit as well as lectures and informal discussions.

One of the series of daily lectures is to be devoted to the methods of avoiding damage to fruit by frost by using modern methods, and each day during the week some practical or expert authority will lecture upon one phase of the problem.

A novel feature of the convention is that large numbers of growers and their families will camp upon the grounds in tents during the convention.

ASSURE ANNEXATION ELECTION IN FRESNO

FRESNO, May 30.—Although petitions were in circulation less than twelve hours announcement has been made that more than enough signatures had been secured to insure the calling of an election in Arlington Heights to decide whether that district wishes to be annexed to the city of Fresno.

The petitions were given to the members of the special committee yesterday morning and last night more than seventy names had been secured. The total registration is less than 200 in the district now, as that the petitions contain at least twenty more names than are required by law.

The committee has not decided whether the puetitions will be filed with the city clerk today or whether they will be held over until Monday. At any rate it is stated that they will be filed in ample time to permit the clerk to verify the names before the matter is presented to the trustees next Monday night.

A big meeting is to be held at the Arlington Heights school tonight to discuss the annexation proposition. The committee, consisting of Russell Uhler, Martin Johnson and A. A. Koch, which has had charge of the preparation and circulation of the petitions will render its report and it is probable that steps will be taken to organize to carry the election in favor of annexation. It is possible that the East Fresno and Arlington Heights elections can be held on the same day.

After these districts hold their elections, if the sentiment favors annexation, the city will vote on the question of accepting them, but it is conceded that this will merely be a formality.

TABLET IS ERECTED TO EMIL BERNHARDT

FRESNO, May 30.—In memory of the fourth anniversary of the death of Emil F. Bernhard, the Masons of Fresno last night unveiled a tablet to his name in the library of the Masonic Temple, at Merced and K streets, this city. The tablet, which is a bronze plate, 42 by 20 inches in dimensions, is the gift of the Masonic Temple Company, and is given because of Mr. Bernhard's unceasing activity in the work of building the temple, through several years. As a member of the building committee he gave almost his entire time to the work and to his efforts is credited largely the success of the building, so admirably suited to the uses of the several Masonic lodges occupying the building.

At the time of his death, in the spring of 1910, Mr. Bernhard was master of Fresno Lodge No. 247 and it is therefore to the officers of that lodge that the conduct of the ceremonies of this evening was left. William J. Harris, master of the lodge, was in charge, but all the chairs were filled by past masters of the lodge, among those taking part being George Cosgrave, George E. Church, Herman Levy, H. Graff, C. W. Barrett, B. M. Hague Jr., C. L. McLane, A. L. Smith, T. J. Hammond, C. W. Edwards, Herbert Levy and B. R. Walker.

After the unveiling of the tablet the address of the evening was delivered by [illegible] degree was conferred. There was a musical program and refreshments.

WILL GIVE RECITAL.

A violin recital will be given this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, by Professor Ernest Paul Allen and his pupils, at his Oakland studio, 1433 Madison street. Music lovers and interested friends are invited to attend.

MAXIXE IN 'THE MIKADO,' QUESTION

Faculty Says "No:" Man Says "Yes;" Students Are Interested.

Do the Japanese dance the maxixe, fifty-fifty, or any of the latest dances? This question is causing Carl Mau, the manager of The Mikado, a great deal of worry. The question most annoying to him is, if the Japanese do dance these latest dances will the faculty of the Oakland High School allow the fair young ladies of the High Senior Class give an exhibition of them on the Macdonough Theater stage?

When asked as to what he was going to do, the manager said: "To please everyone, I think that we ought to introduce some of the latest dances into the opera. The faculty should reconcile themselves to these dances, because they have come to stay. The opera itself is so full of life and humor that it really does not need any addition, but I believe in pleasing every one."

A member of the faculty, when asked, said "No" with such force that no one waited around to hear anything further.

Fred Carlyle, the coach of the play, was then appealed to. "Leave it to me," he said, "I'll fix it up all right."

The question is, will the latest dances be introduced into The Mikado or not.

The High Senior Class of the Oakland High School will present The Mikado at the Macdonough Theater on the evening of June 5th. Although the date is still quite a while off the tickets are selling very rapidly.

The rehearsals for The Mikado are progressing splendidly and the cast feel sure that they will make a big hit on the evening of June 5th.

The cast for The Mikado is made up of the leaders of Oakland's younger set who are using that opera as a means of showing Oakland what they can do. Barbara Miller, who takes the part of Yum Yum, is very popular in the concert world and many of her friends are eager to hear her sing that famous part. Harold Rice, as Nanki Poo, is excellent. He is considered the find of the year. The most famous comedy part written, Ko Ko, will be portrayed by Preston Snook. This is the part in which De Wolf Hopper starred.

The production of this opera is one of the largest pieces of work that the students of the school have ever done. Carl Mau who has managed two other performances for the school is managing the affair.

DELAY NEW RURAL ROUTE TO TULARE

TULARE, May 30.—A fourth rural route out of Tulare which was recommended to the Postoffice Department by its district inspector, is held [illegible] funds to meet the cost of operation, according to advices received by Postmaster Burnett from Washington. The department further advises the postmaster that the route will be established when funds become available for the purpose, which will be after the passage of the next general appropriation for mail service purposes.

PROPERTY SUIT FOLLOWS DIVORCE

The Durando Family Breach Widens; Law Suit Is Started.

With a divorce suit pending between them foreclosure proceedings have been commenced for possession [illegible] belonging to Francesco Durando and his wife Emilia. The home is at Thirteenth and Kirkham streets. Mrs. Durando has filed suit for divorce against her husband, alleging that he has failed to provide for her in the last few years. She wants custody of the two minor children.

Daniel Osborne has commenced a suit for divorce against Ina A. Osborne alleging that she insisted upon "drinking whenever she pleased," a course of procedure which on one occasion placed her in the San Francisco Emergency Hospital, the plaintiff says.

Virginia H. Mulford has obtained a final decree from Ola Mulfor on the grounds of cruelty.

GROWERS OF REEDLEY PLAN ORGANIZATION

REEDLEY, May 30.—About 150 green fruit growers gathered in Reedley to hear of the plans of the California Green Fruit Association. Packing and refrigeration charges and railroad rates were discussed. Comparisons were made with sales of the past two years and they showed that with few exceptions the packers and the railroads were the only concerns that received any material returns from the sale of green fruits.

The growers were informed that last year the packing companies did business in fifteen out of twenty six Eastern auctions and the necessity of organization to compel a great f. o. b. business was impressed upon them, in view of the large crop that is expected this year.

Wylie M. Giffer, president of the California Association Raisin Company, showed from the records of that company what the green fruit people might do if they were organized.

About 525 acres were signed up and it was decided to send a man through the district to make a house to house canvass for members.

Among the directors of the Green Fruit Association who spoke were F. H. Wilson of Dinuba, Wylie M. Giffen of Fresno, W. F. Setchel of Fresno, and H. H. Backer of Las Palmas. The meeting was held in the opera house.

CLERK SNORES LOUDER THAN WITNESS TALKS

WINSTED, Conn., May 30.—"Mr. Sheriff," said Judge William S. Case in the superior court here, "will you please wake Mr. Kilbourn?" D. C. The Phenomenal Wonder of the Day

Things You May Wish to Know

Will I succeed in business?
Will my home be happy?
How can I conquer my enemies?
Will I marry the one I choose?
How soon will I marry?
How can I conquer my rival?
Will I get a good position?
How can I remove bad influences?
How can I control any one?
How make a distant one think of me?
Will I settle my quarrel soon?
Will my children be happy?
Will I win my lawsuit?
Will I be successful in mining ventures?
Will I be able to raise my children?
Will I ever meet with an accident?
Will I ever advance in public life?
When shall I marry, and whom?
What is the length of my life?
What trade and business am I best adapted for?
What are my lucky dates?
In what shall I invest my money?
Will I have any children?
Will I be a widow?
Have I any talents?
Will I have many friends?
How can I become a medium?
Have I psychic power?
Will I become wealthy?
Will I be successful in investments?
Will I be a widower?
What am I best fitted for?
Will I get over my bashfulness?
Will I fall heir to money, etc.?
Will I have a home of my own?
Will my secret ever be known?
Will I win in the lottery?
These questions and many more answered.

STOP!

THIS IS THE MAN YOU ARE SEEKING

DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHERS.

THE MYSTIC

412—20th—St.

Between Broadway and Franklin.

THE TRUTH—OR NOTHING.
Ye seek for TRUTH!
In all the weary years,
What have you found
But worries, doubts and fears?
UNSATISFYING rules and creeds,
At best, ill-suited
For the soul's REAL needs.

THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE.

You have this on the authority of the Master of Truth: "The TRUTH shall make you free"—FREE from the very conditions which are worrying you HERE and NOW—TODAY! SHOULD you take the step you are NOW considering? IS it BEST? What will be the future RESULTS? How can you CONTROL the one you love? How can you marry the one you wish? WHY are you not as successful as you were some time ago? What is the REAL cause of your bad luck? Is it an "evil influence"? HOW can you change your present conditions to REALIZE happiness and success? The TRUE solution of these and many like questions are of VITAL importance to YOU, for it means YOUR happiness, YOUR success. Yet where can you go and be ABSOLUTELY assured that the advice is HONEST, TRUSTWORTHY, UNSELFISH and SINCERE?

A GENUINE MYSTIC

When you are in NEED of TRUE help and advice, you MUST consult a GENUINE mystic, one who is capable of PROVING his powers by actual tests and convincing demonstrations IN YOUR PRESENCE, and not by mere advertising alone. There are several tests for your guidance. He will ask no money in advance; his WORK must stand on its own MERITS. He will INSTANTLY prove his powers IN YOUR PRESENCE by telling you your name FIRST; your NAME, being the symbol of YOUR hopes, YOUR fears, YOUR ambitions, thus CONVINCING you at the outset that he IS in touch with YOUR very life. He will tell you EXACTLY what you wish to know, no matter how secret or important. What he tells you of the PAST, certain incidents known ONLY to yourself, will prove POSITIVELY to YOU HIS power to read YOUR future. The price advertised WILL be the price charged, and this will be accepted ONLY if YOU are PERFECTLY satisfied.

PERSONAL

I stand back of this advertisement. If YOU are SINCERE in your desire to better your conditions—I am reaching out my hand to YOU through the dark. The RIGHT one will UNDERSTAND. The RIGHT one will FEEL the impulse to call. THE TRUTH—IS READY FOR THE ONE WHO IS READY—FOR THE TRUTH. I ask no blind faith; my work speaks for itself. I AM SINCERE; all I ask is that YOU be in earnest. YOUR success means MY success, for nine out of ten calls come from PERSONAL recommendations. YOUR recommendations to YOUR friends will be the REAL test.

Bound to no party,
To no sect confined,
The world my country,
My brethren—ALL MANKIND.
Love TRUTH, do good,
Be just and fair with all,
Stand for the RIGHT!
Though EVERY "ism" fall.

MME. SEERA

Psychic

Spiritual Medium

Mme. Seera is doubtless the best known psychic and astrologer of our time, having published and forecasted almost every important question and happening of the day, and also for having had the opportunity of meeting kings, queens, statesmen and the leading lights of the professional world. Mme. Seera has also had the privilege of the asylums, hospitals and jails. Eight years of practice in one location, The Sherman House, 108 Randolph street, Chicago, brought her in consultation with 146,000 people, she having delineated their life from their hand and horoscope. While this seems almost incredible, she was absent from her studio only two days during this period, and met on a small average fifty people each day. Mme. Seera has recently returned from a three-year tour of Europe, and during this time visited all the occult centers, remaining one year in Benares, India, studying the Cave Temple. The ancient books as well as maps, supposed to be written on human skins, are guarded in the temple. Some of the forecasts made by

King Edward's horoscope, Nov. 24, 1907, predicting his last illness and death.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The horoscope of the Mikado of Japan Jan. 19, 1908, forecasting his illness and time of death.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

William Jennings Bryan's horoscope, October 20, 1907, forecasting his defeat at that time, and his success in 1913.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

John D. Rockefeller's horoscope, Nov. 24, 1907, forecasting the outcome of the important litigation on hand at this time and the present condition of his health.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Harry K. Thaw's horoscope, March 21, 1907, forecasting the decision of the jury made April 12, 1907. The original article was published in the Chicago Inter-Ocean and reproduced in the New York World and The Matin, Paris.

The San Francisco earthquake was forecasted by Mme. Seera in an article written by her for the Chicago Evening Post, Feb. 4, 1905, and credit was given to Mme. Seera, May 24, 1906, for this amazing prediction.—The Chicago Evening Post.

The present war activities with Mexico were forecasted by Mme. Seera in an article written May 24, 1906.—Chicago Evening Post.

The many beautiful autographed pictures and imprints of hands as well as the many pages of published articles indicated in Mme. Seera's studio, give evidence of her success. Mary Garden, Barrymore, Bates, Mantell, Edison, Farnum, and a list too long to continue, are shown with their genuine autographs. The famous Mme. de Thebe of Paris is one of the number, the American astrologist being a personal friend and a guest during her stay in Paris.

Mme. Seera has decided to give her knowledge of a lifetime's work and study by opening an office and school at 1028 Washington street, suite 6-7, Sevening Building, Oakland, Cal. Lessons, oral readings and horoscope will be given. No money, checks, stamps or postoffice orders accepted through the mail. Very private entrance and reception rooms. Developing classes and circles, and spiritual meetings. This adv. will not appear again.

A— Prof. Brown

The World's Greatest Clairvoyant,
1530 San Pablo, near Kahn's.
Ten Years in Oakland.

PROF. BROWN is always here. OTHERS COME AND GO. PROF. BROWN remains.

His knowledge comes from that mysterious world of which we all would know, yet, longing, cannot know. He looks far away into the dim, mysterious future—the great beyond, across the dark chasm which separates the human body from the flitting soul—and that which is to be is told. The separated are brought together, foes are made friends, lost property is recovered, the mist is brushed away from business ventures, the land is so guided that failures are averted, the earth's surface is explored, its treasures laid bare to his mysteriously perceptive mind, and while he gives names, dates, facts and figures, his visitor sits dumfounded at the revelations he makes to him. He is surely a man of the passing time.

NO MATTER WHAT YOUR PRESENT TROUBLE MAY BE OR WHAT YOUR PAST EXPERIENCE HAS BEEN, YOU WILL SAVE TIME AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT BY AT ONCE CONSULTING PROF. BROWN.

He gives dates, facts and figures, reliable and important advice and information on all matters of interest in business, love, courtship, marriage, contested wills, life insurance, damage suits, divorces, deeds, mortgages, claims, collections, speculations, adventures, stocks and all financial difficulties. Truly predicts the success or failure of new inventions, patents, pending pension claims, etc.; tell whether you will receive fair dealings with partners. If you care to know what business you shall follow to be successful, where you shall go and whom to avoid; if you intend to make any changes or to start a business, buy or sell property, or, in fact, to take any important step, don't fail to consult Prof. Brown. His advice may be the means of saving you thousands of dollars and a great deal of trouble. Teaches and implants personal magnetism.

LOVE, MARRIAGE.

If affairs of the heart or emotions of love interest you he gives the exact truthful revelations of all love affairs.

ONLY TO KNOW IS THE GREAT DESIRE. CLAIRVOYANCE GIVES THAT KNOWLEDGE.

Remember, your prospects of today may be your fortune tomorrow, if properly handled. If you are in doubt about your investments consult PROF. BROWN and learn what the result will be. Nothing too difficult for PROF. BROWN, whose years of experience, natural aptitude and gifts make his words invaluable.

Special readings, 50c; readings daily and Sunday. Hours from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

FINDING OF BROTHER MAKES NEPHEWS RICH

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., May 23.—Mrs. Keziah Jones of Indianapolis, sister of the late Mrs. Rachael Briscoe of this city, who died recently, leaving an estate worth $72,000, has disposed of her interest to her sister, Miss Tillie Henley of this city, and Samuel Briscoe of Corsicana, Tex. The latter is a stepson of the late Mrs. Briscoe.

They also bought the interest of the three children of John Henley, a deceased brother. The price paid for the half interest was $36,000.

Back of the settlement of the estate is an interesting story of how the three children of John Henley obtained a rich legacy.

Years ago John Henley and his brother-in-law, James Jones of Indianapolis, were in business together. They failed, losing everything. Henley dropped his last name and assumed his middle name, which was McGuire. Going West, he started to fight the battle for success over. Relatives lost track of him until the late Mrs. Briscoe located him.

She went west, accompanied by her sister, Miss Henley, to pay him a visit. But for this visit the three boys would not have shared in the division of the estate.

NOT GUILTY.

A darky named Dick was known as a notorious thief, so much so, in fact, that all the thefts in the neighborhood were charged to him. Finally one man had all his turkeys stolen

"You stole Mr. King's turkeys?" asked the judge.

"Well," said Dick slowly, "I'll tell you, sir; I didn't steal dem turkeys, but last night I went 'cross Mr. King's pasture and saw one of my rails on de fence, so I jes' brought it home, and, confound it, when I come to look, dar was nine turkeys settin' on de rail."—National Food Magazine.

'AMERICAN MUSIC' IS SHOWN PRETTY GIRLS IN PAGEANT

ALAMEDA, May 30.—With Miss Florence Gale representing the Goddess of Liberty in the final tableaux, the beautiful pageant of "American Music" was presented last night before a large audience in the First Congregational church parlors. The groups of pretty maids of different ages in the costumes representing the different eras, dancing and singing under the direction of Miss Alice Orne Hunt, with Miss M. McMullen at the piano, made a panorama of moving picture of childish grace, lovely young womanhood and artistic color combination which did credit to those in charge.

The minuet, barn dance, versouvienne, waltz and stately march, in turn, were danced by little colonial maidens, Puritan maidens, older girls in flower gowns and hoopskirts, and last, the modern society girl in attractive gowning and the whole combined in the brilliant tableaux of waving flags and smiling faces, with the Goddess of Liberty as the central figure, the "Star-Spangled Banner" being sung at the same time as the close of the program of music from the hymns of the Pilgrims, glees and round, the war songs and the national airs.

Among those who participated were Rosa Hyslop and Rita Jenkins.

LIGHTNING HITS BED; SLEEPING BOY UNHURT

DOUGLASS, Kan., May 23.—A feather bed, in which Lawrence Thomas, 11 years old, was sleeping, saved his life when lightning struck the frame house of his father, Cyrus Thomas, burning it to the ground. Although the iron bedstead and the springs were bent into a shapeless mass, the boy was only stunned. The feather-bed acted as a non-conductor for the electricity.

URGES POLLING PLACES.

EDITOR TRIBUNE—The auditorium bonds were defeated through lack of interest at the polls.

Now our voting place is moved about a mile further away—to Moss and Piedmont avenues, having been previously located on Broadway between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets.

It seems as though this would have a tendency to create a greater lack of interest in the approaching water district election.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

Oakland, Cal., May 23, 1914.

EDITOR TRIBUNE—A recent issue of your valuable paper contains a dispatch from Chicago with the information that the Presbyterian General Assembly, in session there, has taken a firm stand for Sunday laws, and that an alliance organized to bring about the enactment of such laws has decided to participate in a ten days' conference at the Panama Pacific Exposition in order to obtain a Sunday law for California. We are likewise told that a certain committee of the assembly was much opposed to the plan of the Panama Pacific Exposition management to open its gates on Sunday.

We do not doubt the good intentions of the Presbyterian delegates assembled in Chicago or of other church going people, who have stood with them in favor of such religious enactments. But much more is involved in this question of Sunday laws than appears on the surface.

In the first place, Sunday is not the Sabbath, for the commandment says, "The seventh day is the Sabbath of the week is Saturday. The observance of Sunday is nowhere commanded in the Bible. It is through the decrees of church councils and the customs of religious people that Sunday has come to be observed as it is today. It is an establishment of religion.

OLD SUNDAY LAWS.

In early colonial days a man might not kiss his wife on Sunday. Strict church attendance was required by law on pain of whipping, sitting in the stocks, or death on the gallows. It was the duty of the tithing man to report all who "tarried at home," and all the "sons of belial strutting about, setting on fences, and otherwise desecrating the day." Likewise, in Massachusetts blasphemy was punished by imprisonment, whipping, the pillory, boring the tongue with a red-hot iron, or sitting upon the gallows with a rope about the neck. The colonists came to America to escape the religious persecution of the old world, but they so far forgot the rights of their fellow-being to the same exercise of a free conscience, a right which they themselves demanded, that they consigned to banishment and the tender mercies of the Indians in the dead of winter one who disagreed with them in his religious opinions.

A few years later, our forefathers, having learned that Puritan blue laws made men hypocrites without changing their wicked hearts, if wicked they were, wisely placed in our National Constitution the provision that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." A provision of the same import is contained in the state constitutions. As Sunday is an establishment of religion, its compulsory observance by law is thus condemned.

Further than this, the Declaration of our Independence from Great Britain, the chief foundation stone of our government, declares that all men are created equal, "and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights," among which are "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." It is manifestly subversive of this principle to compel our citizens to refrain from doing on one day of the week what it is proper and right for them to do upon other days.

It was that all might have full freedom in religious matters that the first amendment to the National Constitution was drawn.

If it is proper to violate its provisions in the passage of a Sunday law, it is also proper to violate it in the passage of laws taxing our citizens for the support of the church, or obliging all to partake of the mass, or to be baptized. If baptism becomes compulsory, who shall say whether it shall be by sprinkling, pouring or immersion?

TO COMPEL CHURCH GOING.

Of course, the real object of these laws is to compel a better church attendance. Ministers who have forsaken the Word of God to make a lecture platform of the pulpit or who have indulged in picking the Bible to shreds until only the covers are left, have found that their hearers prefer the ball game, the exciting show or the nickelodeon to listen to their platitudes. What is needed is not a law to bolster up the observance of the day, but a ministry charged with love for souls and a return to the old-time faith in the Bible.

Is it un-Christian to stand against Sunday laws? Was it un-Christian for Christ to say, "As ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them?" And would those who are laboring devotedly for the passage of Sunday laws consent to the enactment of a Mohammedan Friday law in America? Or would they wish the observers of Saturday to secure the passage of a Saturday law, compelling all to rest on that day? No, such laws would be unjust. Neither these nor a Sunday law can make our citizens one whit better, for if they do not hold Sunday sacred and yet are compelled by the strong arm of the state to observe it, they become hypocrites; while if they do hold the day sacred they will properly observe it without this compulsion.

"But," says one, "such laws cannot result in persecution in these modern days of enlightenment and civilization." We answer, such laws did result in persecution in colonial days, and have so resulted in modern times, since Sunday laws have been passed by the states. In eleven years, from 1885 to 1896, fines and costs aggregating $2,269.69, imprisonment for a total of 1428 days, and 455 days in the chain gang were meted out to more than 100 conscientious, God-fearing Seventh Day Adventists in this country, and about 30 in foreign countries. Such prosecutions have taken place in at least 15 states. Yet these are the laws over which, we are told, the Presbyterian General Assembly rejoiced.

Exemptions, placed in Sunday laws, do not make them less harmful. They are un-American religious laws just the same. The exemptions make of them class legislation. The object of such exemptions is to silence opposition to the enactment and enforcement of the laws. After such a law is enacted it is comparatively easy to secure a revocation of the exemption clause. Liberty of conscience is a right to be respected, not a grant to be tolerated.

EXPOSITION TO OPEN.

The Exposition—why should not it's gates be open on Sundays? Will our citizens receive harm from viewing upon Sunday what they may look upon with no ill effects on other days of the week? The attitude of Sunday law advocates regarding the Chicago Exposition in 1892-1893 in boycotting the fair because the gates were not closed on Sundays, and in calling upon President Cleveland to guard the gates Sunday with troops, shows a spirit other than that of brotherly love. In fact, the whole Sunday law propaganda is based, not upon the principle of Christ that men "render to Caesar the things of Caesar and to God the things of God," but upon the anti-Christian principle of a state guided and dominated by the church for her own [illegible] a principle which in years agone dathed its sword in the blood of millions who heretically dissented from the established church.

SUGGESTS CLEANING.

EDITOR TRIBUNE—From the daily evening papers I see that large committees of the city beautiful have been appointed and had some of the work laid out for them. It is to be a great general housecleaning, I understand, but it is to be done principally on the east side of Lake Merritt.

How about the city's front door and its adjacent property?

If there is one spot in Oakland where a cleaning and filling in is necessary it is at our front door. There is not a more disgraceful, a more insanitary and a dirtier place to be found anywhere in the city of Oakland than just at the front door, on the properties lying north of the Sixteenth street depot. All overland trains will pass it with their cargoes of sightseeing travelers and what greets them at the very entrance of our city?

A marsh filled with stagnant water, covered with a foul smelling, greenish looking scum, on which millions of mosquitoes are breeding. Adjoining the marsh a dumping ground is sustained, where a number of garbage collectors daily empty their wagons of refuse.

This is what greets the visitor when he enters Oakland by the overland trains from the East, North or South. The [illegible] he beholds the marsh and dumping place will not be a favorable one, and no matter how many miles of flower covered sidewalks the traveler will see afterward in Oakland, nothing will efface that feeling of repulsion which he must feel when he approaches our front door, the Sixteenth street depot. And first impressions are usually lasting. Will the committees of the city beautiful take up that front door problem and work in conjunction with the improvement clubs now busy with that question.

The citizens living north of the Sixteenth street depot will pledge their full support in the matter and when that place is filled in we have volunteers enough to transform that place into a flower garden and then, and then only, shall we have had a thorough housecleaning, and Oakland will be worthy of the name, Our City Oakland, City Beautiful.

MRS. N. J. HERBY,
3299 Ettie street, Oakland.

ON RAIL RATES.

EDITOR TRIBUNE — Commensurate with the interest, welfare and betterment of individual rights, the taxpaying element of Oakland and Berkeley should look to their right as individual investors.

To conserve those rights and betterments they would also conserve the interests of the railroad company, and would then become partners at heart.

It seems an unfair proposition that those acquiring home properties outside of a city of normal limits, should pay this same rate of cartage as those living within a reasonable and profitable distance.

With a flurry of late in real estate activities much property was acquired in the suburbs of Oakland and Berkeley that has called for a demand on the part of a corresponding few that full facilities be furnished them at rates which are seemingly unfair to a reasonable profit.

Property owners within the old city boundary lines should make strenuous demands that the individual interests of all should be encouraged and withheld to that extent that all properties now lying within those bounds should be held inviolable by intrusion of electric facilities for transportation beyond reasonable limits, and, conserving to all real rights a condition that will insure a normal or gradual rise in valuation as an investment to such realty acquired in previous years. Careful investigation will disclose the fact that a large amount of realty within this old city line limits acquired through subdivision has not and is not at the present time increasing in value, but, in many instances, is dropping back into disuse. If it is fair that the same rates should extend to those living at great distances our city lines might in time, through the activity of real estate firms, cause us to touch the boundary lines of Boston; then would it be but fair that an additional charge should be met to help cover such transportation. Now those owning realty within the old corporate limits of Oakland and Berkeley should be alive to their own interests in seeing that the individual interests of this railroad as a corporation together with their own interests should be sacredly held in abeyance to that which is fair and right.

The chambers of commerce, improvement clubs, all organizations, in fact, having the betterment of their city's interests should act as a whole in maintenance of all such rights that have been acquired in the past; that they may be improved, supported and held to that value commensurate as an investment to the owner and taxpayer.

INTEREST AID IN EDUCATION.

EDITOR TRIBUNE—How often it is that men and women are failures because their education and training did not lead them by the ways they were most interested in; did not create an interest or inspire them with a love for those things they were supposed to learn—a difficult task for the teacher, no doubt; one that needs a clearness of vision from the child's own standpoint that can only be gained by a perfect sympathy with the child. A B C D the child may not understand, but CAT gives a world of wonder and order to those letters, so that it is a wise movement that has begun to leave the learning of the alphabet until the letters are already well known. As the children advance, a little fanciful talk might introduce arithmetic, a talk of the old Arabs and their signs, a talk of the present day enterprises, which all need, "a summing up" before being undertaken. From time to time such a talk might deepen or create new interest in the study.

We remember yet the interest we took in geometry and Euclid when told how the Greek philosophers and teachers taught their scholars as they walked with them in the gardens of Athens under spreading trees, past magnificent temples where strange rites were being performed, past statues of heroes—demi gods—and the scholars questioned the teachers sometimes and by their questions the teachers would get a deeper insight to their characters.

And so it is through every subject. Drawings by pre-historic man and sketches by Indians with little talks on them might inspire the young artist. These talks should not be kept for the beginning of the course only, but should be often retold. And withal the teacher must be a good detective, a judge of character, firm and impressive, yet gentle and persuasive.

Some children have to be led, some must be driven, some must be guided, while yet others must be carried until the point is reached where they see a path they would climb. The highest efforts of some backward child should never be treated with contempt or scorn; a deeper interest should be given to the backward one; a way must be found to help the child who really strives to understand, but who, by his constitution or his carelessness (untrained interest or interest run wild) fails to grasp the meaning of things. How often have we seen the sensitive nature shrink and become despairingly incapable of any further effort by the harsh word of an unthinking teacher, when a kind word and a little carrying forward might have given him the grasp of the subject.

ORDINANCE.

AN ORDINANCE REGULATING THE BUSINESS OF SELLING AND THE SALE AND GIVING AWAY OR OTHERWISE DISPOSING OF VINOUS, SPIRITUOUS, DISTILLED, MALT, FERMENTED, ALCOHOL OR INTOXICATING LIQUORS OR WINES, OR ANY ADMIXTURE THEREOF, AND REGULATING THE KEEPING OR MAINTAINING OF ANY PLACE FOR SUCH BUSINESS OR FOR THE SALE OR GIVING AWAY OF SUCH LIQUORS IN ALL PORTIONS OF THE COUNTY OF ALAMEDA, IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, SUBJECT TO THE POLICE POWER OF SAID COUNTY, AND PROVIDING PENALTIES FOR VIOLATIONS THEREOF.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF ALAMEDA, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Subject to section 3 of this ordinance, it is hereby declared to be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, without at the time having a license as in this Ordinance provided, to establish, open, keep, maintain or carry on, or assist in establishing, opening, keeping, maintaining or carrying on, within any portion of the County of Alameda, in the State of California, subject to the police power of said county, any bar, saloon, store, dramshop, tippling place, stand or any place where vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixtures thereof, are sold, given away or otherwise disposed of.

Section 2. Subject to section 3 of this ordinance, it is hereby declared unlawful [illegible] any time between midnight and the hour of 6 o'clock A. M. next succeeding to sell, or give away, or otherwise dispose of, within any portion of said County of Alameda, subject to the police power of said county, any vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic, or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof; or between the hour of 6 o'clock A. M. of any day and midnight next succeeding, without at the time having a license as in this Ordinance provided, to sell or give away, or otherwise dispose of, within any portion of said County of Alameda, subject to the police power of said county, any vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic, or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof.

Section 3. The provisions of this ordinance shall not apply to the use of anything in private families or at church sacraments; nor to the furnishing by registered pharmacists or assistant pharmacists of anything upon the written prescription of a regularly licensed and registered physician, provided nothing specified in sections 1 or 2 of this ordinance, and so furnished by such pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, shall in any case be used or drunk upon the premises where so furnished; and provided, further, that nothing specified in sections 1 or 2 of this ordinance shall be sold or furnished more than once on any one prescription of such physician and that no physician shall prescribe as a beverage, for any person addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, anything specified in sections 1 or 2 of this ordinance. The provisions of this ordinance shall not apply to the furnishing by registered pharmacists or assistant pharmacists of alcohol or preparations containing alcohol, for scientific or mechanical purposes, nor to the furnishing of anything by any one in cases of emergency for medical or medicinal purposes.

Section 4. No person, firm or corporation shall receive the license (or the benefit thereof) required by this ordinance or shall be entitled to, or shall be granted, a renewal of a license provided by section 14 of this ordinance unless such person, firm, or corporation or the officers, agents and representatives of such corporation are of good moral character, nor unless the applicant or applicants for such license or for a renewal thereof, if a natural person or natural persons, are residents in said Alameda County and are citizens of the United States, or if such applicant is a corporation, unless the principal place of business of such corporation is in said Alameda County, and the officers of such corporation and the owner or owners of a majority of the capital stock of such corporation are citizens of the United States and are residents of said Alameda County, provided, however, that the provisions of section 14 of this ordinance, requiring the applicant or applicants for such license or for a renewal thereof, if a natural person or natural persons, to be citizens of the United States, and requiring the officers and the owners of a majority of the capital stock of the applicant, if a corporation, to be citizens of the United States and residents of Alameda County, shall not apply to the holders of licenses for the sale or giving away of intoxicating liquors within said County of Alameda heretofore granted by the Board of Supervisors of said Alameda County, and which said licenses shall not have expired and shall be outstanding and in force at the time this ordinance goes into effect.

Section 5. For the purposes of this ordinance, the boundaries of election precincts, at any and all times, shall be considered as still existing as they were at the last preceding general election.

Section 6. In order to obtain any license required by this ordinance, excepting a renewal of a license as provided in section 14 of this ordinance, application in writing for such license must be presented to the Board of Supervisors of said Alameda County at a regular meeting of said Board, in open meeting, and then and there filed and left with the Clerk of said Board, together with the written recommendation then and there also presented, filed and left, signed by not less than six out of the ten of the residents residing nearest the place where the applicant or applicants propose to carry on the business, or to do the acts regulated by this ordinance.

Such application must be verified by the affidavit of an applicant or one of applicants, if a person or firm, or by the president or secretary of any corporation making application, and such verification must be made before the County Clerk of Alameda County, or some duly appointed and qualified Notary Public of Alameda County, and such verification must be certified by such Clerk or Notary Public. Each of the signers of such written recommendation must be a citizen of the United States, a freeholder in the County of Alameda, and be the "head of the family," as the term is defined in section 1261 of the Civil Code of the State of California, and none of the signers of such written recommendation shall at the time of signing or at any time thereafter, before the final action on such application, be an applicant for, or hold any license required by this ordinance.

Such application shall contain and set forth, clearly and fully, the following noted matters and things:

(a) The name and residence of the applicant or applicants, if a natural person or natural persons, and the principal place of business of the applicant, if a corporation; and how long the applicant or applicants, if a natural person or natural persons, have resided in said County of Alameda, and when the applicant, if a corporation, was incorporated.

(b) The citizenship of the applicant or applicants, if a natural person, or natural persons, and if a corporation, the citizenship of the officers of said corporation and the citizenship of the owner or owners of a majority of the capital stock of said corporation, and if a naturalized citizens, when and where said applicant or applicants were naturalized.

(c) The particular place or premises where it is proposed to carry on, under the license so applied for, any business regulated by this ordinance, or to do any of the things regulated by this ordinance.

(d) The name or names, or the residence or residences, if a natural person [illegible] or persons, and the principal place of business, if a corporation, of the owner or owners of such particular place or premises where it is proposed to carry on under such license so applied for, any business regulated by this ordinance, or to do any of the things regulated by this ordinance.

(e) That the applicant or applicants are the only person or persons in any manner interested or that will be interested in the carrying on at such place or premises of any such business or there doing any of the things regulated by this ordinance.

(f) Whether or not any such license as [illegible] issued to applicant or applicants, or for the location or premises set forth in the application has been revoked.

(g) Whether or not the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County have, within four years, refused to grant a license to the applicant or applicants or for the location set forth in the application required herein.

(h) That the applicant or applicants (including the officers, agents and representatives of any corporation making application) are of good moral character and suitable and proper persons to conduct any and all business regulated by this ordinance, or to do any and all things regulated by this ordinance.

(i) That said proposed place of business is not located within seven hundred (700) feet of any church building or synagogue in use as a place of public worship, or public school, or public library; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to any person, firm or corporation existing and doing business at the time this ordinance goes into force and effect.

(j) That the applicant or applicants will conduct the business in a quiet, orderly and reputable manner, and will not permit any breach of the peace therein, or any disturbance of public order or decorum by any tumultuous, riotous or disorderly conduct on the premises.

(k) That the applicant or applicants will not sell, give away or furnish any vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof, to any person under the age of twenty-one years.

(l) That the applicant or applicants will not permit any person under the age of twenty-one years to enter and remain in the premises.

(m) That said applicant or applicants will not permit in or upon the premises any game of dice, any game of cards, or any game of chance to be played for money or checks.

(n) That said applicant or applicants will not permit any slot machine or other [illegible] chandise, or any representative of value is delivered or paid to the customer or player, upon the deposit of coins, slugs or checks therein, to be operated on the premises.

(o) That the applicant or applicants will not permit any private room or rooms upon the premises, except private office, lavatory, storeroom, kitchen and rooms that are actually occupied upon the premises by the proprietor of the place, his family, or employes.

Section 7. If there is filed at any time with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of said Alameda County, a protest against the issuance of licenses for the sale of liquor in any election precinct of the County of Alameda, specified in such protest, and if such protest is signed by electors qualified at the time of filing such protest, to vote in said precinct, equal in number to a majority of votes cast in that precinct at the last preceding general election, no license required by this ordinance shall in any event or under any circumstances, be thereafter granted within that precinct, or if thereafter granted, such license shall have no effect within that precinct, unless the applicant for a license under this ordinance shall also, in addition to the recommendation required by section 6 of this ordinance, present to said Board of Supervisors a written recommendation signed by electors qualified at the time of presenting the recommendation, to vote in the precinct, and greater in number than the number of electors signing the said protest, and file and leave said recommendation with the Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

Section 8. Every applicant must, at the time of filing of any such application as is required by section 6 of this ordinance, deposit with the Clerk of said Board of Supervisors of Alameda County the sum of five ($5) dollars to defray the expenses of publishing the notice by this ordinance required to be published. And upon the filing of such application said Board of Supervisors shall, at the regular meeting, when such application is filed, or at the next regular meeting, fix the day and the hour of the day for hearing upon such application, which day shall not be less than ten days from the time when said Board takes such action so fixing the time for such hearing, nor more than thirty days from the time of filing such application.

And after such deposit of five dollars shall have been so made with the Clerk, and after the Board shall have so fixed the time for such hearing, the Clerk of said Board of Supervisors shall cause to be published a notice, which notice shall state the fact that such an application for license to sell liquor has been made, together with the name of the applicant, the particular place or premises where applicant proposes to carry on such business, the names of the persons who have signed the written recommendation required by section 6 of this ordinance, and the day and the hour fixed for the hearing of such application. Such notice of application must be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in said Alameda County, in the township in which the proposed place of business is located. And no such application shall be heard until proof shall have first been made to the satisfaction of the Board of Supervisors of the publication of such notice as above provided. The place for such hearing must be the regular place of meeting of said Board of Supervisors of said Alameda County. And the Clerk of said Board shall pay for such publication out of the moneys so deposited with him.

Section 9. Such applicant or applicants shall, at the time of so presenting and filing an application for a license under section 6 of this ordinance, also present and file with said application, and leave with the Clerk of said Board of Supervisors a bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars ($1000) with two or more sureties and each of said sureties shall be a resident of the County of Alameda, and shall qualify as provided by section 1057 of the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of California. Said bond shall be conditioned that the said applicant or applicants shall conduct the business and do the things for which the license provided by this ordinance is so sought, in a quiet, orderly and reputable manner, and will not permit any breach of the peace, or disturbance of the public order or decorum, by any tumultuous or disorderly conduct or otherwise, at the place or premises so named in such application, for such license; and that said applicant or applicants shall not, at any place in said Alameda County subject to the police power of said county, sell or furnish, and shall not, at the place or premises named in such application for such license, permit to be sold or furnished, any intoxicating liquor, vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented or alcoholic liquor or wine, or any admixture thereof, to any person in a state of intoxication, or addicted to the inordinate use of intoxicating liquors, or to any person under the age of 21 years; and that said applicant or applicants shall not allow any person under the age of 21 years or any intoxicated person, at or on the place or premises so named in such application for such license, and that said applicant or applicants shall not permit within or upon the premises any game of dice, or any game of cards, or any game of chance to be played for money or checks; that such applicant or applicants shall not permit any slot machine or other device whereby money, checks, merchandise or other representative of value is delivered or paid to the customer or player, upon the deposit of coins, slugs or checks therein, to be operated upon the premises; that said applicant or applicants shall not permit any private room or rooms upon the premises, except private office, lavatory, storeroom, kitchen and rooms that are actually occupied upon the premises by the proprietor of the place, his family or employes, and that the applicant or applicants shall not, at any place in Alameda County subject to the police power of said county, sell or give away any vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquor or wine between the hours of 12 o'clock midnight and 6 o'clock A. M. next succeeding, and that said applicant or applicants will obey and abide by all laws and ordinances now in force so long as they shall remain in force, and all laws in force which may hereafter be enacted so long as they shall be and remain in force, regulating or applying to any of the matters referred to in this ordinance, or as to the time of closing saloons and places of business, where vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof are sold.

Section 10. Such application, recommendation and bond, required by sections [illegible] plication for the renewal of a license required by section fourteen of this ordinance immediately upon being so presented to the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County, shall be by said board referred to the Franchise and License Committee of such board for investigation and report, and that committee shall report in writing fully as to all of the matters so referred to said committee, and such report shall be filed with the clerk of said board at or before the time appointed for such hearing on such application, and at all events, before such hearing actually commences.

Section 11. At the time so appointed for such hearing on such application, and at any time during such hearing, whether at the time so appointed or at any time to which such hearing is continued by said board, or further from time to time continued, there may be presented in open meeting of said board and not otherwise, and which shall then and there be filed with said board and the clerk of said board, written petitions in favor of or written remonstrances against granting the license so applied for or the renewal of the license provided for by section fourteen of this ordinance, such petitions and remonstrances being signed by electors, qualified, at the time of so filing the same to vote in the precinct in which the place or premises so named in said application is situate.

Section 12. Subject to the foregoing:

If, after considering all the matters aforesaid, the board shall find that the applicant is a proper person or the applicants are proper persons to be granted such license or the renewal of a license as is required by this ordinance, and as so applied for, and that such license, or such renewal of a license and that the granting of such license or the granting of a renewal of a license as provided in section fourteen of this ordinance and whatever may be lawfully or is likely to be done thereunder or by reason thereof, will not be prejudicial to the public good of Alameda County, or of the precinct in which such place or premises named in such application is situated the license or the renewal of a license, [illegible] plied for, may by resolution of said Board of Supervisors be granted, but the said board shall not, in any case, be obliged to grant any such license or any such renewal of license.

Section 13. Every license hereafter granted or renewed by said Board of Supervisors of said County of Alameda under this ordinance and every license outstanding at the time this ordinance goes into effect and continued in force by this ordinance shall be good only for the person, firm or corporation, and place named therein, which place shall be the same place and premises named in the application for such license or for such renewal.

Section 14. All licenses for the sale or giving away of intoxicating liquors within any portion of Alameda County subject to the police power of said county and which said licenses have been heretofore granted by the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County and which shall not have expired and are outstanding and in full force and effect at the time this ordinance goes into effect, and all licenses hereafter granted by said Board of Supervisors under the provisions of this ordinance, shall continue and remain in force until the expiration of one year from the time they were orginally granted, and thereafter upon the renewal thereof from year to year as hereinafter in this section provided, unless sooner revoked by said Board of Supervisors.

Applications for renewal of licenses granted or continued in force under the provisions of this ordinance, shall be filed annually with the Board of Supervisors. Each of said applications shall set forth and contain all of the requirements of subdivisions "a" to "o" inclusive of section six of this ordinance. The application for the renewal of a license shall be verified by the applicant or applicants, but need not be signed by adjacent property owners, as provided in the original application.

The bond presented and filed with the original application for a license continued in force or hereafter granted under this ordinance, shall remain in full force and effect for the purposes of such renewal, provided such bond is in compliance with the requirements of section nine of this ordinance and the sureties thereon are sufficient and possess the qualifications prescribed by said section nine at the time of such renewal, in which event no new or additional bond shall be required on such renewal. Upon receipt of any application for renewal of license, the Board of Supervisors shall order the same fixed for hearing at a date certain and direct publication to be made in the same manner as in the original application, provided that said notice show the same to be an application for renewal, and need not contain the names of adjacent property owners, and provided further that said notice shall state that the Board proposes to grant such application for renewal unless it may be shown to their satisfaction that for good and sufficient causes the application should be denied.

There shall be deposited with the clerk of the board by each applicant for a renewal of a license or by the applicants for such renewal named in a single application, if more than one, the sum of five ($5.00) dollars to cover the cost of publication of the notice herein provided for.

Section 15. Whenever an application for a license required by this ordinance has been denied by the Board of Supervisors of said County of Alameda or withdrawn under protest, no new application by the same applicant or applicants, or for the same location or premises shall be considered by the Board of Supervisors, and no license required by this ordinance shall be granted to such applicant or applicants or for the said location or premises until the expiration [illegible]

Section 16. No license required by this ordinance shall be granted for a location or to any premises which is situated within seven hundred (700) feet of any church building or synagogue in use as a place of public worship, or public school, or public library; provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to, and shall not apply to the renewal of any license under Section 14 of this ordinance.

Section 17. Any person, firm or corporation to whom a license shall be granted as required by this ordinance, or any person, firm or corporation whose license has been renewed by section 14 of this ordinance, who does not conduct the business for which said license has been granted in a quiet, orderly and reputable manner, or who permits any breach of the peace, or disturbance of the public order or decorum by any tumultuous, riotous or disorderly conduct on the place or premises named in the application for such license; and any person, firm or corporation to whom such license or such renewal of a license has been granted, who at the place or premises named in the application for such license, and on which such license was granted, sells or permits to be sold, gives or permits to be given, or furnishes or permits to be furnished, or who, at any other place in said Alameda County, subject to the police power of said Alameda County, sells, gives or furnishes, any intoxicating liquor, vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented or alcoholic liquors or wines, or any admixtures thereof, to any person in a state of intoxication, or to any person addicted to the inordinate use of intoxicating liquors or to any person under the age of twenty-one years; and any person, firm or corporation, to whom such a license or such renewal of a license has been granted, who shall allow any person under the age of twenty-one years, or any intoxicated person to be or remain at or upon the place or premises named in the application for and upon which such license, issued, and any person, firm or corporation to whom such license or renewal of a license has been granted, who shall allow within or upon the premises any game of dice, or any game of cards, or any game of chance to be played for money or checks; and any person, firm or corporation to whom such a license or such a renewal of a license has been granted, who shall allow any slot machine or other device whereby money, checks, merchandise or other representative of value is delivered or paid to the customer or player upon the deposit of coins, slugs or checks therein, to be operated on the premises; and any person, firm or corporation to whom such a license or such a renewal of a license has been granted, who shall permit any private room or rooms, upon the premises, except private office, lavatory, storeroom, kitchen, and rooms that are actually occupied upon the premises by the proprietor of the place, his family or employes, and any person, firm or corporation to whom such license or such renewal has been granted, who sells or gives away any vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof, between the hour of twelve o'clock midnight and the hour of six o'clock next succeeding; and any person, firm or corporation to whom such license or such renewal has [illegible] abide by all laws and ordinance now in force so long as they shall be and remain in force and all laws and ordinances which may hereafter be enacted, so long as they shall be and remain in force, regulating or applying to any of the matters referred to in this ordinance, or to the time of closing saloons and places of business where vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof, are sold or given away, shall forfeit such license and any and all licenses granted under this ordinance.

Section 18. Any elector of said County of Alameda may file with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors of such county a complaint against any person, firm or corporation holding or applying for any license or for any renewal of a license required by this ordinance, who, he has reason to believe, is guilty of any of the acts or neglects specified in section seventeen of this ordinance, which said complaint must be in writing, and must specifically set forth any such acts or neglects of which it may be claimed, in said complaint, said person, firm or corporation is or has been guilty. At the next meeting of said Board of Supervisors, after the filing of the said complaint, said board shall fix a time for the hearing thereof, and at the time so fixed shall fully investigate the charges made in said complaint, giving ample opportunity both to the complainant and the party charged to present all material evidence and matters in support of or against such charge. Notice of the time so fixed for the hearing of said complaint, and of the nature of said complaint shall be given by said board to the person, firm or corporation so complained against, at least five days before the time so fixed for the hearing of said complaint. If, upon such hearing, the board shall find that the complaint is well founded, and that any charge or charges therein contained are true, said board shall so declare by resolution, and shall, by the same resolution, revoke any license required by this ordinance and theretofore granted to the person, firm or corporation so found truly [illegible] such license or any renewal thereof shall thereafter be granted to such person, firm, corporation, or for the location or premises as set forth in said license. Said board may also, by the same resolution, declare forfeited the bond required by or remaining in force under this ordinance, if any has been given by or on behalf of any such person, firm or corporation, so truly charged, and may direct action to be brought on said bond to recover the penalty of said bond.

Section 19. No new license, in addition to those already existing under this or[illegible] of Supervisors to any person, firm or corporation, except as herein provided, and when any license already in existence shall be revoked or cancelled, under the provisions of this ordinance, or for any other reason, shall lapse, cease or determine, such license shall not be renewed, and the number of licenses within the County of Alameda shall accordingly be reduced: that is to say, licenses for and to conduct and maintain saloons shall be gradually reduced in the County of Alameda, until the total thereof does not exceed forty (40); provided, however, that the above number of saloons shall not include the licenses granted to steamers and ferry boats.

Section 20. The Board of Supervisors may at any time, for such cause as they or a majority of them, upon such investigation as they deem sufficient, revoke any license granted or continued in force under this ordinance, and no license or any renewal thereof so revoked shall thereafter be granted to any person, firm or corporation, or for the location or premises where said license was so revoked, and it is especially ordained and declared that all such licenses are held at the pleasure of the Board of Supervisors.

Section 21. Every person, firm or corporation to whom a license shall hereafter be granted or whose license shall hereafter be renewed under the provisions of this ordinance shall pay a license tax of seventy-five ($75.00) dollars per quarter (three months) in advance, and every person, firm or corporation whose license has not expired and was outstanding at the time of the taking effect of this ordinance and was continued in force by the provisions of section fourteen of this ordinance who shall have been required by the liquor license ordinance of the County of Alameda which was in force up to and and was outstanding at the time of the taking effect of this ordinance, to pay to the Tax Collector of the County of Alameda a license tax of fifty ($50.00) dollars per quarter (three months) in advance for said license and who shall have paid such license tax of fifty ($50.00) dollars for any quarter which had not expired at the time of the taking effect of this ordinance, shall not be required to pay any additional license tax either under this ordinance or otherwise for such quarter (three months) or any part thereof for which said license tax of fifty ($50.00) dollars shall have been so paid but shall, after the expiration of such quarter (three months) be required to, and shall, pay a license tax of seventy-five ($75.00) dollars per quarter in advance for any portion thereafter remaining of the time for which such license was originally granted, during which portion of said time such license shall remain in force.

Section 22. Every person, firm or corporation, obtaining a license under, or whose license is continued in force by the provisions of this ordinance, shall place such license in a conspicuous place in the place or premises named in such application for such license, and show such license whenever required so to do by any person who may make demand at or on said place or premises to see such license.

Section 23. No person, firm or corporation to whom a license is granted shall erect, construct or maintain, or cause or permit to be erected, constructed or maintained within the premises where such liquor is served, sold or given away, any private rooms, booths or compartments or closed stalls, provided, however, that the provisions herein shall not be construed to prohibit the proprietor of any such place of business from maintaining a private office, lavatory, storeroom, kitchen and rooms actually occupied upon the premises by the proprietor, his family, or employes.

Section 24. No person, firm or corporation, or the employe of any person, firm or corporation, shall sell, serve or give away, any vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof, to any person under the age of twenty-one years.

Section 25. No person, firm or corporation shall permit within or upon the premises any game of dice, or any game of cards, or any game of chance to be played for money or checks.

Section 26. No person, firm or corporation shall permit or allow any slot machine or other device whereby money, checks, merchandise or other representative of value is delivered or paid to the customer or player upon the deposit of coins, slugs or checks therein, to be operated on the premises.

Section 27. No persons under the age of twenty-one years present in any place where vinous, spirituous, distilled, malt, fermented, alcoholic or intoxicating liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof are sold, served or given away, when asked to give his or her age by the proprietor or any of the employes therein, shall misrepresent his or her true age, or refuse to give the same; nor shall any person under the age of twenty-one years visit any place where such liquors are sold, served or given away, for the purpose of obtaining the same.

Section 28. Every person, firm or corporation to whom a license or a renewal thereof has been granted under this ordinance, shall place, or cause to be placed, on the outside of all entrances to the saloon, whether within or without the building, at a height of not less than three feet nor more than six feet, above the sidewalk or floor, a sign containing the words "Persons under 21 years not allowed," in letters and figures not less than one and one-half inches in height.

Section 29. Every person who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Every violation of section 1 of this ordinance or any provisions of said section 1 shall, for each day or part of day of the continuation of such violation, be a separate offense; and every act and violation of section 2 of this ordinance, or of any of the provisions in said section 2, shall be a separate offense.

Section 30. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict with any of the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed, provided, however, that the repeal of such ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict with the provisions of this ordinance shall not constitute a bar to the prosecution and punishment of any act already committed in violation of the ordinances or parts of ordinances so repealed.

Section 31. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force upon the expiration of thirty (30) days after its passage, and shall, before the expiration of said thirty days, be published for one week (seven publications) in the Oakland Tribune and the Oakland Enquirer, newspapers published in said County of Alameda.

Adopted by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Alameda, on the 25th day of May, A. D. 1914, by the following vote: Ayes, Supervisors Kelley, Murphy and Chairman Mullins, 3; noes, Supervisor Foss, 1; excused from voting, Supervisor Bridge, 1.

JOHN F. MULLINS,
As Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Alameda, State of California.
ATTEST: JOHN P. COOK,

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR CHANGE OF NAME.

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Alameda.

In the matter of the application of SAN FRANCISCO - OAKLAND TERMINAL RAILWAYS, a corporation, for change of name to THE CALIFORNIA RAILWAYS COMPANY. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways, petitioner.
No. 43067. Dept. 1.

Upon reading the verified petition of San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways filed in the above entitled court on the 26th day of May, 1914, praying for a decree changing its name from SAN FRANCISCO - OAKLAND TERMINAL RAILWAYS to THE CALIFORNIA RAILWAYS COMPANY, which said verified petition is in the following words, to-wit:

In the matter of the application of SAN FRANCISCO - OAKLAND TERMINAL RAILWAYS, a corporation, for change of [illegible] COMPANY. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways, petitioner.
No. 43067. Dept. 1.

The petition of San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways respectfully shows:

That petitioner is a private corporation duly incorporated under the laws of the State of California on the twenty-first day of March, 1912, and that it originally filed its Articles of Incorporation in the office of the Clerk of the County of Alameda, State of California, on said date; that the same were duly recorded by him and that a certified copy thereof was on the twenty-third day of March, 1912, filed with the Secretary of the said State of California; that said corporation is located and has its principal place of business in the City of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, and the greater part of the property of petitioner is situated in said County of Alameda, State of California;

That the present name of petitioner is SAN FRANCISCO - OAKLAND TERMINAL RAILWAYS and that your petitioner desires to take and assume another name than that now held by it and that the name which it proposes to take and assume is THE CALIFORNIA RAILWAYS COMPANY;

That the grounds of this application for such change of name are as follows, to-wit: The present name is cumbersome and inconvenient in being a hyphenated combination of the names of two cities and suggests the transaction of petitioner's business as between San Francisco and Oakland only, whereas petitioner is engaged extensively in the railway business throughout the County of Alameda and the County of Contra Costa; the proposed name would better suit because petitioner intends to conduct its railway business in various counties of the State of California;

That this petition has been authorized by a resolution passed by a majority vote of its Board of Directors and assented to in writing by stockholders representing over two-thirds of the subscribed capital stock of petitioner; that the number of Directors of said corporation, petitioner herein, is seven, and that a majority of said Directors, to-wit: Five have authorized and made and hereby make this application and have signed the same.

That the name proposed to be used by petitioner is not the corporate name of any corporation organized under the laws of this State or under the laws of any other State and doing business within this State, and said name does not so closely resemble the name of any such existing corporation as will tend to deceive.

Wherefore, petitioner prays that this Court make its order appointing a time and place for the hearing of this application and providing for the publication of notice of the time and place of hearing and that upon said hearing its name be changed from SAN FRANCISCO-OAKLAND TERMINAL RAILWAYS to THE CALIFORNIA RAILWAYS COMPANY.

TROLLEY EXTENSIONS BUILD UP SUBURBS

No recent announcement has been of greater interest to real estate brokers in Oakland and citizens generally than that the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways is contemplating the expenditure of $2,100,000 in expansion and other improvements, in making application for permission to float a $10,000,000 bond issue. Old debts of the corporation, amounting to $4,600,000, are to be taken care of by means of the bond issue if it is granted.

The most important of the improvements contemplated is the addition of fifty new, extra large P-a-y-e type of streetcars, to cost $325,000. Some of these will be placed on lines which are now without them and improve the service into many of the rapidly growing suburban tracts where car service has been inadequate in the matter of rolling stock. The new cars will be large, as well as modern, and will play their part in the building up of many attractive parts of Oakland's residence area. The new equipment, if purchased, will permit the running of more cars on several lines, in addition to providing comfort for the increasing patrons of the trolley.

Oakland has long had reason to be proud of its car system, which has pioneered its way in many remote sections of the city, where it was depended upon to make residence possible in outlying regions. The suburbanites have followed the carlines in large numbers until all of the new tracts are being thickly settled. Beautiful homes, surrounded by attractive gardens and lawns, have sprung up everywhere on the hillsides, and all owe their existence and the occupants their happiness to the extension of carlines.

Encouragement of such expansion of the city's transportation facilities means further additions to the residence portions of Oakland, more pretty homes and more residents. Oakland is outstripping San Francisco in the number of new homes of all sizes erected. There are practically no subdivisions in the peninsula city within reach of the middle-class pocket book, and even the higher class tracts are few.

Another important addition to the equipment of the company which is contemplated in the bond application is two new ferryboats for the Key Route to accommodate the exposition traffic over the direct line from this side of the bay to the fair docks. These are to cost $600,000. The sum of $105,000 is to be expended in remodeling present rolling stock.

Other expenditures contemplated are: $400,000 for the reconstruction of tracks and new paving, in conjunction with the municipality; $160,000 for construction of proportion of necessary improvements to present track and paving; $30,000 for additional curves, turnouts, etc., for increased service; $5000 for construction of proportion of necessary improvements and additions to overhead trolley system; $10,000 for feeder lines, additions to distribution system required to provide power for proposed increase in service; $105 for remodeling of present rolling stock; $115,000 for purchase and installation of additional electrical equipment for present rolling stock; $40,000 for paving plant and equipment, additional roadway equipment and tools; $10,000 for additional shop machinery and tools; $10,000 for additional tracks and pits at the shops; $50,000 for office building now under construction at Twenty-second and Grove streets; $240,000 additional cash required for Key Route pier fill and construction of new pier and pier terminal and ferry slip.

Work is progressing rapidly on the work of filling in the pier, which is to be made wide enough for several additional tracks necessary to accommodate extra world's fair traffic.

BUILDING IN HIGHLANDS TOTALS ALMOST $100,000

ATTRACTIVE RESIDENCE BEING ERECTED FOR SALE IN CROCKER HIGHLANDS BY WICKHAM HAVENS, INC.—W. H. Ratcliff, Jr., Architect.

The remarkable building activity in the hill-slope residence district of Oakland, overlooking the city and bay is illustrated by the fact that in Crocker Highlands alone, six houses are either in course of erection or will be started within one week.

These houses all overlook Highland Drive, the hills and the Bay and represent an investment of very close to $100,000, and in beauty of architecture and situation they will equal anything in the West.

The most expensive of these houses is that being built by Dr. A. S. Larkey from plans by Milwain & Milwain, architects. Dr. Larkey's grounds contain a number of large oak trees and are several acres in extent. The house and grounds represent an investment of about $50,000.

Another fine house in the same part of Crocker Highlands is that being built by Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Shores. This house and lot will represent an investment of some $14,600. C. W. McCall is the architect for the residence being erected by the Shores.

A charming residence being built by F. W. Allardt, cashier of the Oakland Bank of Savings, is now nearly complete. This residence has a magnificent view of the whole sweep of the bay from the San Mateo hills to Mt. Tamalpais.

Ground was broken this week for an attractive dwelling for William Fillmore, at the corner of Crocker and Ashmount avenues, Crocker Highlands. This is the home that will be occupied by Mr. Fillmore and his bride, Miss Pearl Cawston.

One of the most interesting of the new homes in Crocker Highlands, foundation for which was started last week, is that being erected by Wickham Havens Incorporated, for sale on Clarendon Crescent. It is a two-story, nine-room dwelling from designs by W. H. Ratcliff, Jr., of Berkeley, and represents an investment of about $10,000.

The Paul A. Dinsmores are also planning to move from their present location in Adams Point to Crocker Highlands shortly, where Dinsmore, sales manager for Wickham Havens Incorporated, is building a bungalow type of dwelling from designs by Sydney B. Newsom, representing an investment of about $10,000.

It is stated by Wickham Havens Incorporated that the amount of building in Crocker Highlands, running to almost $100,000, is a greater amount than in any other section of Oakland where dwellings of this type are to be found, and is strong evidence of the popularity of the Crocker Highlands section.

COST OF BUILDING FOR WEEK, $86,069

Rain interfered during the week ending last Wednesday with building in Oakland, the total cost falling below the $100,000 mark. The exact total represented by the permits issued was $86,069, and the number of permits 85. The one-story dwelling for which permits were issued numbered 18, at a cost of $28,760.

The summary of permits for the week follows:

GOOD PRICE PAID FOR CORNER LOT

Business Site Transfer Typical of Vigor in Richmond Realty.

RICHMOND, May 30.—The most notable sale of the week was that of the north-west corner of Macdonald avenue and Ninth street by Attorney B. H. Griffin and the Berry estate to A. C. Landersberger of San Francisco for $21,500. The property has a frontage of 50 feet on Macdonald avenue and extends on Ninth street 112 feet. It adjoins the site of the proposed new Richmond theatre and is considered one of the best unimproved corners in this city. Landersberger, who is a San Francisco capitalist, recently purchased two other corners on the main business thoroughfare of the city.

The reconstruction of St. Mark's church under plans submitted by Bishop E. J. Hanna of San Francisco to a meeting of five hundred of the parishioners this week, will be a very valuable improvement to Tenth street. The church will be in mission style of architecture and one of the most commodious in the city. Under the new plans the building will be practically rebuilt and extended thirty feet to the rear, increasing the seating capacity by about two hundred.

Work on the two new three-story brick apartment houses in the eastern Macdonald avenue section is progressing rapidly and both buildings will be ready for occupancy late this summer. One is [illegible] by S. L. Yager at the Seventh [illegible] and the other, owned by [illegible] is located at Twenty-fourth [illegible] built in any of the cities about the bay.

The Richmond builders exchange, a recently organized body of local building contractors, is engineering a plan further to increase the construction of modern four and five-room houses here to house employes of local industries. The exchange believes it has a system that will meet with the approval of the employes of the big factories and that the financing of the project to erect about one hundred of this sort of buildings this year will be soon completed and ready for presentation to the public.

Street paving and sewers are expected to make a great change in the annexed district which includes, Pullman, Stege and El Cerrito sections this year. There is more work under way in this regard in that section than ever before in the history of this end of the county. The erection of a school in El Cerrito and another in Pullman this summer will also aid the Progressive club of that district in building up what has been one of the slowly growing sections of the city. Paved streets, sewers and schoolhouses with the improvement club doing its share believed to be the solution of the problem that has long confronted property owners there.

The building permits issued for the month of May by City Architect Ogborn amounted to $47,000, which is considered by far one of the biggest months experienced in the architect's office this year.

In all but 29 permits were issued, several of which were for repair work to buildings already erected. The total number of permits issued since since the first day of January of this year and up to the present date is 144 with a valuation of $177,203.

A feature of the permits issued this month was the fact that many of them were for west side residents who have [illegible] homes, to be erected on the hills overlooking the bay.

Plans and specifications have been drawn by Architect J. B. Ogborn for a modern two-story brick building which is to be erected on the north side of Macdonald avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets for Mr. Heinzer of Woodland. The ground floor of the building will be occupied by two stores while the upstairs part will be rented out in offices and apartments. The deal whereby plans for the building were gotten ready was closed yesterday by C. L. Stringer for the realty firm of Stringer & Lane.

BUILDERS ACTIVE IN COLLEGE CITY

Business Blocks and Dwellings Under Way Add to Values.

BERKELEY, May 28.—With the return of settled fair weather, building operations in this city have recommenced with greater activity than before. Throughout the tract properties and the older sections of the city building is progressing apace. In addition to many new residences of different classes, business construction is not tarrying.

Construction work on the new theater building on Kittredge street, north of Shattuck avenue, is progressing rapidly. The steel is all in place and the brick work is about half completed. The building is of Class A construction and will be modern in every detail; in fact, one of the best theater buildings of its kind in the state. It represents an investment of $75,000.

The block on Allston Way from Shattuck avenue to Milvia street presents a busy scene of construction. The Elks' new home is nearing completion, and the excavation for the new postoffice building is about finished. With the Hotel Shattuck, the Elks' hall and the postoffice completed, this will be one of the best blocks in the county from an architectural standpoint.

NEW HANDSOME HOMES.

Substantial additions to the residence section are assured. Chief among the fine residences to be erected is a $25,000 structure planned by E. S. Nickerson at Roble and Tunnel roads. It is to be an eleven-room building with garage. E. B. Spitler will build a six-room dwelling on Indian Rock near San Diego drive at a cost of $4,000, and Thomas Cahill will erect a $5,000 home at Cedar and Spruce streets. E. R. Peters is planning two residences for Hillside avenue, one [illegible]

Should permits held in abeyance and which represent some of the fraternity houses planned for the coming year be filed this month, May will establish a new record in the building department. Among the new permits issued there recently have been the following:

Two-story 8-room residence, The Uplands, Claremont; cost $4500; R. S. Haynes, owner; E. P. Spitler, builder.

Two-story 8-room residence, Claremont court; cost $6000; D. M. Stewart, owner; Lewis Engler, builder.

One two-story 4-room bungalow, Haskel street, west of Barker; cost $1100; Anna B. Blanchard, owner; George H. Johnson, builder.

Additions, alterations and repairs; cost $2600.

One of the largest single orders of groceries on record was given a Chicago wholesale firm recently by the Western Federation of Miners. The order was for $60,000 worth of staple groceries to be distributed among the families of the striking copper miners in the Calumet region.

FALSE CHARGE BLAMED FOR MAN'S SUICIDE

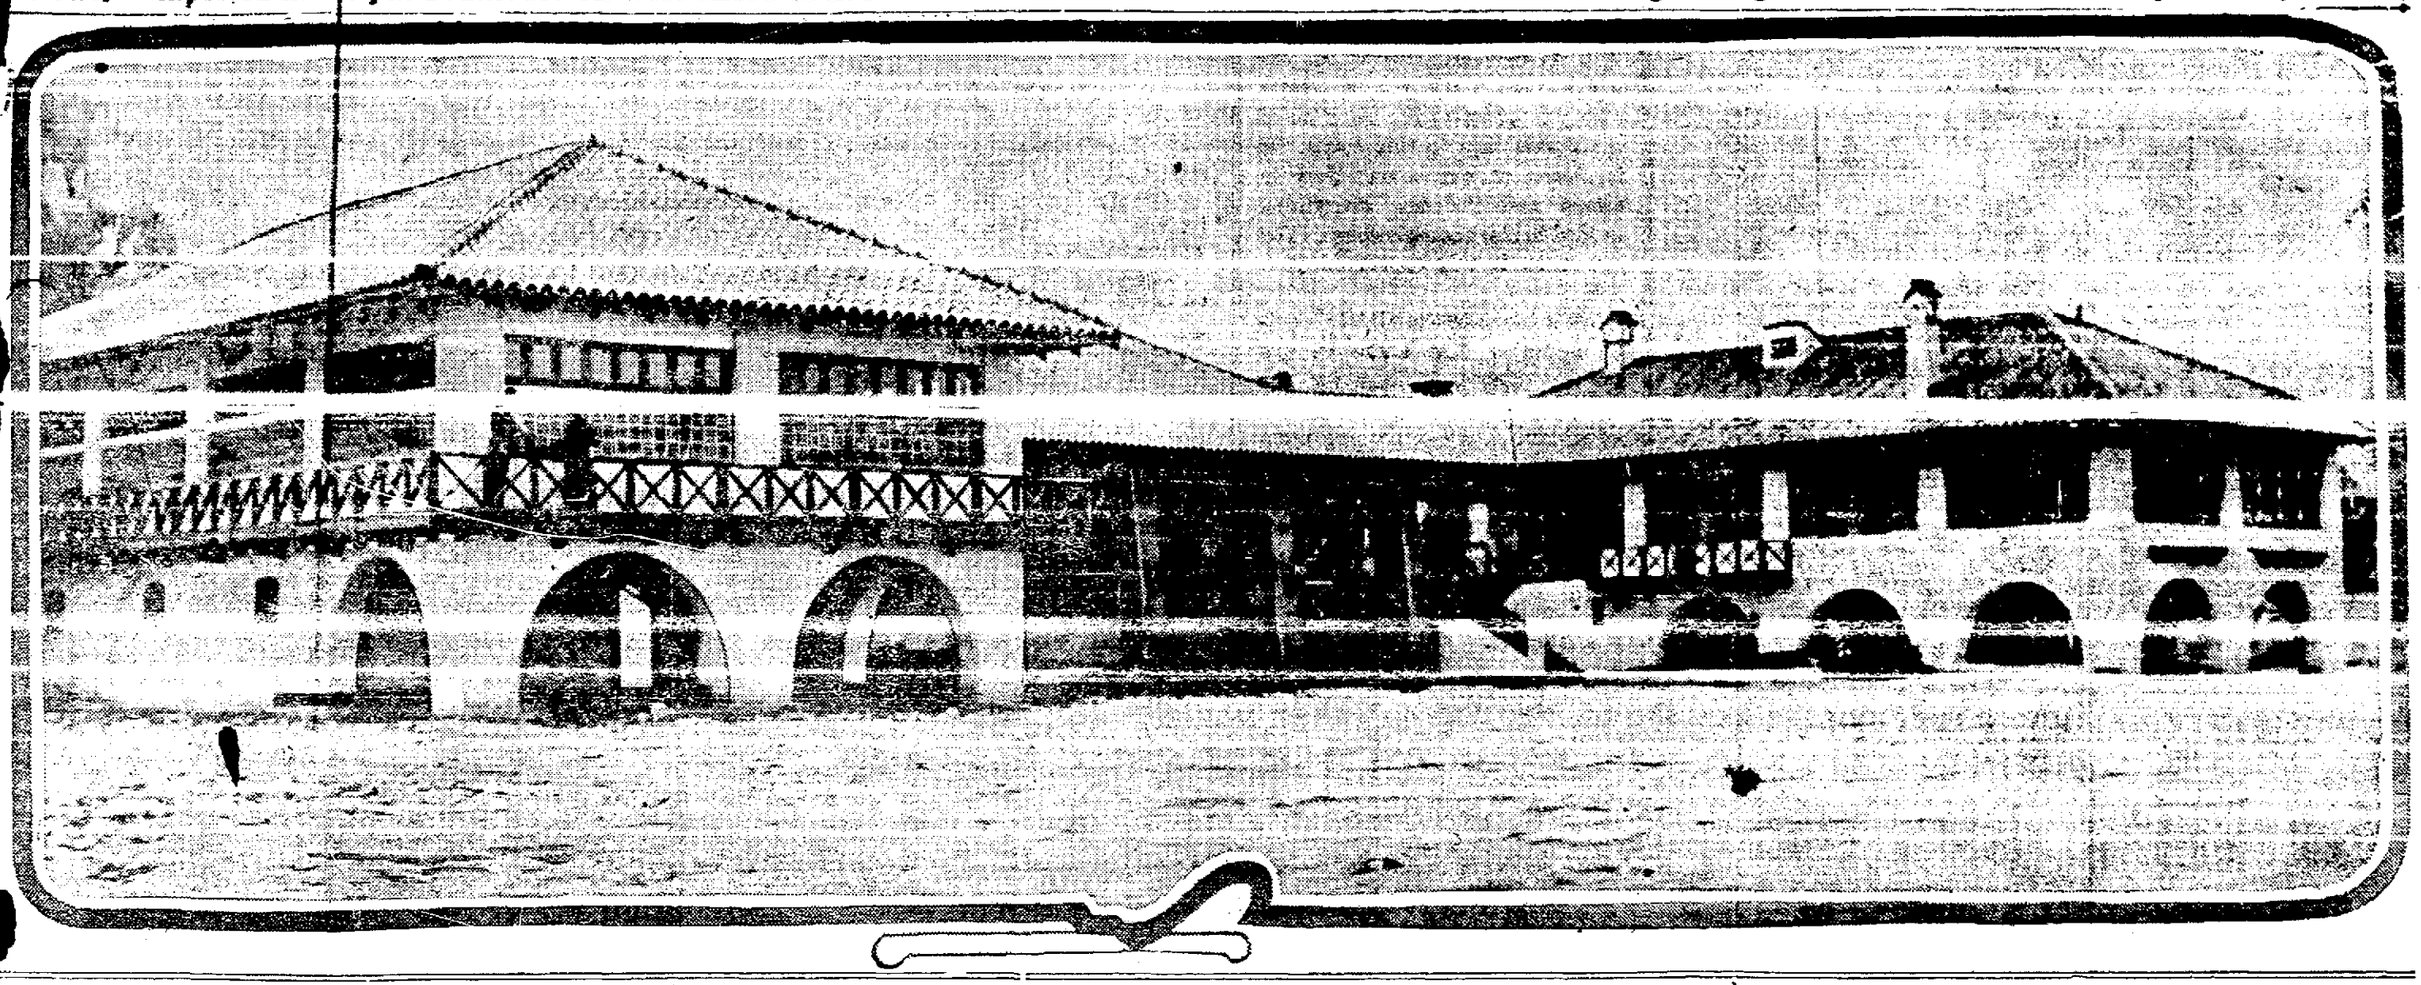
CHICAGO, May 30.—Jacob M. Berz, silver polisher, killed himself in his basement workshop because Philip Moeller accused him of attempting to mistreat Moeller's 12-year-old daughter, Lillian. Mrs. Berz said she had confidence in her husband's innocence. It was the thought that he should be accused of such a thing which prompted him to commit suicide, she said.

MEDICINE IS FATAL.

WATERLOO, Ill., May 30. — A 3-year-old daughter of Harry A. Crocker, a farmer residing two miles north of here, died Sunday as a result of eating about a dozen pellets from a package of cold medicine purchased by the family.

BIG GROWTH IN ANNEXED DISTRICT

Newly completed municipal boathouse on west shore of Lake Merritt. The artistic structure has a beautiful sitting among willows in one of the city's prettiest parks



MORE APARTMENTS IN NEW HOTEL DISTRICT

Another apartment house is to be built in the Hotel Oakland district. There is no abatement in the construction of such improvements in Oakland, in preparation for housing the exposition visitors and taking care of future growth of the city. The Barstow property, a lot 38x150 feet, on the east side of Harrison street, about 700 feet north of Fourteenth, has been sold to an Oaklander, whose name is not disclosed, and who is to put a three-story [illegible] plastered apartment house. Phil [illegible] Stein, of Stein, Macdonald Company, who acted as agent in the transfer, reports that there is an unusual demand for apartment sites, as well as small-sized business property.

Oakland is to receive much favorable publicity through the state bankers who were in convention here last week. The delegates were men who are able to appreciate the material resources of a community and most of them were surprised at the rapid growth and wonderful opportunities of this city. They indicated that they would henceforth be Oakland boosters.

* * *

Although no really sales involving sums in six figures were reported during the week past in Oakland, there was a satisfactory volume of business, according to the brokers. The dealing was principally in residence properties, and the subdivisions received considerable attention.

Deeds recorded during the week numbered 299, according to County Recorder C. W. Bacon. Loaning operations were heavy, the mortgages, 80 in number, amounting to $182,820. Trust deeds to the number of 137 were recorded, the total amount involved being $275,033. The report of Recorder Bacon for the week follows:

Documents	No.	Amount
Deeds	299
Mortgages	80	$182,820.00
Mortgages released	62	148,790.00

MATURING OF MORTGAGES FOR DEFAULT IN INTEREST

(Eighth case in a series of recent real estate decisions affecting owners and agents, summarized for THE TRIBUNE by Attorney Carlos G. White of Oakland, lecturer in law at the University of California and member of the firm of Dunn, White & Aiken.)

Among the recent cases of interest to investers in mortgage securities, and to those agents who make a business of attending to investments secured by mortgages or trust deeds, is the case of Stalder and Stidder vs. Riverside Groves and Water Company, decided on March 31st last by the Supreme Court, sitting in bank.

The defendant, Riverside Groves and Water Company, on July 24th, 1911, made a mortgage note secured by a mortgage on real property wherein it promised to pay to plaintiffs on or before January 2, 1912, $3327 with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. Principal and interest were payable at Riverside, and the note provided that if default should be made in the payment of any interest note "both principal and interest thereafter be due and payable at the option of the holders of this note."

The defendant company failed to pay on January 24th, 1911 the semi-annual interest payment which became due at Riverside upon that day. Shortly early upon January 25th the plaintiffs directed their attorney to write to the defendant at Los Angeles that the plaintiffs had elected to declare the principal and interest due on account of such default, and pursuant to this direction said attorney immediately wrote a letter containing such notice, the same reaching defendant on January 26th.

CHECK SENT.

In the meanwhile, the defendant, on January 24, the day upon which the payment was due in Riverside, has mailed in Los Angeles a letter addressed to plaintiffs at Riverside and containing a check for the interest due. This letter and check reached the plaintiffs about 6 p. m. on January 26, after the mailing of the attorney's notice, but prior to the delivery of it's receipt of said notice. On January 26 the attorney wrote to defendant again, returning the check and repeating the statement that the principal of the note had been declared due for default in payment of interest—the sole ground for refusing to accept the check being that it had been received at Riverside on the day interest was due.

On February 17 following, the plaintiffs commenced suit in the Superior Court at Riverside to foreclose the mortgage, alleging that the defendant had failed to pay the interest due January 24, and that on January 26 the plaintiffs had exercised their option to declare both principal and interest due and payable, and the prayer Court so found and judgment of foreclosure followed.

On its appeal to the Supreme Court, the defendant company claimed that the plaintiffs, prior to the time of their receipt of the check for the overdue interest, had not completed the attempted exercise of their option to mature the entire note, and claimed, further, that the tendered payment of the overdue interest therefore cured the default. With this contention of defendant the Superior Court agreed, and reversed the decision of the Superior Court.

"Under these circumstances," says Justice Sloss in the Supreme Court's opinion, "we think the court below should have held that the maker had tendered payment of the interest before the payees had effectively exercised their option of declaring the principal due."

EARLIER CASE.

Referring to an earlier California case, decided several years ago, Justice Sloss continues: "There, as here, an interest payment had not been made when due. It had, however, been tendered before the payee had manifested its election to declare the principal due, either by commencing action or by notifying the maker of such election.

"This court, while recognizing that a provision like the one in the note here before us does not make it incumbent upon the payee, as a condition to the exercise of his option to give notice to the maker that he has declared the principal due, laid down the rule that the payee must do some positive act to indicate an exercise of the option.

"The right to declare the principal due may be claimed or waived by the payee, and until he has claimed it, the maker may terminate the right by a proper tender of the overdue interest. In the case cited it was held, further, that the maker could not exercise his option either by reaching a mental decision to declare the principal due, or by directing his attorneys to institute an action on the note.

"Here the respondents had, at the time when the check reached them, done nothing more than to instruct their attorney to notify the appellant that they had declared the note due. The attorney had written as instructed, but his notification had not reached the maker. While notice to the maker of the exercise of the option was not essential, such notice was the method chosen by the payees to evidence their determination to claim the right conferred upon them by the terms of the note. The giving of such notice was the act fixing the rights of the parties.

"The attorney, in giving the notice, was the agent of the payees, not the maker. A mere deposit in the mails did not, therefore, constitute a completed declaration of the maturity of the principal. The declaration was not complete until the notice reached the maker. In the meantime, the overdue interest had been tendered, and the right to carry into effect the contemplated, but unexpected, act of declaring the principal sum due was gone."

MODERN ADVANTAGES ARE FEATURE OF THE SUBURBS

"Too far removed from the center of town," used to be a common plaint against taking up a home in the suburbs. True, the suburbs had many advantages in the way of quietude, seclusion and breathing space, but the distance from the "center" was an objection which many people considered sufficient.

Adequate and cheap transit has overcome this obstacle to the growth of East Oakland suburbs, bringing them within touch of central Oakland and San Francisco. As a result the annex district is building up rapidly and even the more outlying districts enjoy metropolitan advantages.

"Things are going very satisfactorily in our line," remarked a real estate man in Elmhurst.

At present there is a brisk demand for new houses on the tracts in this section. New tracts are being opened in Elmhurst and Melrose. While cheaper and larger lots afford the suburban resident more opportunity than his city brethren to own his own garden, the extension and growth of East Oakland in Melrose and Elmhurst has called for the building of apartment houses on the main thoroughfares. A new apartment house, costing $20,000, will shortly be built on East Fourteenth street in Melrose.

AMUSEMENT NOT LACKING.

The East Oaklander has confidence in the attractions of his community. As fast as the new tracts are opened up, places of amusement are built. Residents in any part of the annex district need no longer take a street car to go to a theater. Up-to-date places of amusement exist in convenient situations. In Elmhurst alone at present there are two new theaters, one has just been completed and work on the other is well advanced.

New churches and public institutions also keep pace with the growth of the Eastern suburbs. Work will shortly be commenced on the erection of a new St. Elizabeth's church and a Christian Science church in Fruitvale.

Community pride is one of the factors which spells success for the East Oakland suburbs in attracting homeseekers. Well paved avenues, a splendid lighting system, safety stations and the beautification of depots and sidewalks with banks of flowers tell their tale of successful effort on the part of public spirited men and women who have the interest of their community at heart.

IMPROVED HELP.

Among the improvement organizations which have had a share in the upbuilding of East Oakland are those affiliated with the East Oakland Council of Women's Clubs, the Fruitvale Board of Trade, the Melrose Civic Center, the Elmhurst Board of Trade and others.

While the suburban street car lines have greatly improved their service of late, there is promise of still better traveling facilities. A prosperous section of East Oakland, hitherto hindered in growth by being even a short distance from a car line, has been opened up by the enterprise of the Southern Pacific which has extended its Melrose suburban line as far as the outskirts of San Leandro. There is talk of the Keey Route system extending its run further along East Fourteenth street than Melrose, its present terminus. This will mean that Elmhurst, Fitchburg, Stonehurst and other communities will be in still more direct communication with San Francisco.

There is marked building activity along the boulevard tracts. This can be accounted for in part by the extension of the Southern Pacific suburban line and in anticipation of the Foothill boulevard section becoming more centralized when it becomes a part of the state highway into Oakland. Here too will be situated the new Melrose police station, work on which will start early next month.

Prospects for East Oakland were never brighter, so think suburban residents and those who have been watching the recent progress of the flourishing annex communities.

GRANT HAS HISTORY

Famous Marsh Holdings Subdivided

The Rancho de los Maganos, one of the very few remaining famous California ranches of the good old pastoral days is passing into history, and will soon be but a memory. This historic holding of 12,000 acres is now being subdivided into small farms which will be entirely devoted to intensified farming, California's new way of living up to its title of "Golden State."

The Rancho de los Maganos, or the Marsh Grant, as it is commonly known, dates back to the days of Mexican rule in California. In the year 1833, Governor Castro granted this princely domain to Jose Noriega, a tract measuring four leagues long by three leagues wide. In the year 1837 Dr. John Marsh arrived in this part of the State, having come through Mexico after travelling back and forth throughout the Middle West for many years. The doctor saw the Rancho de los Maganos, became enraptured with the location and climate and opened negotiations with the owner for its purchase. He soon after bought the entire grant from Noriega, and immediately established himself thereon. Dr. Marsh was the first American to settle in Contra Costa county, and the first American to become a large land-holder in California.

BUILDS STONE HOUSE.

He was a man of learning and refinement and was beloved by the many retainers with whom he surrounded himself upon his rancho. He first erected an adobe house in the true California style, but as time went on and his revenues increased he decided to live more in the style which he had known in the cities of the East. Dr. Marsh then summoned some San Francisco architects and contractors and proceeded to build the now famous "stone house" which is still one of the wonders of the country. A quarry was located on the grant, and this stone was used in the construction of the mansion.

The spot selected by Dr. Marsh for his magnificent house was an ideal one indeed. This wide, rambling "stone house" which is an appropriate union of English Manor house and castle, with its 10 foot wide piazza, on three sides, its arched windows, its peaked roofs and gables, its projecting eaves and tower is set in as picturesque a setting as can be imagined, and even to this day fills the eyes and thoughts of the modern onlooker with wonderment and romance. The house and grounds have as a background, Marsh Canyon, with the beautiful base of proud and grizzled old Diablo. From the piazza o fthe house one overlooks the entire valley right to the San Joaquin River, and on a clear day the city of Stockton is clearly visible. It was in this balmy, quiet spot that Dr. Marsh passed his time in California. It was here where he made all comers welcome with the true California spirit. Though his nearest neighbors were from twenty to forty miles away he did not let loneliness come near him for he loved his home and its surroundings, and when he was not extending his hospitality to friends and acquaintances he was busy with his books, his writings and his farming industries.

6000 HEAD OF CATTLE.

Of the profusion of products which thrived or this grant and which added to Dr. Marsh's wealth in great quantities may be mentioned several varieties of grapes, figs, pears, apples, plums, almonds and walnuts. Though the doctor devoted much space and time to these products, his greatest enterprise was cattle and horse raising. In the year 1850 he had 6000 head of blooded cattle on his place and they were estimated to be increasing 1500 yearly. In one of his papers written for the New Orleans Picaune in 1846, Dr. Marsh has this to say of California: "The climate of California is remarkably different from that of the United States. This difference consists mainly in its regularity and uniformity. A proof of the mildness of the climate this moment presents itself, in the shape of a humming-bird, which I just saw from the open window, and this on the first day of February, in latitude 38 degrees. Wheat is sown from October until March, and maize from March to July. As regards human health and comfort, the climate is incomparably better than that of any part of the United States. It is much the most healthy country I have ever seen, or have any knowledge of. There is absolutely no disease whatever that can be attributed to the influence of the climate."

VINES THRIVE.

In the same paper he speaks of the agricultural prospects as follows: "The agricultural capabilities of California are as yet very imperfectly developed; it is well adapted to the productions of Spain, Portugal and Italy, and the region lying in similar latitude on the western coast of Europe. The whole of it is remarkably adapted to the culture of the vine. Brandy and wine of excellent quality are already made in considerable quantities; olives, figs and almonds grow well; apples, pears and peaches produce abundantly, and in the southern part, oranges. Cotton is beginning to be cultivated, and promises to succeed well. It is the finest country for wheat I have ever seen. Fifty for one is about the average crop, with very imperfect cultivation. One hundred fold is not uncommon; and even one hundred and fifty has been produced. The rearing of cattle is at present the principal pursuit of the inhabitants, and the most profitable. As a pastoral country, California is in the world."

MARSH MURDERED.

Dr. Marsh was married in 1851 to Miss Abbie Tuck, of Massachusetts. This lady came with a host of pioneers to Santa Clara in 1850, and later met Dr. Marsh in Contra Costa county, and they were married after a brief courtship of two weeks. Mrs. Marsh died before the doctor and left one daughter. Dr. Marsh came to an untimely end in 1856 at the hands of several renegade native Californians, who, it is believed, [illegible] for was murdered while driving from his home to Martinez. The horse and buggy were found a short distance out of Martinez the morning after he left the rancho, and an immediate search was instituted for the Doctor. His body was found in a nearby ditch; he had been foully murdered; he was stabbed several times and his throat was cut from ear to ear. A man named Olivas was captured and confessed; implicating two other men named Moreno and Garcia. Olivas escaped shortly after but was recaptured ten years later and brought to trial. Moreno was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1867. Garcia was never apprehended.

RANCH IN LITIGATION.

Thus passed into history Dr. Marsh, one of the most illustrious of the pioneer Americans. His holding, the Rancho de los Maganos, became involved in much litigation after his death, but was finally settled for all time by the purchasing of all claims and rights by the present owners, Balfour, Guthrie & Company, an eminent English banking and commission institution.

The Balfour-Guthrie Company has renamed this wonderful property and it is now known as the Brentwood Irrigated Farms. They are installing an irrigating system which is a marvelous feat of skillful engineering. The Balfour-Guthrie Company propose to sell off this land in small parcels to intensive farmers, and as the soil is excellent, the irrigating system the safest and surest known, and the climate unexcelled this famous old rancho will undoubtedly soon be a veritable garden of wealth, each acre producing many dollars in profits for its respective owner.

LINCOLN NEVER SAID THIS ONE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. May 30.—In response to a request from the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance that the alleged quotation from a Lincoln utterance: "As we keep or break the Sabbath, we nobly save or meanly lose the last best hope by which man rises," be placed in Lincoln's home here, Governor Dunne was informed by letter today from Mrs. William H. Danielson, secretary of the association, that on investigation at his suggestion, it was impossible to verify the quotation. Governor Dunne acted as spokesman for the board of trustees of the Lincoln Home.

Mrs. Danielson said in her letter: "To our great disappointment we find it is impossible to verify the quotation in any printed utterance. The phrase has been used as a generation as a kind of slogan for Sabbath forces, and it had not occurred to us to doubt its authenticity until you called for its origin."

APPLE SHOW TO BE BIG AFFAIR

Will Be Held in San Francisco Instead of Watsonville as Formerly.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The Watsonville Apple Association opened headquarters in San Francisco yesterday and started preparatory work for the Fifth California Apple Show which will be given this year in this city instead of in Watsonville.

The transplanting of the famous Pajaro apple from its home city to a display pavilion in San Francisco is an innovation in California fruit festivals which the apple growers are confident will result in two fold benefit through bringing a larger number of apple consumers in touch with the toothsome California product.

Harry Perkins, who has managed the Apple show in Watsonville for the last four years and who has made the San Bernardino National Orange show a fixture among California festival events will be in charge of this year's show which will be opened at Eighth and Market streets on October 1. The display will be housed in three large canvas pavilions with a total floor space of 140,000 square feet, an area three times as large as that of the Chicago Coliseum.

From October 1 to 11 inclusive San Francisco will be shown more apples than the average city man ever saw. There will be 3,000,000 apples on display of every variety produced in the twenty or more apple growing counties of the state. Reports from the Pajaro Valley, which alone produces more apples than Oregon, Washington and Idaho combined, are that this year's crop will be the finest in the last ten years. Heavy frosts last year gave the trees a rest that has resulted in an unusually heavy 1914 crop.

"In giving the Fifth Annual California Apple Show in San Francisco," O. D. Stoesser, president of the Association, said yesterday: "The Watsonville Association is making a pioneer move for California festivals. We want to bring the California apple and the consumer together and we figure the largest city on the Pacific Coast is the place to do it on the largest scale. San Franciscans can do much for their own good and for the good of the state by getting acquainted with the California apple. The show we are planning to give in October will not be exclusively for the benefit of the Pajaro Valley growers, however. Every apple growing district in the state will be invited and expected to enter a display. In addition to the display of apples, which will be shown exclusively in the main exhibit pavilion, there will be an extensive industrial exposition which will give ample scope to California manufacturers to show their goods."

GARDEN FORCES READY FOR WORK

Children to Unite in Planting the City's Vacant Lots.

If you see a man taking up a perfectly good piece of concrete back of the curbing somewhere along Grand Avenue, do not suspect him of lunacy—he's merely a new recruit to the City Garden Soldiers Army bent upon replacing dusty rock with gorgeous bloom.

The first big battle of the campaign is now scheduled for June 5th instead of the 8th as formerly announced. On that date nearly a thousand children from the Lakeside, Franklin, Grant and Intermediate schools will assemble along Harrison, Grand and Lakeshore avenues armed with their trusty trowels and plant 20,000 geraniums—which have been donated—along both sides of these avenues. It is in anticipation of the coming of this Children's Crusade that property owners along these streets are banishing weeds, concrete, etc., and getting soft earth ready so that the children can make 20,000 geraniums grow where none grew before.

Edson Adams is the largest property owner along this part of Highland Drive and has agreed with the executive committee, of which Bessie J. Wood is chairman, to have every foot of the parking space on his holdings ready for geranium planting on the 5th of June. The Sisters of the Sacred Heart Convent have another very large frontage, and have responded enthusiastically to the call of the committee. Among others who are co-operating with the committee are: W. H. Wellbye, A. Kayser, Charles J. Heeseman, H. Bradley, W. D. Clark, A. D. Fifield, W. W. White, DeVer McLaren, M. E. Marks, M. Goldwater, W. S. Mackay, O. E. Coffin, George T. Eggers, A. J. Brown, W. A. Gorrell, J. A. Langstroth, S. Steen, M. Ehrenberg and a score of others.

The City Garden Army on next Friday will be divided into twenty-six companies and to each company will be assigned for planting a strip about 400 feet in length. The army will assemble at the main entrance of Lakeside Park at 2 p. m. and will be addressed by Mayor Mott before they march to their stations. It is evident that there will be the warmest competition among the schools to make the best showing possible in order to win the silk flag offered as a prize by A. S. Lavenson and H. C. Capwell.

President A. C. Barker and George E. Dickie of the Playground Department are co-operating with the City Garden Soldiers' Executive Committee. Dickie will be marshal of the day.

A joke isn't necessarily new because it has never appeared in print. It may have been on tap before the art of printing was discovered.

Why we can sell goods on credit as low as they can be bought for cash

In the first place, people who buy furniture on credit in most cases are honest. Our losses in that way are practically nothing, far less than stores that give thirty days' time.

Our first payments and the monthly installments about equal the amount of goods sold each month. For instance, if our sales for a month run $50,000, why, our first payments and installments for that month will be $50.000.

See the point—practically a cash business. There is no sound reason why you should pay more for goods on credit, and you don't at Jackson's. Absolutely one price, cash or time.

PIONEER WAS IN EARLY FIGHTING

Ex-Commissioner, in Youth, Aided Capture of Morgan.

Yesterday's annual observance often recalls incidents of the troublous times of the early '60's, when border raids and night rides were even more to be dreaded than the self-invited visits of the soldiers of the enemy. Thomas Trunbull, the well-known Ex-United States Industrial Commissioner, who has resided in this city for the past many years, brings a story of outlawry in the new West and of how he was a member of the famous "Squirrel Hunters" who captured the great outlaw, John Morgan, when he attempted his last raid in Ohio, just outside Cincinnati.

The older men had all enlisted and gone to the front. John Morgan's raids [illegible] Governor David Todd, in 1862 called out the "minute men" or the "Squirrel Hunters" and organized a company of the lads around the age of 15 to protect the property against the outlaw and his band. Trunbull was one of these lads, and he tells of how they outwitted the bandit and succeeded in capturing him. Trunbull has in his possession his "honorable discharge" from the so-called "Squirrel Hunters" company, signed by Governor Todd.

Trunbull was appointed in September, 1898, as a representative of the Industrial Interests of California to a meeting of the United States Industrial Commission which met in Washington, D. C., of that year. In 1902 when the subject of Trust Breaking was first taken up by the Administration, Trunbull is credited with powerful influence which broke the Salt Trust. He tells of this trust offering him bribe money to the sum of $10,000 to withdraw his influence. He is also prominently connected with [illegible] methods of the Beef Trust, and went to Chicago to testify before Judge Landis of the United States court. He was instrumental in the conviction of four members of this "trust."

Senator George C. Perkins and Congressman Joseph R. Knowland, who are old friends of Trunbull, are interesting themselves in the securing of a private pension for this man, who has seen long service in the interests of his country.

WRITE WEEKLY, IS COURT ORDER

Instead of Divorce He Expects Couple to Kiss and Make Up.

LOS ANGELS, May 30.—If Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright do not kiss and make up it will not be the fault of Judge Grant Jackson, so the latter says.

Judge Jackson instructed Mr. and Mrs. Wright today to write each other one letter each week regardless of [illegible] either may be.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright separated several months ago. They have one child. Wright failed for a time to contribute toward the child's support and Mrs. Wright had him arrested. He was ordered to pay $5 each week for the child's support. This week he appeared to ask that the case pending against him be dismissed as he had complied with the order of the court to pay for the support of the child. Judge Jackson said:

"You have been faithful. I will dismiss the case. In the future if you do not see your way clear [illegible] I want you to write her a letter and send her a money order. And Mrs. Wright is ordered to reply to the letter and say at least that she got the money and that she thanks Mr. Wright for it."

Mrs. Wright interrupted with: "Judge, he will get a receipt when buys the money order."

"Nevertheless," replied Judge Jackson, "you write him just the same."

SWEDISH ATHLETES TO COMPETE AT BUDAPEST

STOCKHOLM, May 30.—Swedish athletes will go to Budapest next month to accept the challenge of the Hungarians for a track and field meet including all the events of the Olympic program. The date set is June 27 to 28.

The original challenge for a meet at this time came from the German Athletic Federation, but the Germans have lately advised the Swedish authorities that they will not be in form for international competition before next year. There was keen disappointment here over this news, as the athletic progress of Germany has been watched with great interest, and a German-Swedish meet doubtless would have proved an exciting affair. Sweden looked about for another opponent, so that all of the preliminary work might not be wasted, and Hungary has now consented to take Germany's place.

SERVANT PROBLEM GRAVE IN PARIS

Influx of Americans Into the French Capital Cause, Is Charged.

PARIS, May 30.—That the invasion of Paris by rich Americans is responsible for the deplorable state of the servant institution here is the open charge brought by directors of employment agencies and [illegible] the stage. Whichever way the scale turn the fact remains that a servant famine of dire dimensions is on.

The French claim they find it impossible to keep a good servant because of the lurid tales going the rounds of hired help concerning the wages paid by "those Americans."

Little to do, big pay, days off, evenings out, choice food, comfortable sleeping quarters, big tips in addition to regular pay, treatment accorded as to a member of the family, commissions on household supplies and what not, are some of the things the natives claim Americans give their servants, pay big wages and is very strict with the household help. Special food is usual for servants. Instead of the same as that which adorns the master's table. And the rich Americans generally have two maids to the French family's one.

In short, Parisians declare, the Americans have done for the servants of Paris homes just what they have done for servants of the restaurants and hotels. They demanded the best and then held out an open hand full of gold with the invitation to everybody to help themselves.

All classes of servants are demanding more pay, shorter hours and better treatment. Even so, housekeeprs are complaining that good servants are getting scarcer and scarcer. Country girls are brought to the city only to be spoiled through contact with other servants already learned in city ways.

Nowadays the girl who is willing to do the laundry work and other coarser duties about a house is a rare creature. They all have ambitions to connect with a rich American family"—where they won't have anything to do but draw a big wage and spend it, unless indeed it be to travel about the world four or five months of the year.

Old American settlers here admit that there is considerable justice in the Frenchman's charges. They are having the same trouble as the natives are, they say, and they attribute it to the lavish spending habits of their American [illegible] present the maids are all stage struck and desirous of being chorus girls. An intelligence office director upheld this view.

"There are more and more summer reviews springing up in Paris every season," he said, "not to mention the reviews staged in the various poular summering places in the surrounding country. The maids have all heard numerous stories of successes made by certain of their number who began as chorus girls, and the prettier ones, and more intelligent [illegible] same field. The result is a can't fill a tenth of the positions which I am asked to fill.

"There is undoubted a serious servant famine, partly, as has been cahrged, on account of the rich Americans and other wealthy foreigners in Paris, and partly on account of the dislike of the servant class to serve. Quite the same as our own servant problem in New York, what!"

CHILD SUICIDES APALL GERMANS

Stiff Examinations Prove Hari-Kari to Young Boys at School.

BERLIN, May 30.—The end of the Winter school term in Germany has again been marked this spring with the psychological problem and annual manifestation which has confronted school authorities and government for years—the inevitable epidemic of suicides of school children.

Again the stiff annual spring examinations have literally proven the "hari-[illegible] over-study under the tremendous pressure of the German school system. These boys preferred death to the reproaches of father and mother and the gibes of their companions because they failed.

Just how many families have discovered too late that they were driving their sons to death by their goading, their threats if they do not pass, their reproaches because they did not learn faster, and daily upholding before them that they would be the disgrace of their parents if they failed, is not yet known, [illegible] rumor, however, is said to be in excess of last spring.

In Berlin Hans Urahn aged 18 failed to pass in high school and promptly fired the contents of an automatic pistol into his chest. The same day the 15-year-old son of a printing house proprietor threw himself in front of a train at the Jannowitz station and was ground to death. In the pocket of his coat was found a note. It read: "I failed. I cannot go home." That same afternoon the body of a boy, aged 17, son of a clerk in the City Council, was fished out of the river Spree. He, too had failed in his examination.

In no country is education the "gate," in fact, the only entrance to employment, occupations and professions as in Germany. Almost every occupation or calling, except menial work, is barred to all except those who have succeeded in obtaining the one-year certificate or diploma, which entitles the holder to serve but one year in the army instead of two and to a large extent practically determines his social and economic chances for the future.

The cause of the suicides, which some years have numbererd as high as 90 are attributed by physicians and authorities on the subject to several causes. Chief among the more over-study, exaggeration of the disgrace of failure in examinations, the foolishness and lack of consideration on the part of parents in telling their children that failure spells mental and intellectual inferiority, and too little at-[illegible]

Privy Councillor Adolph Mathias, a specialist on the subject, said that suicides of schoolboys were fearfully on the increase. He considered that the cause and fault was with the parents rather than with the schools. One thing, he said, which teachers and parents often fail to recognize and understand is that children who are slow to acquire book knowledge in school and in that respect appear stupid, often are the most sensitive and impressionable and required delicate and sensible handling. He added that these [illegible] later in life.
